GIRLS HURTS NOT SELF-INFLICTED

Physician Declares It Impossible That Florence Moore Could Have Abused Her Own Body.

POLICE SCOUT HER STORY OF ASSAULT

While the police are engaged in an effort to prove that Florence Moore was not assaulted and dragged into an alley on East Lewis street Wednesday night, Dr. A. H. Macbeth, the surgeon in attendance upon the injured girl, insists that it is not within the range of possibility that her njuries are self-inflicted.

"That girl was handled very roughly by somebody," said Dr Macbeth today, "and when she was brought into the hospital we thought she was dead. Her condition is better today but the theory that she inflicted those injuries upon herself is not to be considered for a minute, in fact it s impossible.

"I don't think she ever had a revolver or fired a shot or two shots and in my opinion the information she has been giving the police is not of much value. Her skull is fractured and it may be necessary yet to operate and we would have done so before if we had been able to locate the fracture. Her mind is not clear, her thoughts are all jumbled and until this is cleared up she will not be able to give any reliable facts."

The Theory of the Police.

Information has reached the police that the girl has been under treatment for a form of epilepsy complicated by a slight hysteria and Chief Elliott thinks that, laboring under an attack, she grasped her own throat and inflicted the injuries which he does not believe are serious, and then went and lay down in the alley.

The girl had been taking treatment for some sort of an ailment but physicians attending her now do not thing it hadthink it had progressed to a stage where it would have prompted her to have wrenched at her throat and thrown herself down in an alley to raise the presumption that an assault had been made upon her.

From Theodore Havert, who was the first to reach the girl, and from Mrs. Theodore Smenner, who gave the alarm, the police have obtained statements showing that Miss Moore's clothing as not disarranged. Her hat was on her head and her skirts were down to her ankles.

Examined in Light.

She was found lying against the fence at the east side of the alley and a piece of paper was lighted in addition to the lantern that Havert carried and both say there could not have been any mistake about the clothing or the hat.

The police believe that she could not have been choked and dragged a distance of seventy-five feet without having her clothing deranged and they feel sure that even with no other derangement of her attire her hat would at least have fallen off.

They also think that the statement about the revolver is either an hallucination or an attempt to bolster up a story that is not true. Further evidence in support of the theory is that two young men were at a rear window of the Havert home, that teh lower sash was up and they heard nothing of a struggle in the alley.

She Exclaimed, "Oh, Dear!"

Mrs. Smenners also said that the girl exclaimed, "Oh, dear!" and did not moan, as has been stated, and this is taken by the police as proof that she was conscious at the time she was found. The pocketbook which was thought to have been taken was found in her trunk.

A physician on behalf of the police department made an examination of the patient today and concurs in the opinion of the department that the injuries are not too severe to have been inflicted by the girl herself. He also reported that the wounds which she said were inflicted in the attack she says was made upon her Monday night are scratches running diagonally across her body and do not bear the appearance of having been made with a knife.

Cohen in Indianapolis.

A telegram from Martin H. Hyland, chief of the Indianapolis police department, eliminated Sam Cohen from the case. The message states that Cohen boards on Harrison street in Indianapolis and that he was in that city at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. This insures that he was not in Fort Wayne.

Last night the police were called to the hospital and Miss Cecelia Feist said that Miss Moore told her that as she passed the alley on her way to meet her sister two men attacked her. One seized her and dragged her into the alley while the other stood guard. She insisted again that she carried a revolver and that she fired twice at her assailant.

Miss Moore Makes New Statement.

In a statement made through Miss Feist to Detective Sergeant Ward Hall this afternoon, Miss Moore insisted that she carried a gun the night she was assaulted and that she fired twice. S... said she bought the gun of a pawnbroker in Logansport when she was there the last week in August of this year and kept it in a trunk in her room.

She said she told her sister nothing of it because she was nervous and she did not want to worry her about it. She added that after she left the office of the Trade Mark Title company she went to her room at the Foster residence and put the revolver in an inside pocket of her coat.

She then walked across the street to the Feist home and from there went to meet her sister. She said she had passed the alley about ten feet when two men approached her from behind, seized her and dragged her into the alley.

These statements were made to Miss Feist, who has been with the injured girl most ofthe time and through her they were communicated to the police. The police have the address of the pawnbroker from whom she says she bought the weapon and will ascertain whether or not her story is true.

The condition of the young woman late this afternoon indicated some improvement and gave further hope of her ultimate recovery.

A "YELLOW HEADED" GIRL CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Mrs. Bridgman Sues for Support and Goes After Her Rival.

Charging that her husband spends his time and his money in the company of a "yellow-headed" girl Mary E. Bridgman has filed suit in the superior court against Harry Bridgman demanding $100 a month for her support and asking a receiver for the Automatic Music company, in which he is interested.

She says the girl with the yellow hair is Alma Kaade, who was wanted as a witness when Bridgman sued his wife for divorce some time ago and failed to get a verdict on the showing made by his wife. The Auto Music company is a concern that derives its principal income from musical devices in bagnios.

Mrs. Bridgman says that she has been accustomed to the best of everything and that $100 is not too much for her support and will only provide her with the things to which she has been accustomed. She also says that her husband makes $500 a month and is able to pay it. The divorce case was a sensational affair and the wife made no effort to get a decree, simply confining herself to resisting his application. Judge R. B. Dreibelbiss is her attorney.

No New Trial for Miller.

Prosecutor A. E. Thomas and Deputy Harry Hilgemann are back from Auburn where Judge Best yesterday denied a motion for a new trial in the case of Herman Miller. The usual time was given for filing a bill of exceptions and the prisoner will probably be taken to Michigan City tomorrow to begin his term for manslaughter. Judge R. K. Erwin, who made the motion, is confident of another victory in the upper court.

Threatened to Kill Them.

Ollie G. Finly has filed a suit for divorce against Ben C. Finly in which she charges that he threatened to kill her, their daughter and himself. She also says he slapped her, threatened to strike her with a poker and accused her of infidelity. They live at 205 Grand street, and H. I. Smith is her attorney.

Withdrew the Complaint.

A complaint filed in the circuit court by Howard Smith against Grace Smith asking a decree of divorce was withdrawn from the files by Broen and Morris, the attorneys in the case.

KEEP EYE ON THE GLASS.

Judge Advises Farmer to Be More Careful the Next Time.

Frank France, a farmer who insisted that somebody put something in his beer that made him run amuck on the streets with his big wagon and jam the pole into the side of a street car, was fined $1 and costs in the city court for public intoxication. The judge advised him not to take his eyes off the next glass of beer he drinks to insure that he will not be doped.

Mike Lafferty and John Driscoll were fined $5 and costs each for drunkenness.

SALE IS APPROVED.

Sol A. Wood, referee in bankruptcy, today approved the sale of the Star Match company property at Elkhart to John W. Fieldhouse for a consideration of $4,300. It is said that in all probability a new company will be organized and the plant, which was destroyed by fire, rebuilt. Elkhart men interested in the case who were in the city today were G. R. Sawyer, Edward B. Zigler and E. A. Skinner, attorneys, and P. T. Longworth, a business man.

The Elks are removing the carnival floats recently purchased from the Mystic Shrine from the east car barns and storing them in a building at Centlivre park and in the Gruber foundry building.

UNION DEMANDING RECOGNITION NOW

Rock Upon Which Prospect of Peace in Express Strike May Split.

DO NOT OBJECT TO OPEN SHOP PLAN

Talk of General Strike in the Country if Peace Move Fails.

New York, Nov. 4.—Union recognition, the rock on which it was apprehended the peace movement in the express strike might split, today appeared to be a stumbling block in the way of effective preliminary negotiations between companies and men. Two of the companies still held out against the treating with the strikers except as former employes.

The men declared that while they do not demand a "closed shop" they must insist upon recognition of their organization. This state of affairs has brought the situation to a renewed deadlock and the outlook for peace, which was so promising yesterday, seemed decidedly poor today.

Steps to hamper the companies in the use of strike-breakers have been taken by the strikers' leaders in invoking an old ordinance providing all express drivers must be licensed.

It is declared none of the men who have succeeded strikers as drivers of the companies' teams have secured licenses.

Talk of General Strike.

Talk of a general strike throughout the country was revived today when it was seen the negotiations for a settlement were at a standstill. Daniel Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said he had sent out word to general organizers all over the country to organize thoroughly and be prepared for a general strike if one were deemed necessary. He declared, however, he was here in the interest of peace and did not care to commit himself on the general strike proposition.

BOARD STOPPED THE WORK ON HOME AVENUE

Street Car Company Checked Under Threat—News of City Hall.

Member Henry Hilgemann, of the board of public works stopped work at Home and South Wayne avenues this morning where the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company is trying to take out a sharp curve but he was forced to threaten the men with arrest before he accomplished his purpose.

There is a reserve curve at the point and a sharp one and the company sought to remedy this. Property owners contend that it brings the tracks too near the curb and made a complain. There will be no more work done until the matter is adjusted.

Gas Company in Way.

The gas company was in the way of the contractor this morning and there was no chance to continue laying sidewalk on the west side of the north approach to the Calhoun street tunnel.

The company has been delayed by the fact that braces used to support the concrete walls put in by the Pennsylvania company were in the way and were not removed until yesterday.

Board of Works.

Allen Martin's second application for a sewer tapper's license was refused by the board of public works last night. The board said he had violated the rules and forfeited any claim to recognition.

Assessment rolls for paving Calhoun street were approved.

Contractor Tripoer has notified the board that the Pontiac pavement has been completed and the assessment rolls were ordered.

A petition for widening Packard avenue from twenty-five to fifty feet was received.

O. F. Menefee has notified the board of the completion of the sidewalks on Suttenfield street and assessment rolls were ordered.

COLONEL ADMITS MAY GET BACKSET

WILL BE UP AND AT 'EM AGAIN

Roosevelt Begins Campaign in Hawkeye State to Large Crowd.

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 4.—Several thousand persons listened to Theodore Roosevelt here today when he made his first speech in Iowa for Charles Grilk, republican candidate for congress. Colonel Roosevelt's welcome was cordial, but with no marked degree of enthusiasm.

Colonel Roosevelt reached Davenport at 2:30 a. m. and remained in his car until 8 o'clock when he went to the home of Miss Alice French for breakfast. A small crowd at the station cheered him as he appeared. After breakfast he drove to Central park to make his first speech.

Colonel Roosevelt spoke from the band stand. More than an hour before the time for his arrival people began to gather and when he reached the park he was greeted by a large crowd. Representative A. F. Dawson, of Preston, made the opening speech.

Party is Coming Together.

"After all the turmoil," said Colonel Roosevelt, "the republican party is coming together on a sane and progressive platform, while our opponents are utterly divided.

"The official leadership of the democratic party," Colonel Roosevelt continued "is either absolutely reactionary, as is the case in New York, Connecticut, Missouri and in many states, or else it is purposeless and vacillating."

He took up the tariff, repeating the argument he has made in several states on that issue. He said the republican principle of protection had been approved by the country, but the method of adjusting the tariff had been shown to be bad. He explained and endorsed the tariff commission plan.

Admits Prospect of Defeat.

"We're in this fight to fight to a finish," continued Colonel Roosevelt "We don't care whether there are temporary checks. I don't think we will be defeated this year, but if we are we will fight on until Appomattox succeeds Bull Run. If we are beaten this time we will win next time."

The colonel referred to the political situation in his own state, reading the circular sent out by the Tammany Hall campaign committee appealing for funds "to defeat the wild doctrines of Roosevelt."

He said Tammany Hall and Wall street had formed a corrupt alliance, but they could not defeat the republican policies by fair argument, or by any method other than by a large expenditure of money.

Explains New Nationalism.

The colonel explained his doctrine of "new nationalism," giving his usual definition of it as the application to new conditions of the old moralities. He again expressed his disagreement with the supreme court in the "bake shop" case, and his criticism of former Judge Simeon Baldwin, democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut, for his decision against the workingmen's compensation act.

Colonel Roosevelt explained all he sought was an equal opportunity for every man. "My opponents call that socialism," he said, "but it is the antidote of socialism."

FLEEING WOMAN IS KICKED TO HER DEATH

Plunges from Third Story Window During Fire in in New York.

New York, Nov. 4.—One woman was killed, several persons were injured and there were numerous narrow escapes in fires in various sections of the city today.

Mrs. Rebecca Acnock, the woman killed, is declared by witnesses to have been kicked from a third floor fire escape while she was fleeing with her husband and children from a fire set by an incendiary in the Clinton street tenement in which they lived. The woman's assailant is unidentified. Another woman fell from the rear fire escape and was severely hurt. The building was badly damaged.

In a fire in a West One Hundred and Thirty-first street apartment house policemen carried most of the panic-stricken occupants clad only in their nightclothes down the fire escapes. One woman was badly injured by a fall from the first story platform.

Several firemen were injured by flying glass and brick following an explosion of acid tanks during a fire in a loft building at 27-31 Bleecker street. Chief Croker estimated the damage at $100,000.

L. M. Johnson has been called to Marion by the death of his brother-in-law, Samuel Spencer. The deceased lived in Fort Wayne about twenty-five years ago.

ABSOLUTISM OF CENTURIES DYING

Decree Convoking Imperial Parliament for China Has Been Issued.

TEEMING MILLIONS TO BE LIFTED UP

Pekin, Oct. 4.—An official decree was issued today announcing that an imperial parliament, the first in the history of China, would be convoked in 1913.

This is a concession on the part of thethrone to the demands of the recently constituted senate and delegations of the provincial assemblies, which recently memoralized the government in behalf of the early constitution of a representative legislative body. The police went from house to house informing the occupants of the edict. Presently the dragon banner and paper lanterns appeared above every door. Beyond this there was no public manifestation over the news.

TALK TO AUDIENCE OF 1,000 AT GARRETT

Warm Greeting for Both Governor Marshall and Mr. Cline.

[Special to The Sentinel.]

Kendallville, Ind., Nov. 4.—Starting the farewell campaign tour in the Twelfth district at Garrett this morning, Governor Marshall and Congressman Cline addressed an audience of fully 1,000 people at Garrett at 11 o'clock today, and each was given a very warm greeting.

The speaking was from a platform erected in front of the Hotel Broughton, and E. M. McKennan, democratic nominee for representative in DeKalb county, prosided, while the Auburn band furnished music for the occasion. In his address Governor Marshall urged the election of a democratic legislature and the democratic state ticket, declaring that with democratic officials competely in charge of the state government he could pledge an administration along lines of genuine reform reducing at the same time the expenses of government.

Two automobiles from Kendallville were on hand to take the governor and his party to that city without delay. Fred Hess in his car carried Governor Marshall, with T. A. Redmond and John T. Stahl, the latter the democratic nominee for representative in Noble county. C. M. Chase, of Kendallville, drove the auto which carried Congressman Cline, District Chairman Hoffman, Fred France and Claude Bowers, of Huntington, to Kendallville.

At the southern edge of this city the party was met by an escort of Kendallville democrats and driven to the Reyher hotel. Here T. A. Redmond presided, and both Governor Marshall and Congressman Cline addressed a big crowd from the veranda of the Reyher hotel. At 2 o'clock Governor Marshall delivered his principal address at the Boyer opera house.

REACH FORT WAYNE TONIGHT.

Hupmobile Drivers Leave Hicksville at 3 O'Clock.

The delegation of Hupmobile drivers en route from Detroit to this city made stops at a number of points, resulting in a disarrangement of the running schedule. The cavalcade left Hicksville at 3 o'clock this afternoon and will arrive in Fort Wayne early this evening. A party of Fort Wayne automobilists went to Maysville to meet them and escort them to this city.

OLD FORT HOMING CLUB.

The Old Fort Homing club held its annual election last night, when it selected the following officers to serve for the year 1911: President, Henry Beach; vice president, William Keyser; secretary and treasurer, Roy Eggeman; race recorder, A. I. Rondot; race committee, A. I. Rondot, Fred Bosselmeier and Earl Menefee. The meeting was well attended and the interest displayed presaged a very successful season in 1911. Six new names were added to the membership rolls last night and an amusing and interesting feature of the gathering was the talk on "Which is the Most useful Bird, a Pigeon or a Duck?" Mr. Rondot was the chief speaker, favoring the duck, but the sentiment of the others favored the pigeon. The meeting closed with a banquet.

PRINCE HATZFELD DEAD.

London, Nov. 4.—Prince Francis Hatzfeld-Wildenburg died here today. The prince was born in Hesse-Nassau in 1853. On Oct. 28, 1880, in London, he married Clare Huntington, daughter of the late Collis P. Huntington.

Funeral services for Albert, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Alter, were held this morning from St. Mary's Catholic church and were very largely attended. Sympathizing friends completely filled the large auditorium of the church.

OLD BOREAS GETS AN EARLY START

PREMATURE BREATH OF WINTER IS FELT

New York, Nov. 4.—A storm of midwinter intensity which came booming up the Atlantic coast last night, bringing with it sharp gales and heavy falls of snow and rain, left today a broad trail of broken wire communication along the seaboard. Telegraph companies were beset with difficulties in all directions.

The storm was apparently severest between Baltimore and Washington, all wires being down between those cities. Early communication with Chicago was obtained by way of Boston, thence to the west. Communication with eastern points was affected by the storm which brought down the snow coated wires. New York state felt the storm and wires worked poorly. Broken wire communication affected some of the railroads and trains from distant points were in some cases far behind their schedules.

Five steamships due at quarantine this morning were still unreported at 9:50. The steamers are evidently detained by the high gales and mountainous seas.

A steamer believed to be a storm victim was reported anchored off Sandy Hook in a disabled condition. She is the French steamer Honduras, from New Orleans, Oct. 23, for Dunkirk and Havre, and presumably made this port for refuge in her crippled state and to effect repairs.

FIERCE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—The northeast gale which came in from the ocean yesterday developed during the night into one of the worst November storms in years. In the mountain districts of Pennsylvania snow fell to the depth of twelve inches and in some places drifted badly. Railroad and trolley service in these sections is impeded.

The storm was accompanied by a high wind, which played havoc with telegraph and telephone wires.

Part of the anthracite coal region is snow bound. At Delano, one of the highest points in the region and at Frackville, more than a foot of snow fell and drifted in places to three feet.

Trolley service was maintained with difficulty and the Pennsylvania railroad was obliged to use the tracks of the Philadelphia and Reading railway company, because of the heavy drifts.

Business of all kinds in Schuylkill county was practically at a standstill, the storm having caught the region entirely unawares. Harrisburg, Lancaster, York, Williamsport and other points west of Philadelphia are cut off from all wire communication.

SNOW THROUGHOUT MARYLAND

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—Last night's storm, which played such havoc at the aviation field, caused serious interruption to telegraph and telephone service. The long distance telephone companies reported no communication in any direction.

This forenoon the storm showed signs of abatement, although a mixture of snow and rain was still falling and a strong northeast wind was blowing. The snow fall, which was the first of the winter, was general throughout Maryland.

EIGHTEEN INCHES OF SNOW.

NO FLYING TODAY.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—Col. J. H. Joyce, chairman of the committee that is promoting the Baltimore aviation meeting, announced today that the meet would continue. He declared that the reports of the damage to the aeroplanes by last night's storm were greatly exaggerated. There will be no flights today.

Miss Violet Coil entertained a number of friends at a masquerade party at her home at 2220 Smith street, on Monday evening. The games played were of the kind appropriate to the night and a luncheon was another enjoyed feature of the party. Prizes in games were won by Misses Hazel Spore and Anna Chandler. Other guests were Misses Cecile Ake, Marie Winebrenner, Mary Cartwright, Maud Nipper, Florence Kennedy, Leta Morton, Mildred Coil, Mrs. W. H. Coil and Messrs. Preston Ake, Henry Hoffman, Fred Wesloe, Joe Winebrenner, Mahlon Morton and Herschel Coil.

DEATH COMES AS RESULT OF BURNS

Mrs. Nicholas Petgen Dies After Ten Days of Suffering.

UNDER UNUSUALLY SAD CIRCUMSTANCE

While Demented, Woman Had Set Fire to Her Own Clothing.

Mrs. Addie Petgen, wife of Nicholas Petgen, a city patrolman, died at 3 o'clock Friday morning at the family home, 3530 Hanna street, as the result of burns sustained ten days ago. Mrs. Petgen was 52 years of age.

Unusually sad circumstances surround the case. Since February last Mrs. Petgen had been suffering from dementia, and with mind beclouded ten days ago she escaped the watchfulness of attendance, made her way to the barn on the Petgen premises and set fire to the clothing she was wearing. Before friends could reach her and extinguish the flames Mrs. Petgen was seriously burned, her hands and almost the entire left side of the body being involved.

With her clothing aflame the unfortunate woman had run from the building out into the yard, and here the flames were smothered and the injured woman assisted into the house and physicians summoned. Despite the extensive nature of the burns, it was at first believed that Mrs. Petgen would survive, though now it seems a miracle that death was so long deferred. During the long months of her mental infirmity Mrs. Petgen had been given every possible care and attention, and in addition to providing a nurse the devoted husband had taken leave of absence from his duties as patrolman much of the time in order to assist in caring for his wife.

Mrs. Petgen was born in Allen county and her entire life had been spent here. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church and is survived by the husband, three brothers and three sisters. The brothers are Frederick, Frank and Joseph Aubrey, and the sisters Mrs. J. H. Hartman, Mrs. Budd Slater and Mrs. G. W. Sarrazelli, all of this city.

MICHIGAN CANCELS THE GAME WITH NOTRE DAME

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—The Michigan-Notre Dame football game, scheduled for tomorrow, was cancelled today.

The sale of seats for the game was stopped this morning and it was expected that later in the day definite announcement would be made that the game had been called off.

The board of control of athletics at the University of Michigan this afternoon cancelled the game. Notre Dame insisted upon using Philbrook and Dimmick and Michigan refused to go on with the arrangements for the game if these two players, whose eligibility has been challenged, were to be in the line up.

It is understood here that the cancelling of tomorrow's game also means the ending of all athletic relations between the University of Michigan and Notre Dame.

The official statement given out by the board of control says:

"Messrs. Philbrook and Dimmick, after competing five years in intercollegiate athletics in Nnorthwestern college, and being barred from further competition there, have come to Notre Dame and have already competed two additional years at that institution. The intercollegiate conference has officially decided that these players were ineligible to compete in the conference meet of 1910 and disallowed the points won by them."

THINK MOVE UNCALLED FOR.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 4.—A letter from the University of Michigan football authorities protesting the eligibility of Dimmick, Philbrook and Mathews, three star Notre Dame football players, was received this morning by the Notre Dame board of athletic control. The protest is considered uncalled for by the Notre Dame officials.

It is claimed that two players on the list sent by the University of Michigan have completed four years in college athletics at a recognized school, but no action has been taken in the matter. No word has been received at Notre Dame that the game has been called off further than that given by the Associated Press.

CLASS OF 100 GETS DEGREES UNDER NEW RITUAL

Ladies of the Maccabees Exemplify Latest Ceremonial.

Approximately one hundred candidates from Fort Wayne and surrounding cities received the degrees of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World under the new ritualistic ceremony of that order in the district rally held in Fort Wayne today. It was the first time the new work was ever conferred in this city.

There is an attendance of several hundred ladies at the district convention held in the Lau building, the largest delegations being from Huntington, which is represented by 53 members; Bluffton, by 38, and Auburn, by 32. Other cities in the list are Peru, Wabash, Laketon, Columbia City, Angola, Wanatah, Warren, Logansport Kendallville, North Manchester Garrett and Butler.

School of Instruction.

The morning session today was given over to a school of instruction and the question box, conducted by Miss Bina M. West, of Port Huron, Mich., supreme record keeper of the order. This afternoon Mad Anthony hive No. 27, Fort Wayne, had the opening ceremonies, the Garrett hive conducted the draping of the altar and the Bluffton hive was in charge of the draping of the charter.

Huntington hive conferred the first and second degrees, with Kendallville giving the third degree and Bluffton the special degree. The work is followed by a reception at the Grand dancing academy this evening.

The reception at the Anthony hotel Thursday evening was an extremely enjoyable event. The supreme officers, the commander and record keepers were in the receiving line, and Hive No. 6 presented floral offerings to the state commander, Mrs. Grace Meredith, Miss West, the supreme record keeper, the deputy commander, Mrs. Sarah M. Elliott, Mrs. Cella S. Krall, commander of Fort Wayne hive, and Dr. Harriett Stemen Macbeth. The presentation was prettily done by Little Miss Violet Reinewald. Miss West spoke briefly during the evening. Miss Barnhill gave a number of readings, and the musical program was contributed by Mrs. Macbeth, Mrs. Wolf, Miss Leah Underwood and Miss Helen Fox and Arthur Richards. The committee in charge included Mrs. Cella S. Krall, Mrs. Katherine Reinewald, Mrs. Charles Fox, Mrs. Harriett Macbeth and Mrs. Mary Fisher.

Active in the Order.

Mrs. Grace Meredith, of Wabash, state commander of the Ladies of the Maccabees, is also third supreme trustee of the order, and has long been active in its councils. Her energy, her good judgment and her clear perception have been of incalculable value to the organization.

Mrs. Elliott is the deputy supreme commander of the fraternity, and has been at work for some time in Fort Wayne and surroundings in the interest of the Ladies of the Maccabees. It is largely through Mrs. Elliott's efforts that the big class of candidates was secured for admission at the Fort Wayne meeting.

NOT REPRESENTING THE B. OF R. T.

PRESIDENT FERGUSON RESENTS IMPUDENT ASSUMPTION.

To the Public:

Owing to the fact that members of our organization have been taking an active part in the present political campaign, and have been spreading the impression that they are representing our organization in so doing, I feel called upon to make this statement on behalf of Fort Wayne lodge No. 136, B. R. T. We are not a political organization and believe that our work in the interest of the workingmen of this community can best be carried on by not taking any part in this campaign. We want it distinctly understood that our organization is not interested in furthering the interests of either political party, and that any man who is engaged in soliciting votes in favor of either party or of any candidate in this campaign does so as an individual and not as a representative of our organization.

W. E. FERGUSON,
President of B. of R. T. No. 136.

In order to demonstrate the utility of electric stoves for household use, a dinner was recently given in Chicago which was cooked on an electric stove adapted for a family of eight. However, eighteen persons were served, showing that the family range would be of ample capacity to meet all requirements of special dinners. The dinner consisted of consomme, roast beef, lima beans, potatoes, short cake and coffee, and the cooking occupied two hours, with an electrical expenditure of 2,310 watt hours. The cost of the cooking, at the prevailing rate for current, was about 23 cents. In the cooking the fireless cooker principle was employed to a certain extent, the food in each case being subjected to a maximum heat for a short time, after which the current was cut off, or at least greatly reduced, so that the heat absorbed would permeate the food and cook it.—Scientific American.

Constipated all His Life Now Cured—Trial Free

One of the most harrassing of troubles, though fortunately not fatal, is constipation, and millions of people suffer with it from infancy to old age. Its cause may be traced to any one of a dozen different circumstances of diet, environment and even birth.

Millions are practically born with constipation. Had they used intelligent methods at the beginning perhaps they would have found relief, but they had the usual misfortune of bad advice. They tried dieting, stewed fruits, then laxative waters, then pills and various other cathartics, and so in the end made matters worse. But there is still hope, even for the seemingly hopeless.

Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It has been on the market for many years and is as staple in the households of those who know its value as salt and sugar. It is a liquid laxative-tonic that you can buy of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size. But if you prefer to learn its value personally before buying, then send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly send you a free sample.

It is without doubt the best laxative for constipation that you can find, and in every way the best remedy for that and headaches due to constipation, indigestion or dyspepsia, heartburn, drowsiness after eating, gas on the stomach, billousness and similar troubles. It is a mild, gentle remedy free from griping and bad taste. Children take to it readily. It is a standby in the homes of Mr. George W. Zimmerman, of 1617 N. 6th St., Harrisburg, Pa., Robert Atkinson, Sr., of Cuba, Ill., and thousands of others.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

TRIMMED HER CORN AND LOST HER LEG

Amputation of Toe First Made Necessary and Then the Leg at the Knee.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 4.—Amputation of the left leg of Mrs. George Beeching, of Union township, has been found necessary as a result of infection following the trimming of a corn and she was removed to the local hospital for the surgical work. Mrs. Beeching lives near the Whipporwill school house in Union township. For some time a corn on the small toe of her left foot had caused her trouble. She suffered from a disease in which the arterics harden and naturally her feet were affected first. Gangrene set in and it was necessary to remove the toe. Heroic measures were adopted to check the infection, but they were unsuccessful and after a consultation it was decided to remove the legt at the knee. Mrs. Beeching is forty-nine years of age and her condition has been a serious one for some time.

At this meeting, among other things, will be discussed the organization of a brotherhood, and it seems very likely that such an organization will be perfected.

BIG BUNCH OF CATTLE.

Shipped Into Bluffton From a Kansas Farm.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 4.—One of the largest and finest bunches of cattle ever brought into this city was shipped yesterday over the L. E. & W. from Kansas City, Mo. The cattle, which filled seven large cars, number 219 head, four of the cars going to John Hogg and the other three cars to Hamer McKinney.

The cattle will be taken to the farm of Mr. Hogg in Jay county and will be kept there for about three months when they will be sold on the market or to local stock buyers. The cattle were bought from a large farm in Kansas and were purchased as an investment.

GARRETT DENTIST IS SUED FOR $500

Case Grows Out of the Making of Set of False Teeth and Garnishee Suit.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 4.—All on account of a set of false teeth and the treatment of decayed natural teeth, Charles J. Bryant, of Garrett, has filed a damage suit in the DeKalb circuit court, demanding judgment in the sum of $500 from Dr. Dale Beechler, a dentists of that city.

In his complaint Mr. Bryant says he employed the doctor to make a set of teeth for Mrs. Bryant at a cost of $24 and that the treament given her cost an extra $24, totalling $48. The bill, the plaintiff declares, was exorbitant, $14 being reasonable inasmuch as the teeth were worthless to his wife, but that he paid $19.50.

Mr. Bryant is an employe of the B. & O. in the shops at Garrett, and he has less than $600 of property of all kinds and says his wages are exempt by the laws of Indiana from attachment and garnishment upon contract debts.

In view of these facts the plaintiff says the doctor represented to one H. B. Sybold, of Wheeling, West Virginia, that he had a valid claim of $48 against Bryant for the purpose of having Sybold garnishee his wages, all of which was done, and rather than adding the expense of going to West Virginia to defend himself he released $48 of his wages.

Because of this "false and fraudulent representation" to the West Virginia claim agent and the "malicious prosecution" Mr. Bryant demands damages.

Those who enjoyed the treat were Henry Hite, John Bowers, John Niblick, French Quinn, W. J.Vesey and son, Dick, of Fort Wayne, and all of the employes of the Old Adams County bank.

Southwick has 30,000 bushels of onions in his warehouse and the Campbell warehouse has an equal quantity. At present yellow onions are selling at forty to fifty cents a bushel while the whites are bringing a cent a pound. This is considered a good price for this time of the year.

The Root Juice Sensation Growing

Wonderful things are happening here these days. Many people that suffered with chronic troubles for years, and had lost all hope of ever seeing another well day, have been entirely cured by the use of a few bottles of the new remedy that was introduced by the scientist to the people of this community, and as the remedy has cured so many of this locality, the extraordinary sales of it do not diminish, but continue on the increase. We hear that druggists all over the state, that have the agency for the wonderful medicine, say they never saw anything like it, as it gives almost universal satisfaction, and makes so many cures that are positively wonderful. Among the many recent cures the great remedy has made were some that even our best doctors thought were beyond help. The remedy seems to soothe, heal and tone every organ of the body. Its soothing, healing and tonic effect on the stomach, bowels, bladder liver and kidneys has been experienced by so many of this locality that it is useless to publish names, as cures have been made in almost every neighborhood. The people at Bradley Bros. drug store, 627 Calhoun street, are glad to tell all callers of the wonderful merits of Root Juice.

DIABETES

In people of sixty and over results are quite uniform, probably nine-tenths recovering. While at fifty and over a large majority of all cases yield to the treatment, below fifty and approaching forty the disease gets more stubborn, and between thirty and forty the percentage is not high—probably not much over half yielding.

Under thirty the percentage is less and in children have been very low and most of those were obtained with the aid of skilled physicians forcing nutrition, with alkaline treatment to prevent formation of acetones.

The new emollient treatment is known as Fulton's Diabetic Compound. It can be had in Fort Wayne at the D. & N. Pharmacy, 624 Calhoun St.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Always state age. Literature mailed free. Jno. J. Fulton Co., 645 Battery St., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

AS TO POSTMASTER HANNA.

The postmastership in this city has become suddenly an interjected issue of the local political campaign. In what degree it may have estimation as a real issue, to what extent it is a cause likely to be weighted with consequence, we do not know; but we believe and certainly we hope that in the interest of the newer and better school of politics, no less than in the interest of the public service, it is no issue at all.

The people of Fort Wayne are thoroughly satisfied with the administration of the postoffice in this city and will be found upon any occasion for expression of their sentiments almost unanimous against any change. For almost five years Mr. Robert B. Hanna has served this city as postmaster. His administration has been marked by a continuous progress in efficiency and enlargement of the postal service here. The local postoffice force has never been directed with better intelligence, the public has never been so well served, the employes from lowest to highest have never exerted themselves with greater punctuality or more mindful courtesy to render satisfaction to patrons of the postoffice than has been and is true under Postmaster Hanna. The local postoffice ranks among the first half score in the entire United States for efficiency of service and care of administration in all departments.

The general expectation all along has been, and never was it more so than now, that Postmaster Hanna will be recommended without question for reappointment. No reason that can rest in sound judgment, concern for the public interest, progress of the civil service or even in political advantage may be found for making or considering any change. We do not believe that Senator Beveridge, who is vested with the party authority for recommending an appointment to the Fort Wayne postoffice, can have in his serious consideration any thought of doing what would be resented by all the business interests and practically the entire people of Fort Wayne. We do not believe he has or has had it in mind to do a thing that would so instantly and completely belie all he claims to uphold and all he is allowed the merit of upholding in the cause of better politics and progressiveness in government. We do not believe he has any thought of slipping backward to the old and pernicious order of partisan things and making of the Fort Wayne postoffice a dirty bit of spoil to be huckstered about for what he may be able to get for it. We do not believe in the probability of any of these things because we cannot believe of Senator Beveridge any such species of political degeneracy as the truth of these things would imply.

We believe that he would have spared himself and his sincere supporters no little embarrassment had he disposed of this postoffice matter here some months ago as the people of Fort Wayne, without regard to partisan connections, would have him dispose of it and as we believe in his own time he will at length discharge this duty to the public welfare. But whatever his reasons for delay we cannot on any ground constrain ourselves to belief that he means to repudiate a man whose desert is a matter of common admission, whose reappointment is the object of unanimous expectation and whose rejection, under all the circumstances as they are, would simply mean to prostitute the postoffice here to base uses as spoil.

Colonel Brady is the name of a warrior who contributes another explanation to the several purposed to account for the blowing up of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor twelve years ago last February. He says a Cuban did the job and that it was a fanatical adventure designed to force the hand of the United States against Spain. It is of minor consequence that the war department discounts Colonel Brady as a colonel and that Admiral Wainwright brands his story as a myth. If the man with the job of raising the Maine ever gets through with it perhaps it may be definitely told just how the ill-fated warship came to her doom. It has been the shame of the United States for a dozen years that the old hulk was allowed to rot in the ooze of Havana harbor with no effort made to do what is dictated by national honor, self-respect and dignity, not to speak of any considerations of humanity for the scores of bodies still in the wreck. Colonel Brady's story answers as well as any other until tangible proofs of the facts are had by the raising of the wreck.

Society is taking a hand in the garment workers' strike and the attendant riots in Chicago. That is all right and all well enough for society and not bad for the strikers, but it will get those girls and women a lot more if the concerns that sweat and starve them are made to feel that indignation and sympathy can be made to go farther and hit harder. It was once tried with the sweat shops and it worked a deal of good.

Democratic candidate for congress in New York city has distributed five hundred cats in his district to circulate his plea for votes. Each voter who gets a cat will quietly drop puss inside the hall of some fellow voter and so on ad infinitum. The republican opponent ought to have it made just about unanimous for him.

If autumn can keep on shouldering off the advance of winter the street paving, the tunnel work and other public projects long under way and still unfinished will stand a good chance of completion by New Year's sunrise without putting that event back any.

Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Massachusetts—all saved by the colonel, if they are to be saved. If he contrives to pull the home state through, he will be content, believe us.

A CARD FROM MR. FERGUSON.

Nov. 3, 1910.

To the Public:

Owing to the fact that a member of our organization has been taking an active part in the present political campaign, and has been spreading the impression that he is representing our organization in so doing, I feel called upon to make this statement on behalf of the Fort Wayne lodge, No. 136, B. of R. T.: We are not a political organization and believe that our work in the interest of the workingmen of this community can best be carried on by not taking any part in this campaign. We want it distinctly understood that our organization is not interested in furthering the interests of either political party, and that any man who is engaged in soliciting votes in favor of either party or of any candidate in this campaign does so as an individual, and not as a representative of our organization.

FILIPINO DELEGATE RE-ELECTED

Manila, Nov. 4.—The assembly today unanimously re-elected Manuel Quezon delegate to congress. The assembly refused to elect Benito Legarde, whom the commission has named as the second congressional delegate. It is expected the assembly and the Philippine commission will be deadlocked on the matter of the representation at Washington, as it has been customary for each house to name one delegate.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF LABOR.

Argentina Settles Industrial Disputes Through That Medium.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Labor problems affording a parallel to conditions existing in the United States are being amicably adjusted in Argentina through the efforts of the national bureau of labor, according to a report from United States Consul General R. M. Bartleman, stationed at Buenos Ayres. Of the 214 strikes which occurred during the first quarter of 1910, involving 17,095 workmen, several of the disputes were settled by the immediate influence of the bureau.

Immigration statistics compiled by the bureau show Argentine's net gain for the first five months of this year to have been 34,394, which has been exceeded only twice within the last six years.

RIOTS IN BARCELONA.

Union Strikers Fire on Non-Union Workmen in Spanish City.

Barcelona, Nov. 4.—Union strikers fired upon non-union workers as the latter were leaving the factory last evening and wounded three.

The general strike at Sabadell is assuming a dangerous character. At a meeting of strikers at which inflammatory speeches were made, it was voted to march on Barcelona tomorrow.

Anarchistic literature urging a revolution is being distributed throughout Barcelona province. Many arrests have been made.

"Arcade Real Estate"

A property is worth what it will pay interest on, the standard of value the world over; there is no other standard, and the "Arcade rentals" will soon be $12,000 per annum, 6 per cent. on $200,000, from which a certain deduction must be made for ground rent.

The buildings are in excellent condition, good to stand twenty years longer, but of course will not stand that long because the rapid growth of Fort Wayne will compel, absolutely compel, the occupancy of such valuable ground ($3,000 per front foot some day) with a building of far greater capacity, an eight story dry goods department store, "The Arcade Grand." But for the present it pays best the way it is, a two story building with every room rented (and calls for more) the best income producer in this city, or any other city that I know of.

The east line of my west 60 feet of ground covers 15 feet of the 20 feet corridor north and south, which 15 feet will be amply wide as a frontage street for the present seven (7) stores to do business on, for twenty years to come, whereas the remaining 5 feet of the corridor belonging to the east 50 feet lot would not be wide enough for such a purpose by itself alone, a decided advantage adhering to my west 60 feet over the east 50, and which will probably insure a further renewal of the ground lease on the east 50, if desired, four years hence.

We've decided,
long since, the only thing for us to do with truth, is

Stick to it.

That's the truth!

Even at $15 you'll find it hard to equal our coats in the greys and browns of this season's styles.

That's more truth! There's plenty of reason for the beauty of our clothing and that's still another reason why they're worthy the careful dressers' consideration; that reason lies in the tailoring---the shape and life giving building processes by which they are made.

We never have seen better tailoring

EFFECTIVE WINTER BLOUSE.

By MRS. JANE FORD.

7 SIZES 32 TO 42 BUST

It is impossble to own too many separate waists, and this season "Dame Fashion" is kind to the home sewer, for blouses must be plain, no matter for what occasion.

Developed on these lines is the charming model shown here. And those who wish the pattern for it can get the design in six sizes, that run from thirty-two to forty-two inches bust measure.

The materials used in these waists are of all kinds of weaves, and may be secured for almost any price wished.

To construct this model from goods twenty-four inches wide, three and one-quarter yards will be needed, but of thirty-six inch fabric only two and one-eighth yards is required.

The yoke and collar should be of a contrasting weave, and for these three-eighths of a yard eighteen inches wide must be provided.

The waist portion of this garment is plain, with the exception of a tuck at each shoulder. These tucks are stitched full length in the back, but only yoke depth at the front. Shaped pieces of trimming extend from beneath the tuck at the shoulders, and at the sides of the yoke. A band of the same goods finishes the collar at the top, the edges of the cuffs and the girdle.

A waist in this model intended for afternoon use could be silver gray marquisette, draped over an ashes of rose silk lining. Green velvet embroidered in silver might be used as a trimming, and the yoke and collar of silver net laid over chiffon.

THE SIZE OF WOMEN'S HATS

A tendency to reduce the amount of trimming put on some of the shapes is making itself felt. This tells chiefly on the broad-brimmers for ordinary day wear, matinee and other smart hats continuing to exhibit an abundant supply. A large Breton, or clerical shape, in beaver or melusine is in high favor, only trimmed with a rosette ranging in size from a bun to a dinner plate. These are shown in the deep shades of most fashionable colors, particularly pheasant brown, dark blues, maujik greens and Comete violets.

Many of the bun rosettes are in clustered steel beads, their own color or else gilt or burnished. The latest idea is to work them with a design in relief for which some heraldic blazon is generally selected—a knight's helmet, for instance. Rather large ones that look like double dahlias are made of taffeta. A sunflower rosette has frequently a center made of dull gold lace frilled round with a ruffle of wired white lace, while some of the largest sizes are composed of shirred ruffles and pleatings of ribbon placed alternately. Where a small rosette is used it fastens back the brim on one side, whereas a large one is generally set against the crown. This shape of hat is also much worn in black velvet, when the rosette is generally white, very pretty ones being made entirely of white silk cord. A large single poppy is made of white velvet or white rabbit skin with a jet center, or a magnified edelweiss in white velvet will sometimes take the place of the rosette. Five or six of these poppies set around the crown make a very smart trimming for a black beaver.—The Millinery Trade Review.

Creamed Sweetbreads.

Drop the sweetbreads as soon as received in cold water. Change the water as needed until they are white; then place in a sauce pan with half teaspoonful of salt, a thin slice of onion and a tiny bit of mace; cover with boiling water and simmer very gently for half an hour. Drop them into cold water until chilled, when they are ready to prepare in any way.

To cream put in the chafing dish one tablespoonful each of butter and flour and work until mixed and bubbling. Slowly add a cupful of rich milk or thin cream, stirring until smoothly thickened. Drop in the sweetbreads—either whole or diced, cover, slip the hot water pan underneath and let simmer until the sweetbreads are thoroughly heated.

Measured Angel Cake.

Take one glassful of the whites of eggs, which will be nine or eleven according to size of eggs, add one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a pinch of salt. Beat until stiff enough so the dish can be turned upside down and the eggs will stay firm, then season. Stir together one cupful of flour and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, into this fold the eggs lightly, so lightly that particles of beaten eggs can be seen as the mixture is turned into the baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven until a nice light brown.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"WAY DOWN EAST" TONIGHT.

The success which has attended "Way Down East," as produced by William A. Brady, elaborated and staged by Jos. R. Grismer, would have been of a phenomenal nature under any circumstances, but considering the number of years the piece has been before the public, it is positively astonishing. Of course, it is true the plays modeled closely after nature, have a lease on life that is not characteristic of less faithfully drawn works, for while one may admire the complex situations and sharp wit of modern society comedy, it is the simple episode of heart penetrating power that is carried home and remembered.

The environment in which the characters of "Way Down East" live and move and have their being also, is of a nature to cause many a country-bred man and woman to mount the steed of memory, and go galloping through the years to the well-liked scenes of their childhood. The dooryard of the Squire's home on a summer's day, with a view of the rolling meadow lands, and of the road along which pass the various people of the drama, is tempting in its atmosphere of heartiness and hospitality; so too, the the "settin' room" and the kitchen in which Mrs. Bartlett's friends take refuge from a driving storm, and sit down to supper before a roaring fire.

"Polly of the Circus" Twice Saturday.

The mystic world of red wagons, clowns, peanuts and sawdust and the big tent of a circus will be seen in Frederic Thompson's production of "Polly of the Circus," which will be seen at the Majestic on Saturday afternoon and evening. While the play carries with it the atmosphere of the sawdust ring and its accessories, which is usually more or less prosaic and far from being romantic or sentimental, there has been woven into it by its author, Margaret Mayo, a touching romance of love which is forcibly and capably brought out.

There is an ideal heroine for a love affair, "Polly," the pet of the circus, and afterward the bride of a minister in a graceful and artistic manner. Polly is not a noisy, uncouth "circus lady," but is the portrayal of a refined and gentle young woman who, "shy" on education but rich in principle, is injured through a fall from her horse and becomes at the termination of a pretty little love affair, instead of a bareback rider, a helpmate for the parson, whose sympathy leads her into a parsonage and thence to a life which is spiritually sweet and happy. Mr. Thompson has provided an exceptionally strong cast of capable artists.

The Great Labor Play Coming in 3 Days.

Vaughan Glaser will be seen at the Majestic for three days, starting Monday with matinee Tuesday and Wednesday, in "The Man Between," by the well known author, Rupert Hughes. Last season, under the title of "The Bridge," Harrison Grey Fiske presented Guy Bates Post in this play, in the high prices houses. Owing to Mr. Post's contract with the New Theater company, he was obliged to give up the play, and Mr. Glaser was enabled to get the rights to it; also the entire production, which is one of the biggest that has recently been seen. One act shows the building of a giant cantilever bridge across a deep ravine. This scene is out of the ordinary run of stage mechanics.

Mr. Glaser will be seen in the role of John Stoddard, the builder of bridges and leader of class distinction. The chief interest centers in the romance; the love story of John Stoddard and Janet Van Nest, the engineer of the bridge, and the daughter of the president of the corporation which is building the giant structure. They stand wide apart in birth, breeding and social environment, but they have a common love for humanity. The staging is realistic in the extreme, but most effective of all is the bridge building scene, showing a big cantilever type of bridge in course of construction, with the workmen busy about and upon it. Mr. Glaser has, in John Stoddard, a part thoroughly suited to his temperament and style.

Reverse the wires of a coat hanger, making them curve upward instead of downward. (One can get wire and press it into shape if no hanger is available.) Make a long casing of satin ribbon and slip it over the wires until it is gathered neatly, then fasten with ribbons.

SEEKS TO DIVORCE PRIEST HUSBAND IN RENO

Brooklyn Woman in Nevada City to Allege Desertion and Failure.

Reno, Nev., Nov. 3.—The startling story of a Catholic priest's secret marriage and the thrilling events said to have followed when the heads of the Catholic church in America learned of the ceremony will be told in the local divorce courts some time next week, when an action, which will be entitled Ellen P. Hare against Louis T. Hare, will be heard.

It was under the name of Hare that the parties to the secret marriage were made man and wife. This was done in order to conceal the identity of the man, who a few years ago was a well known Catholic priest of Brooklyn.

The woman was Miss Ellen Haste, whose father was a prosperous butcher of Brooklyn, Hendrick Haste by name, who died twelve years ago. The love story of these people is strange almost beyond belief. Miss Haste was a member of the priest's church, inside the doors of which they first met.

Miss Haste refused to wed him at first, and they separated. One day she received a letter asking whether she would come to him or if she desired him to come to her. She consented to the first plan, and they were secretly married on the night of November 13, 1902, by the Rev. Frederick Mortimer, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church. The priest took the maiden name of his mother, and the Episcopal divine was unaware of his identity.

The two lived secretly together, but their wedding was discovered by the woman's brother, who came upon her unexpectedly in her apartments shortly after the birth of a child. Her brother never disclosed the secret.

Shortly after Mrs. Hare left New York. In May, 1904, their actual relations were disclosed by accident, and the Catholic church began a rigid investigation, under Bishop Charles E. McDonald's direction. The couple were separated by the church on May 14, "Hare" being compelled to go to Europe, where he was placed in the Trappist monastery in Ireland. After he was allowed to return to America and was stationed in a southern parish.

"Mrs. Hare" is a woman of forty years. She has been living quietly here with a private family since last April. She will sue for divorce on the grounds of desertion and failure to provide. She says she still loves her husband and believes he is at present in Brooklyn under the protection of fellow churchmen.

Asthma Cured

TWO MEN FROM OHIO TOWN PRAISE FORT WAYNE DOCTOR.

Two well known business men of Antwerp, O., Mr. Zeigler and Mr. Busby, are being treated for asthma by Dr. Wells, of this city. Both have been almost invalids for years, having bad coughs and so stopped up at night that they were unable to lie down much of the time. In two weeks they sleep like a log, feel well and breathe naturally, feel like prize fighters, as one of them expressed it. These are fair examples of all the other asthmatic patients taking treatment at Dr. Well's office. Those who are in doubt about the efficacy of this treatment are invited to call and see the patients taking treatment and learn for themselves the positive results to be derived from this treatment. It is curing up old cases of asthma after everything else has failed.

Chronic bronchial, catarrhal and throat affections are all benefited in a very short time. Electricity is the medium through which these cures are mainly effected, and those who are tired of drug medication should not fail to avail themselves of this treatment. Dr. Well's office is located at 229 East Berry street.

At Waukegan, Ill., a workingman having been informed that a sixth baby had arrived at his home, exclaimed, "Sufficient," and his neighbors, referring to his having given that name—sufficient—to the new arrival, credited him with originality. The incident resembles a case nearer home. A New York family was blessed with nine daughters, when the stork brought a tenth one. It was in the days when the slang term for an oft-told story was "a chestnut," and as the baby certainly came under that head she received the name, but for euphony's sake the French for the word was employed, and she was called Marron.—New York Tribune.

MAKING GOOD BOYS OF BAD

Teacher of Incorrigibles is Turning Rebellion Into Loyalty—How It is Done.

(New York World.)

Group into one class fifty boys, the worst the city can produce, and ask the average person what the result will be. Chances are their reply will closely coincide with General Sherman's terse definition of war.

Gather together fifty of Jersey City's most flagrant juvenile offenders and assemble them in Mrs. Bessie Clements' incorrigible class and ask her what will follow. She will unhesitatingly reply:

"In one month, unless all precedents are upset, I will return them to their original classes, each and every one a model pupil, and, better still, each my friend for life."

Many people might say this is an idle boast, but Mrs. Clements has demonstrated its literal truth time and time again to the board of education of Jersey City, the judge of the juvenile court and the probation officer. And, more to the point, she expects to keep on correcting incorrigibles, winning their friendship and dog-like devotion just as long as her strength holds out and she is able to cope with the little idlers who have been expelled from other schools and sent to her for reclamation.

But how does she do it? To this question she invariably replies, "By using common sense."

"Of course, every newcomer scouts my ability to tame him, and boastfully informs the older members of the class of his intentions to 'do' me.

"But had I to start out with a class of fifty recruits without a single old pupil among them, my work today would be but a repetition of that I had the first year here. Words fail when I attempt to tell you what that first year was. I won my way to the ascendency by sheer force. More than one boy openly attacked me, and it was necessary to lick him, and do it before the eyes of the entire class. Such drastic measures are rarely necessary now, but tire class' respect for its teacher."

Fine Gymnasium in Yard.

When the visitor drops in on Mrs. Clements' "incorrigibles" he is taken to the school yard first. There the boys are taken when they become restive in class and evince signs of losing interest in the inside work. All the paraphernalia of a well equipped gymnasium is at hand, and all was "begged" by Mrs. Clements. When a boy falls behind in his class work he is not kept in. He is allowed to go to the yard with his classmates, but he is not permitted to participate in any of the games or sports. This is the most severe punishment that can be inflicted.

Seeing the other boys leaping, pitching and boxing, the sluggard sits by heartbroken, and with few exceptions he approaches the teacher and tells her he sees the error of his ways, and if forgiven this once he will not offend again.

The boxing is conducted along scientific lines, and the best boxer in the class is Miss Clements. She will "don the mitts" with the biggest and huskiest boy in her class, and she always "cleans up." There have been instances where a boy with the tendencies of a bully has been called into the yard in the middle of class hour and made to put on the gloves with his teacher. When he returned to class he was a sadder but wiser lad, for he invariably received the licking of his life. Mrs. Clements is always in perfect physical condition, for, as she puts it, "I have to be, for I never know what is going to happen.

"I am in reality teaching five grades and at the same time continuing the work which I conduct here along my own lines. This includes manual training, gymnastics and elocution. Some of my boys are born actors, and I shall be greatly surprised if their names are not emblazoned in glittering electric letters along the Great White Way some day."

Kind, Warm Hearted Woman.

History is practically demonstrated, and this is where the histrionic abilities of the little pupils are given full scope. When the class comes, for instance, to that chapter dealing with Columbus' discovery of America, all the parts are taken by the boys and the discovery is acted from start to finish. This is a popular play, for when the hostile Indians ambush and then charge the explorer and his little band, the Indians charge with all the zest and savagery of the "real thing."

That clause in history which treats of Paul Revere and his ride is another stirring drama which the "incorrigibles" never tire of acting. They make the rafters ring with their declamatory climaxes and at the conclusion of the play beg that it be repeated.

Beneath the stern exterior of this novel little teacher a warm, kind heart beats, and to this more than to anything else can be attributed her success with her boys. Some of these are sons of wealthy and influential parents; others, and the majority of them, come from the slums. Yet no partiality is shown.

"They are mischievous," said Mrs. Clements, "but I wouldn't give a snap of my finger for a boy who isn't. I don't care how bad he is when he comes to me. I will cure him and earn his undying gratitude at the same time."

Then she opened a drawer in her desk to show the motley array of trinkets, pressed flowers, pictures and what not she has carefully preserved.

"All these are presents from my boys. God love them! And I wouldn't part with a single thing in this desk for all the money in the world.

"If I could just run across some philanthropist who would give me moving picture machine and a farm to take my charges to in the summer months my cup of happiness would be full. For then I could have my boys with me all the year round and there would be no strayers from the fold."

McAleer Made Milan by Proper Kind of Treatment

Clyde Milan, the Washington American's great little outfielder, joined the club in Norfolk last March wondering whether Manager Jimmy McAleer was going to keep him on the club or let him out to the minors.

Two years ago Manager Cantillon spoiled one of the best outfielders in the business by his bulldog tactics, or, in other words, Cantillon got Milan's "goat" and really made the young man believe that he was not fit for the big leagues.

It all happened early in the 1909 season, when Milan, in one of the western games, was sliding to base and wrenched his ankle. Word was passed to Cantillon that Clyde had broken his leg, and the former remarked: "I wish he had broken both of 'em; he isn't any good."

This last statement got right back to Milan, and as the boy is keenly sensitive, he carried a small-sized grouch along with him during the remainder of the season. Consequently, the Washington club was not favored with Milan's best efforts.

Last March Milan was in none too amiable a frame of mind, and knowing little of Jimmy McAleer or his methods was wondering what would happen, figuring that McAleer would possibly use Cantillon's tactics and that he (Milan) was slated for an early berth with the minors.

Not so with McAleer, as Manager Jim during the last week of practice paid considerable attention to Milan, and frequently walked out to the ball park with Clyde. In cheering words he often said: "I know you've got it in you, my boy, and I am counting on you to do a lot for me this season."

All Milan needed was a little encouragement, and McAleer come across with the right stuff; incidentally he made one of the best outfielders in the league out of him.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Washington club last week, the gentlemen who control baseball in the capital decided that Milan's work during the season just closed deserved something more than their stamp of approval, and voted to send him a good-sized check in token of their appreciation.

The foregoing is only one sample of Manager McAleer's methods. He seemed to know just how to handle Milan, and that Milan delivered the goods is easily shown by the young man's record.

Great things are expected of Clyde next season.

YOUNG "JAKE" SCHAEFER

New York, Nov. 4.—The name of "Jake" Schaefer, who held so prominent a position in the world of billiards for years, may be destined to make more history in the sport. The fifteen year old son of the late "wizard" has come to this city to embark on his career as a balk line player, and at Maurice Daly's academy, in exhibitions with Ora Morningstar, will show just what he has inherited in the way of mastering the difficult game. Young "Jake" first started to play over in Paris when he was only seven years old, but never took up the game seriously until two and a half years ago, when his family moved to Denver. That he has learned a lot in the time that has intervened since then was shown yesterday in his practice. He has the same free, quick stroke that was characteristic of his father's style and is not a bit afraid to try almost anything. He said that he liked massé shots about the best of all and he gave some very pretty examples of this sort of execution.

MATTER OUT OF THE HANDS OF THE BOARD

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—While the Michigan board in control was in session ruling on the eligibility of Notre Dame players news was received of the action of the conference at Chicago in disqualifying Dimmick and Philbrook, so that the matter was practically taken out of the hands of the Wolverine authorities. As a result, the expected ultimatum to Notre Dame was not issued, and the board refused to divulge its decision.

"It is going to settle the whole matter," said Professor Goldbrook in making a brief statement expressing the tone of the board. "That Notre Dame will not play any men who are not eligible under their contract, which contains the rules of eligibility adopted by Michigan, including the three-year rule.

"Now that Notre Dame knows the facts of the men questioned it seems improbable that they will insist on using them against us," he continued.

"What will happen if these men appear in uniform and attempt to play?" he was asked.

"I can't say. I don't think it will come to that, though. I think Notre Dame will withdraw the men and the game will go off all right."

Inasmuch as the charges against Mathews are less certain, it is possible that Michigan will agree to compromise and let him take part.

TWO MEN ARE DISQUALIFIED.

Philbrook and Dimmick Are Declared to be Ineligible.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The University of Notre Dame has lost the honor that went with the winning of the western conference meet, held at Urbana on June 4 last. A finding by the conference committee that two of Notre Dame's point winners were ineligible has been made public. As a result Leland Stanford will be awarded first place and Notre Dame get fourth, probably to second. The inquiry was instituted at the request of the University of California.

The men whose points were thrown out are Dimmick and Philbrook, against whom Michigan had filed charges that they are ineligible to play in tomorrow's football game at Ann Arbor. The conference found them ineligible on the ground that they had competed three years before entering the Urbana meet. The two athletes had given the conference a true account of their previous athletic careers and their eligibility hinged on the standing of Whitman college at Walla Walla, Wash. At this school, the men had performed one year as freshmen and two years as preparatory students.

Fogel Would Like to Have Him

EVERS, CHICAGO SECOND BASE

New Orleans, Nov. 4.—Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia club, who is here in connection with a damage suit against the Western Union Telegraph company because a messenger boy ran over him with a bicycle, said that Johnny Evers, of the Cubs, would make a fine manager, and said that if he could get him he was going to make a try. He would not say that he was going to let Manager Dooin out as the result of Dooin's trade with Cincinnati, but left the impression that if he could get Evers or a man as good he would clinch the deal.

He said he had not been doing any talking about the trade with Cincinnati.

"I have never said whether I liked the deal or not," said Fogel, "but I do say that no employe can make any trades without my sanction. Baseball law covers that pretty clearly, and if baseball law does not then the common law does. If Mr. Herrmann has any trades to offer I am the one in authority to be consulted, and any trades with anybody else affecting my men do not go."

NAVIN SAYS HE HAS NO DEAL ON FOR JOHNSON

Sets at Rest Report That He Wants to Trade Cobb for Pitcher.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 4.—President Navin, of the Detroit baseball club has put a finish to all of the talk that has been made here about a possible trade of Ty Cobb and Walter Johnson.

"Every newspaper in Detroit insists on discussing this trade as though the two clubs were corresponding with each other about it," he said. "I want to say now that neither club has approached the other on this matter.

"Johnson, in my opinion," continued President Navin, "is the best pitcher in the country, and doubly valuable because he is so young a man. That is one reason why Washington would hardly think of trading him.

"From my angle I would not give up the great outfielder for a great pitcher, because any trifling injury may hurt a twirler's arm so he is gone for a season, while an outfielder, unless very badly hurt, seldom is out of any number of games during the year.

"I don't know how long I will be in baseball, but I never expect to be lucky enough to pick up another Cobb. So for that reason I am going to cling to him as long as he stays in the game, if I am still with the Detroit team.

"Regardless of all the talk of dissension and stories that Ty himself thinks a change would do him good, he is a Tiger fixture, and that no other club has anything that I will take in exchange for him."

The Detroit president says that he doubts that Washington would consider any offer for Johnson from any club. For that reason he would not broach a deal involving any of the players he would be willing to exchange. Washington, he says, could wire almost any cash price for Johnson and get a check in the return mail from this city.

Milan is another player for whom Detroit would give a big price either in cash or in exchange. Many Detroit fans place him next to [illegible] in value, though Speaker is a big favorite here.

They like Milan's hustling and fight, and figure that he would be a [illegible] money maker, just as Johnson was [illegible] a great winner, on a club that hits [illegible] and scores as often as the Tigers do.

DAYTON MAY LOSE CATCHER.

Chicago Said to Have Transferred Rohrer to Des Moines.

Dayton, O., Nov. 4.—Secretary Elmer Redelle has filed a protest against the transfer by the White Sox of Catcher W. U. Rohrer to the Des Moines club, of the Western league. The Dayton club bought Rohrer some time ago and paid a fancy price for him and is determined to have him if there is any base ball law that will permit it. The absence from Chicago of President Charles Comiskey has made it impossible for the local secretary to communicate with him.

Whats Did Not Have a Look in During the Entire Series.

At St. Mary's alleys the Home Builders had a romp in the series with the Whats and cleaned up three straight games in handy fashion. The losers went higher than 700 in only one of their games.

Tony Haas started the series with 223 but fell off in his second and third games and barely took the average from Rager. After won high individual score for the Whats with 159 and also got the average. The scores:

HENDRICKS LANDS KENWORTHY

Zanesville Pitcher Will Go to the Denver Club.

Jack Hendricks has landed another Central leaguer for his Denver team. President Ban Johnson's bulletin announces the release of Pitcher W. J. Kenworthy to Denver by the Boston Americans, and in Kenny Jack is getting a good man.

Kenny is not only a high class pitcher, but is one of the best all-around men that ever played in the Central league. He can hit, as a batting average of .310 in 87 games last year will attest, and with a seventh place club he won 22 and lost 17. He handled more fielding chances from the box than any other hurler in the league last year and also played the infield and outfield a good deal of the time.

He is a valuable man for Hendricks, and if he reports in time to get in shape next spring there is little likelihood of him coming back to the Central or any other league under class A. His failure to report in time lost him a chance at Columbus last spring. The Red Sox secured him by draft.

MAY GET COLLEGE TEAM.

Application has been made to the Friars' football team by Ohio Northern University, of Ada, O., for a game here on Thanksgiving and the date may be given to the students. Just now the club is putting all its energy into the preparation to meet Huntington on Sunday.

There was a time in England when government officially viewed the press as a hostile power, to be destroyed if possible—to be curbed at any cost. In 1633 Roger L'Estrange, "overseer of the press," brought out his "Considerations and Proposals in Order to the Regulation of the Press." He advocated the severest restrictions for authors and printers, as well as for "the letter-founders and the smiths and joiners that work upon the premises," and "the stitchers, binders, stationers, hawkers, mercury women, peddlers, ballad singers, posts, carriers, hackney coachmen, boatmen and mariners."

This year's vintage in Italy is expected to be very bad. In fact it has been estimated that the eleven million acres of vineyards throughout the country will not yield more than 103,293,214 tons of grapes, 45 per cent less than last year, and that consequently only 739,000,000 gallons of wine will be produced, as against 1,685,000,000 gallons produced in 1909. The wine production last year was exceptional and retail prices were so low that until May wine growers hardly derived any profit from them.

Young Football Giant a Comer

GEORGE E. S. BAYLESS.

George E. S. Bayless is a young giant football player on the Villa Nora eleven and Coach Fred Crolius, the old Dartmouth star, predicts a bright future for the clever youngster. Bayless is nineteen years of age, weighs 205 pounds and is a freshman. His home is at Baltimore. Last year he made position of fullback on the All-Baltimore Interscholastic team.

Sporting News in Tablets

Friends of Ad Wolgast say that he has practically agreed to meet Battling Nelson on the coast in February.

The fact that the meeting of the National association and the Central league will be held at the same time has given rise to talk of redistricting the territory.

Besides using more players than any club in the American association last season, Louisville worked twenty-one pitchers in regularly scheduled games.

Tired of being called the Stags, Raiders and Cravenettes, an effort is being made to get the fans to select a new name for the Grand Rapids team.

Jim Delehanty, Tiger's second sacker, is slowly recovering from a badly damaged leg, injured last September. He will be unable to use the limb for some time to come.

Jack Rowan isn't losing much sleep over his transfer to Philadelphia. "I'll go to Philadelphia and trim the Reds every time I face them," Rowan is credited with having said.

American league played seventy-two "extra inning" games in 1910, and the Nationals had fifty-four contests where more than nine rounds were required to decide the result.

Jack Lapp caught Jack Coombs in about twenty-seven victories during the regular American league season. That's why Coombs steadied down in the last game of the world's series. He had his kid battery partner behind the pan.

The longest major league game of the 1910 season was the 16-inning 1-1 game between Cleveland and Philadelphia on July 22. There were other 16-round contests, but all were decided in sixteen innings but the Nap-Athletic game.

The Giants handed Mathewson a $400 watch after he had won four games in the post-season series from the Highlanders. The Giants are an appreciative bunch, after all. It is seldom the players give anything away to anyone.

There is every likelihood that Joe Jackson, the outfielder the Naps secured from New Orleans, will be one of the sensations of the league next season. The former Athletic fielder played remarkable ball at the close of the season and in the series with Cincinnati.

Johnny McGraw hopes that the Rede-Phillies deal does not go through and that Dooin will not be the manager of the Phillies next year. Muggsy wants a good catcher for the Giants and likes the actions of Dooin well enough to take him if he can get him. So do a lot of other managers in the league.

Jack Barry and Ed Walsh live in Meriden, Conn., and instead of having only one celebrity now the town has two, and the fans of the city are kept busy doing honor to both of the famous players. Walsh has been the only notable citizen of the place up to this year, and Barry was a very jealous young man until he reached home this fall.

SUITS FOR MEN $15 and $18

BOWSER'S SUNDAY

MRS. BOWSER FINDS THEM.

They Were In Their Usual Place, but Bowser Had to Make Trouble—His Cussedness Prompts Him to Stay at Home—Makes Things Lively.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

On weekday mornings Mrs. Bowser doesn't have to wake Mr. Bowser from his morning nap over three times to get him out of bed, but on Sunday mornings it's different. She has to begin at 5 o'clock to get him roused out three hours later. He gets into such of his clothes as he can handily find to come down to breakfast, and he is about to find fault with the coffee, the rolls and all else when he suddenly thinks of a better thing and observes:

"Mrs. Bowser, I shall go to church this morning."

Mrs. Bowser turns pale. The bolt strikes home. She knows what his getting ready for church entails. She has been through the program. She makes no reply, however, and at the end of ten minutes Mr. Bowser guesses he won't go, after all.

Mrs. Bowser fetches a sigh of relief and says she has a headache and will remain at home with him. The words have hardly been spoken when he says:

"We will go to services, of course. I don't propose to allow our neighbors to class us among the heathen. It's an example we should show to the world, even if we are not professing Christians. I'll start about getting ready right away. I know I shall feel better all the week for going to church this morning."

Mrs. Bowser shakes her head in a doubtful way and wishes it were Monday morning. She loves to hear a good sermon, but does not love the home preliminaries. They are about to begin. Mr. Bowser has gone upstairs to dress. At the end of five minutes he is heard calling:

"Oh, Mrs. Bowser!"

"Yes."

"Have I got a change of shirts in this house or have they been sold to the rag buyer?"

"They are in the second drawer of your dresser and have never been kept anywhere else. Are you looking in the storeroom?"

Finds His Shirts.

Mr. Bowser doubts her statement. He looked into the drawer before he hollered and not a blamed shirt was there. He looks again and finds five. Some trick on Mrs. Bowser's part. He is occupied for five or six minutes and then it is time to shout again, and he shouts:

"Mrs. Bowser, have you dropped dead in your tracks down there? If so, please inform me!"

"Well, what is it now?"

"Is my Sunday suit in the ash barrel or did you give it to a tramp? I've looked the whole house over, and it is not to be found. By thunder, but I don't wonder that so many husbands commit cold blooded murder!"

"Your suit is hanging up in your closet, of course."

He opens the closet door and is thunderstruck to behold the long lost suit on the hooks. How did it get there? How long has it been there? There's something uncanny about the thing. He yanks the garments down and flings them on the bed and is then ready to call downstairs:

"Mrs. Bowser, will you ask the girl to please look in the coal bin and hunt me out a collar? If you are going to keep 'em down there after this say so and save me the trouble. I'm not a particular man, but"—

"Your collars are in the first drawer of your dresser. It's curious how blind some men are!"

"Mrs. Bowser, we will not go to church!"

"Very well."

The collars are there, of course. They have been kept in the same drawer for the last seven years, but Mr. Bowser has always looked for them first under the bed or in the closet. He fusses up ten long minutes with collar and tie and then thinks it time to stir up Mrs. Bowser with:

"Hello, down there! If you are there, Mrs. Bowser, will you kindly condescend to step this way? If so, you will put me under everlasting obligations."

"Well, what is it?" she asks after toiling upstairs.

Socks Also In Place.

"Socks, Mrs. Bowser—socks," he whispers with a wave of his hand. "I've been buying socks all my life. I've bought over a billion pairs. I bought three carloads only last week, and it seems as if I ought to have at least one pair around here. But I haven't. I've even been up on the roof to hunt. Perhaps you will kindly"—

"See here," she interrupts as she walks over to the dresser and pulls out the bottom drawer. "What do you call these? Your socks have been kept in this same place ever since we lived in this house. Why didn't you look in here?"

"Mrs. Bowser, we will not go to church! We will not stir a foot to go!"

"I am glad of it."

"That is, we will go in spite of all your tricks. I see your fine Italian hand in all these little tricks, but we shall go to church just the same."

"Where did you get that necktie?"

"What's the matter with it?"

"It's one of your old ones I flung into the storeroom. Here are the good ones. And now I suppose you have looked into the furnace and out into the alley for your cuffs?"

Exactly, Mrs. Bowser. I've hunted ... two long hours, but I haven't been able to find what you gave the cook to kindle the fire with."

"Right there under your nose in your cuff box—ten or twelve pairs."

"I think I see the drift of this thing," said Mr. Bowser as he shook all the cuffs out of the box. "You and I will have a long talk after returning from church. You may go down if you wish."

Mrs. Bowser disappeared, and he suddenly thought of his cuff buttons. To his great surprise they were before his eyes instead of being under the bed. To his further amazement he donned his coat and vest without the bedstead falling down or the lavatory exploding, but he soon recovered from the shock and walked out into the hall and shouted:

"If there is a living soul downstairs let them answer me!"

Mrs. Bowser came upstairs to ask what was the trouble.

More Trouble Untangled.

"Might I presume to ask what your object was in sewing up my coat and vest? See how they bunch!"

She advanced, gave the garments a few pulls and jerks, and the bunches disappeared.

"And these trousers," he said—"they are forty rods too long."

"That's because your suspenders are dangling around your knees instead of being over your shoulders."

"But this infernal collar is sawing my ears off. When I hear of a husband chopping up his wife with the ax"—

"Pull your shirt down and your collar will be all right. You are all bunches."

"Mrs. Bowser, I am going to look for a handkerchief, but of course it will be labor lost. The cook is doubtless using them for dishcloths."

She pulled out one of the small drawers of the dressed, and the handkerchiefs were there. Then she turned and walked downstairs. Half an hour later Mr. Bowser followed. He had put on the old suit he used when he worked around the house. It was greasy, paint spotted and ragged. As Mrs. Bowser looked at him for an explanation he said:

"No, ma'am, I am no hypocrite. If a hypocrite belonging to this household wants to go to church and pretend to be interested in religious matters she can go, but as for me I will not dissemble. This is the worst run house in America, and I have to put up with more than any other husband in America, but I will not play the hypocrite. You can go to church, but I will stay at home and rip and tear and cuss around, and if I get drunk and murder somebody I know that a jury of my peers will say:

"'Poor man, he was driven to it and must be held blameless!'"

ELECTRICIANS TO FORM A SOCIETY

THIRTY-FOUR ARE ELIGIBLE TO ENTER

There are a number of men at the Fort Wayne Electric works who have been in the employ of the company over twenty years and they have concluded to organize a veteran association similar to those of the Pennsylvania and the Nickel Plate. The requirements for membership will be a continuous service of twenty or more years and the organization will start out with thirty-four charter members and will soon add as many more, for there are a lot of employes who have been with the company eighteen or nineteen years, who will join the "vets" as soon as they are eligible.

Twenty-one years ago J. J. Wood, the present general manager of the company, came here with sixty electrical workers from Brooklyn, N. Y., to take part in the reorganization of the old Jenney Electric works, which was a struggling little concern giving employment to only ninety men, and to engage in the manufacture of the patents brought out by Mr. Wood. Of the party from Brooklyn, eight are still connected with the works. They are J. J. Wood, J. J. Bauer, T. W. Bauer, Paul E. Wood, George E. Wood, Tony Miller, Harry Evans and Isaac Aller. These gentlemen have witnessed the transformation of that little factory into one of the best equipped factories in the state, where over 1,400 people are now steadily employed and where double that number will be employed in two or three years if the expectations of the management are realized. In addition to the eight men named in the preceding lines the following employes of the Fort Wayne Electric company have been on the pay rolls over twenty years and have signified a desire to join in the movement to organize a veterans' association: Clark Orr, August Mayland, William Raidy, M. S Willson, John F. Keiss, W. Peter Kindt, William Schultz, Samuel Brownsberger, William Donnell, Herman Rehm, Cal. Rehrer, Stewart Rehrer, Harry Beers, William Murphy, William Rehling, William Haag, William Driftmeyer, William Brennan, John Wegmiller, Frederick Miller, Frederick Keitharber, William G. Wurtle, Eugene McLaughlin, Albert Schlatter, Samuel Richards and Edward Kohlmeyer. A meeting to complete the organization will be called in a few days.

PUTTING UP THE WALLS.

Brick Work on Electric Office Building Commences.

Contractors Beers & Offutt put their masons at work yesterday building the brick walls for the six-story office building of the Fort Wayne Electric works on Broadway, the steel and the concrete part of the structure having been practically finished. The walls will have eighteen inches of solid brick and mortar and three inches of tiling, being twenty-one inches in thickness, presenting an appearance very much like that of the Shoaff office building at Berry and Calhoun streets. The work of erection was delayed six or seven weeks by delay in the receipt of the steel structural part and cold weather is likely to put a stop to the work at times.

SERIES OF OPEN MEETINGS.

Federation of Labor Plans Busy Winter.

J. W. Loney, L. D. Redding, E. S. Baker, A. C. Baehr, J. F. Werkman and F. J. Schantz met in the Labor Times-Herald office last night as a committee of arrangements for a series of open meetings to be held the coming winter months by the Fort Wayne Federation of Labor. The committee was not able to formulate a complete program for the season, but the character of the addresses desired was discussed and plans laid accordingly for securing the speakers. It was decided to hold the first meeting on Monday, November 14, when Hon. Thomas E. Ellison will lecture on the subject of "Commission Form of Government." Another subject decided upon will be "The Aims and Objects of Organized Labor," which will be the topic of a lecture to be delivered by L. D. Redding. There will also be several musical numbers at each of the meetings and other features of entertainment. As stated, the meetings will be "open," which means that all, whether members of union labor organizations or not, will be welcomed.

SURPRISED FRIENDS.

Grover F. Blair and Miss Tillie Theisen were married in Detroit, Mich., October 26, and the associates of the bride and groom are just beginning to learn of it. Mr. Blair is the clerk for his father, Road Supervisor R. A. Blair, of the Nickel Plate, and his associates at the yards did not know of the wedding until yesterday. Mrs. Blair, before the wedding, was employed as an operator at the lamp works of the General Electric company and her associates there will first learn of her marriage through this item. Mrs. Blair is the daughter of Charles M. Thiesen, of 1401 Cass street, and both are highly respected and well liked by their acquaintances.

ENGINEER DICKENS RETURNS.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Dickens returned yesterday from England, where they spent a few months with Mr. Dickens' parents. They also made a tour of some of the European countries and brought back some very interesting relics to remind them of their journey. Among the pieces are some very ancient ones, included being a Roman vase which is 1,700 years old, an Athens coin of the date of 450 B. C., a block of cedar from a tree grown at the Gad's Hill home of Charles Dickens, with a carving representing the head of the famous author upon it. Mr. Dickens is a well known Pennsylvania engineer.

ON A HUNTING EXPEDITION.

C. E. Romary, of the Pennsylvania planing mills, left today for Wisconsin, where he will spend three weeks with some friends in hunting deer and bear. These excursions are annual affairs with Mr. Romary and he never fails to get some big game.

HEARS OF AUNT'S DEATH.

L. J. Setter, a carpenter in the Pennsylvania tank shop, received a telegram from Bloomfield, N. J., last night, informing him that his aunt, Mrs. John Gottschalk, died at her home in that city Wednesday night. The deceased was eighty-one years old and was for many years a resident of Bloomfield. She made a number of visits to Indiana and had a number of relatives in Allen and Adams county. On account of the absence of Mrs. Setter and daughter from the city, none of the family will be able to attend the funeral at Bloomfield.

INSPECTING G. R. & I. BRIDGES.

The fall inspection of the bridges on the Southern division of the G. R. & I. is in progress. Chief Engineer E. H. Barnes, Division Engineer C. L. Barnaby and some of the other maintenance of way officials are going over the division on a special train. They left Grand Rapids at 7:15 o'clock this morning and will reach Fort Wayne this afternoon. They will cover the Richmond end of the line tomorrow.

TO DISCUSS ENGINES.

The Fort Wayne division of the American Institute of Electric Workers will have another lecture on Tuesday evening, November 15. The speaker will be a manufacturer from Hamilton, Ohio, and his subject will be "Steam Engines."

O. R. C. ELECTION SUNDAY.

Division No. 119, Order of Railway Conductors, will hold the annual election next Sunday afternoon. There are several candidates for some of the offices and the election promises to be one of the most hotly contested in the history of the division.

ELECTRO-TECHNIC BAND DANCE.

The second affair in the series of dances to be given the season of 1910-1911 by the Electro-Technic band will take place on the evening of November 16 and will be at Trier's hall. It will be similar in all features to the dance given two or three weeks ago.

WORE HIS SMILE BUT DID NOT MAKE A SPEECH

There were no cheering throngs at the Pennsylvania station to greet ex-President Roosevelt as he passed through Fort Wayne Thursday afternoon and the distinguished traveler did not make a speech here. He was visible on the platform for but a moment as he stepped out to take a glimpse at the surroundings, and the famous smile was on exhibition as he shook hands with two or three persons who climbed upon the car to speak to him.

The city was not generally aware of the coming of the former president and there was only the usual complement of passengers gathered at the station when the train arrived from the east at 4:10 o'clock. Mr. Roosevelt was traveling in the Pullman car Lamberton, and half a score of newspaper men were accompanying him.

"Will you not speak here?" was asked.

"Oh, no;" replied the ex-president as he glanced at the little knot of people gathered outside the car. "I'm not speaking any more than is necessary on this trip, for I'm trying to save my throat."

Mr. Roosevelt's voice was husky, but in response to a further inquiry he replied that his throat was showing improvement from its condition earlier in the week. Asked if he intended returning to Indiana for further speeches during this campaign the ex-president replied:

"No; I do not expect to do so. I'm going to Iowa for a little work and shall then hurry back to New York in time to vote."

Plainly the ex-president did not care to be detained with further conversation and he hurried back into his car. When the train reached Warsaw a considerable crowd had gathered, and in response to a request Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly.

Dn't fail to visit our children's departmet tomorrow. We are giving great values.

Texas Land!

On Tuesday, November 15th

I will have another excursion to ROCK ISLAND in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas. $35.95 for the Round Trip

WOULDN'T YOU LIKE AN ORCHARD WHOSE INCOME IS FROM $500 TO $1000 PER ACRE?

Then buy your land now, while it can be obtained cheap; plant it to Satsuma Oranges, and watch your trees grow, and make money.

California fruit land, not near so good and by no means as favorably located as the Rock Island country, is selling for five to ten times the price at which I am selling land at Rock Island.

Oranges, Figs, Strawberry, Cucumber and Winter and Summer Vegetable Growers in the Texas Gulf Coast Country are making from 100 to 500 per cent. annually on their investment.

"What they are doing you can do":

If you want to do General Farming, it offers you the best opportunity—all I ask you, come along and investigate.

Investigate the shipping facilities of the Houston district. It is here that 17 railroads meet the sea, and this section, as no other, will be benefited by the digging of the Panama and inter-coastal canals. Rock Island is only 77 miles west of Houston, with an elevation of 254 feet. It has the best climate in Texas. Records taken on my land from the 10th day of March to July 31st, show that the temperature never went above 90 degrees and below 42 degrees. The records also show that there was a rainfall every month, the average rainfall for the year is 42 inches. The Rock Island country is now being improved by farmers and men from the north; this will increase the value of the land; so you better call and investigate as the time to buy is now.

Call at my office and make arrangements to take a trip with me Tuesday, November 15th.

When the first Brandegee, Kincaid & Co. garment came into our shop we placed it and its fellows on our shelves with our other lines.

GOVERNOR AT WORK IN OLD HOME DISTRICT

Leaving Fort Wayne early today, Governor Marshall started his tour of the old home district as the final work of the present campaign, which will end with his address in Fort Wayne Saturday evening.

Mr. Marshall arrived in the city at 11:30 o'clock Thursday evening from Muncie, where he had delivered an address and at the Anthony hotel he joined Mrs. Marshall, who had come directly to Fort Wayne from Indianapolis. The governor declares that in every section of the state he has found the prospects for democracy exceedingly bright, and he confidently predicts a democratic victory in Indiana next Tuesday.

The governor is an early riser and he was up betimes today. Accompanied by Frank M. Powers, of Angola, and ex-Mayor E. B. Thumma, of Garrett, the governor left at 8 o'clock over the Toledo and Chicago interurban, while a little later Mrs. Marshall left over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road for Goshen. Here she will rejoin the governor this evening and proceed with him to South Bend, where he is billed for an evening address tonight.

District Chairman E. G. Hoffman and Congressman Cyrus Cline joined Governor Marshall at Garrett, where his first address of the day was delivered at 11 o'clock. From Garrett the party hurried away to Kendallville, where Governor Marshall was heard in two addresses, first from the veranda of Hotel Reyher and later at the opera house. As Governor Marshall left the Twelfth district to go into the Thirteenth for addresses at Goshen, Elkhart and South Bend, Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Cline took up an auto tour of Noble and Lagrange counties.

Tomorrow they will accompany the governor when he comes back into the Twelfth district to speak at Angola at 2 o'clock and in this city in the evening.

* * *

Judge R. K. Erwin and Herbert L. Sommers will address a democratic meeting at Huntertown this evening, while Congressman Cline and H. H. Hilgemann will speak at the Poor farm school; Carl Yaple and E. G. Hoffman at Milan Center, and Congressman Cline Fred L. Feick and S. A. Callahan at Adams Center school.

The Beveridge-Heaton league will hold a smoker at the republican headquarters this evening. Tonight C. S. Bash and Samuel Hyndman will speak at Poe, and J. B. Harper and E. V. Harris at Maples.

* * *

Hon. W. C. Ryan and Hon. William S. Wells addressed a big democratic gathering at Arcola last evening. Dennis J. Gorman presided as chairman of the meeting.

* * *

The shop meetings at various factories about the city today practically concluded the noonday shop talks to workingmen for the present campaign.

James W. Sale, of Bluffton, has resigned his place as a member of the board of trustees of the Indiana school for feble-minded youth in this city. Mr. Sale's action was upon the advice of republican attorneys. He is a candidate for state senator in Wells county on the republican ticket, and party leaders advised the step in order that his eligibility to the senatorial seat might not be questioned in the event of his election.

AMERICA II HOLDS RECORD.

London Attempts to Question Performance of Hawley Balloon.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—That the balloon America II made 1,355 miles in the international race was maintained here by the officials of the Aero club when they read a cablegram from London that the distance was questioned.

Albert B. Lambert, of the race committee, computed the distance the night Hawley and Post reported, and it is subject to correction only by the war department of the United States.

The America II landed eight miles north of Lake Tshistigama, in the province of Quebec, and not at Chicoutimi, as the London cable states.

Standing far above the other styles that may be justly called "popular" this season are those two—brown cheviots and blue serges.

The deduction is evident; for the most stylish suits of supreme quality, SHIELDS is the place to go.

QUALITY has always been our first aim. We would rather sell one suit that is right than ten that are wrong—even though the profit on the latter is the greater.

It is this policy that gets us so many PERMANENT CUSTOMERS.

Since John Quit Drinking

By John's Wife

I'm the happiest little woman,
In all this little town;
And my merry laugh and singing,
Takes the place of sigh and frown.
For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING
And is like himself once more,
And the world is just a paradise
With such happiness in store!

One day I read some verses—
"Mary's Miracle," the name,
And I said, that's John exactly,
And I'll send and get the same.
So I sent for GOLDEN REMEDY,
(As sly as sly could be)
And put it in John's supper
And I put it in his tea.

And it didn't taste a little bit;
Had no odor, so, you see—
It was smoothest kind of sailing
For little Doctor Me.
And I watched and prayed and waited,
(And cried some, too, I guess),
And I didn't have the greatest faith,
I'm ashamed now to confess.

And John never thought a minute,
He was being cured of drink,
And soon he's as well as any one,
It makes me cry to think!
Just makes me cry for gladness,
I'm so proud to be his wife—
Since he is cured of drinking,
And leads a nice, new life.

"Since John he quit a-drinking!"
I can't say it times enough!
And hates and loathes a liquor
As he would a poison stuff.
And when I say my prayers at night
As thankful as can be—
I pray for John the most of all—
Then GOLDEN REMEDY.

HOW TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE FROM INCOMPETENT LAWYERS

If You Want This Protection You Must All Vote Upon the Constitutional Amendment Next Tuesday.

Not everyone is aware that at the next election there will be an opportunity to rectify this mistake of sixty years ago.

The 21st section of article 7 of our state constitution says: "Every person of good moral character being a voter, shall be entitled to admission to practice law in all courts of justice."

The democratic legislature of 1903 and the republican legislature of 1905 by almost unanimous votes passed proper resolutions to amend the constitution so that the legislature might pass laws defining the legal qualifications necessary to be possessed by lawyers. This amendment received more than a three-fourths majority of the votes cast, but not enough to give it a constitutional majority. The legislatures of 1907 and 1909 also passed the following joint resolution:

And whereas, The joint resolution hereafter set out was adopted by the general assembly of 1907; therefore, be it

Resolved by the general assembly of the state of Indiana, That the following proposed amendment to article 7 of the constitution of said state be and the same is now agreed to and referred to the electors of the state of Indiana at the next general election:

Section 21. The general assembly shall, by law, prescribe what qualifications shall be necessary for admission to practice law in all courts of justice.

It is necessary that a majority of all the people who vote at this election shall vote in favor of this amendment to pass it, and this appeal is put forth so that in the hurry of voting it will not be lost sight of. We cannot imagine that any person interested in the welfare of our state or its people will oppose it.

Inefficient lawyers are a detriment to the people. The legislature should have authority to regulate the admission to the bar of all who desire to practice law and to control the conduct of those already admitted. The people of this state are damaged every term of court by incompetent lawyers, who do not know how to draw pleadings and legal papers. Incompetent lawyers involve the people of the state into litigations, instead of protecting them and keeping them out of lawsuits.

Similar legal safeguards protect the people against incompetent physicians, surgeons and nurses, and in no profession is this need greater than in the law and this truth is recognized everywhere except in Indiana.

Inaccurate and improper conveyances are made, improper advice is given and much needless trouble is incurred in straightening out these errors, and valuable rights are lost because not guarded as they would be if the attorneys were competent.

There being no political question involved in this, the undersigned, representing the various political parties, gladly join in an effort to bring this matter to the attention of the intelligent voters, and ask that they should vote in favor of this proposition, which can be done by the voter's pulling down the lever under the word "Yes" on the top line of the voting machine where this resolution is set out. It should not be lost because of inattention. This question has been voted upon two or three times before, and nearly all who voted were for it, but it must have a majority of the highest vote cast for a state officer; it is therefore important that every one should vote on this question.

HOW TO GET FAT

The almost universal interest in physical culture is the best evidence that can be offered as to the need of a simple and scientific method of making thin people fat, increasing strength and restoring health.

Athletics, when carried to an extreme, often result in straining the vital organs. How much better it would be for the average person to regain health, strength and flesh by using Samose. This flesh forming food is assimilated as soon as it enters the stomach; it helps the organs to assimilate the food and extract the flesh forming elements; it builds up the muscles and rounds out the limbs into shapely plumpness.

Samose has been so successful in making thin people fat and restoring the weak and run down to strength and health that Meyer Bros. Co., the popular druggists, sell it under their personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not benefit.

An offer like this certainly shows remarkable faith in the powers of Samose to do all that is claimed for it. No one should suffer any longer from a thin, run-down condition, now that Samose's remarkable powers are known.

For Over Three Decades

Foley's Honey and Tar has been a reliable household medicine and the "children's children" find it today the same safe and sure remedy for all coughs and colds that their grandparents did. It is a true medicine, possesses great healing and soothing qualities, and contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. For croup and whooping cough, it is a quick relief and permanent help. For all coughs and colds it is healing and soothing, does not constipate, but expels the cold from the system. It is prompt in relief and averts the danger of bronchitis and pneumonia. Mahala Stockwell, Hannibal, Missouri, writing under date of August 28, 1910, has this to say about this great medicine: "I have recently used for the first time Foley's Honey and Tar Cough medicine. To say that I am pleased with it does not half express my feelings. It is by far the best I ever used. I had contracted a bad cold and was nearly sick in bed, having a terrible headache as well as a cough and was threatened with pneumonia. I used but one bottle of your Foley's Honey and Tar and was completely cured. It beats all the remedies I ever used and I have used many different kinds." For sale by Dreier Bros.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — MRS. EMMA IMSE, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

A Canadian government dredge while at work recently at St. Johns, Quebec, clearing away the remains of the Royal Sauvage, sunk during the revolution, brought up several interesting relics. Among them were a cannon, two odd looking axes and some coins and buttons.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

GROWING GINSENG A BUSINESS THAT PAYS WELL

Takes Years to Win at It—What One Cultivator is Making.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 31.—Making a profit at the rate of $16,000 a year off one acre of ground, with the minimum amount of cultivation, ought to be enough to tempt many persons into the cultivation of ginseng.

"Why isn't ginseng more extensively cultivated?" a visitor asked A. Clark, who has a ginseng farm at Mount Washington.

"Well, you see, these days, people want to draw their pay for their work at the end of the week, and they can't do it when they raise ginseng," replied the only grower of the plant in Jackson county. "No, and they can't draw their pay the next year. It's usually a decade before a ginseng grower harvests his crop. Then again the cultivation of ginseng is a thing little known about in America. If people realized the big profits and the little work connected with the cultivation there would be more of it raised than there is."

Passengers on the electric cars from Kansas City to Independence pass a patch of ground covered with a low shed of great extent, having a roof of leaves. To the casual observer it appears not unlike a grape arbor or perhaps a hog shelter. Under the shade are thousands of slender plants in rows. The tract covers only one-fifth of an acre, and that is the total acreage of ginseng in Northwestern Missouri.

There is little ginseng used in America. The market rests on superstitious veneration of the Chinese for the herb as the medicine of medicines, as the balsam of balsams—almost as the elixir of life, and it is used to more or less extent by the 400,000,000 inhabitants of the empire.

Gingseng is a shrinking plant that flourishes in the shade of forests or under arbors of boughs. Its delicate leaves will wither in a few minutes in the glare of the sun's rays.

Mr. Clark will make a profit of about $5,000 off the fifth of an acre he has at Mount Washington this year, and he has not yet begun to realize the full returns from cultivation of the crop. The ginseng is just getting large enough to begin digging the roots, but Mr. Clark has already contracted for the sale of 20,000 plants at $4.50 per hundred, which will bring him $900. He has sold a few roots at $8 a pound, which will help along the profits.

From 192 Square Feet.

One little patch, sixteen feet long and twelve feet wide, which Mr. Clark raised last year under his front porch, netted him nearly $300, and he did not dispose of all the roots, as many plants were young and it is Mr. Clark's practice not to pull the plants until they are six years old.

It was on this small tract of ground—underneath the porch of his home—that Mr. Clark began cultivating the plant. But he had known it before then. When, as a boy, he used to run among the woods of Indiana he saw the plant growing wild and gathered some of its roots and sold them to the storekeeper in the nearest town, who shipped them to New York, and from there to China. But the plant was not so valuable then as now. In those days it was raised extensively in Manchuria and China and grew wild in the eastern part of the United States. The cost of transporting it to the orient was so great that it sold for only a few cents a pound. Now it brings not less than $7 a pound and the best grade sells for $12. Chinese merchants in the larger cities have agents who travel over the country looking for the roots.

Mr. Clark has been a small farmer at Mount Washington for many years. He knew the habits of the plant from rambling through the hills of Indiana. He knew it was a plant of great value and that it was much sought after in the southeastern parts of the United States by a shiftless class known as "sang" diggers. Six years ago Mr. Clark reasoned that if it was so profitable to hunt the plants in the wood it ought to be a profitable crop to cultivate. He obtained a few plants at a good price and planted a small tract under his front porch. The little bed of ginseng prospered and the seeds from these few plants were transplanted under a larger tract of ground covered with oak boughs. These plants are all doing well now. They vary in age from one to seven years and have just begun to yield a profit.

Culture Is Simple.

"Ginseng is easy to raise," said Mr. Clark. "The plants need fairly good soil and must be kept in the shade. The best way to start a patch is to get some roots, which sell for about $4.50 a hundred. If these cannot be obtained the seed may be had from any large seed house for a cent each. In three years the plants will be large enough to begin bearing seed and in six years the roots are large enough to dig."

On Mr. Clark's patch, 70x120 feet, there are more than 2,000 plants, ranging in age from one to seven years. Here are some estimates of the probable returns Mr. Clark will get from his tract this year:

For 70,000 seeds, $700; for 20,000 plants, $900, and for 200 pounds of roots, $1,600, or a total of $3,200. After the harbor is built and the seed or roots are planted the only care ginseng requires is a mulching of the ground every two or three years.

With Mr. Clark raising ginseng is a hobby, as it is with nearly all American growers of the plant. He says the plants seem almost imbued with human feelings, but he admits that feeling is produced by human beings, with faces, legs and arms, and those bring fabulous prices in China.

"Eight years ago I bought three acres here and moved to the country," Mr. Clark says. "I did not care to work a great deal, as I was hardly able, so I decided to experiment with ginseng. I studied the subject, talked to many men interested in the culture and purchased seed. I got hold of some poor seed and the first year my plants did not prosper. As fast as a crop of seed matured I replanted them. At the end of the fifth year I had a crop of green roots weighing forty pounds, but when they were dried they weighed only fifteen pounds. These sold for $8 a pound.

"It takes about five or six weeks for the roots to dry with either sun or artificial heat. The plants are set about a foot deep. I try to build the arbor so as to give one-fourth sun and three-fourths shade."

The ginseng plant is related to the parsley family, which includes the parsnip, celery and carrot. The Chinese take it internally for all diseases, while for aches and pains in the legs or arms the plant is chewed, the afflicted person always biting off a portion from the part of the root that corresponds to the arms or legs of the human body.

The demand for ginseng has always exceeded the supply, and that accounts for the high price the Chinese are willing to pay for it. Mr. Clark receives dozens of letters from persons who want to buy the plant or seek information about its growth.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by all dealers.

During the last year a scientist attached to one of the bureaus at Washington has been engaged in measuring the height of clouds by photography. Simultaneous pictures of a cloud are made by two cameras placed six hundred feet apart and connected by telegraph wires. From the amount of displacement of the cloud caused by viewing it alternately from each end of the 600-foot base line, its height can be calculated. Some of the "mackerel sky" clouds photographed were seven and a quarter miles high. The loftiest clouds whose elevation was thus measured belonged to the type known as cirrus or "cat cloud," the height of which was a little more than seventeen miles.—London Globe

YOU always find in your Clothcraft suit a regularly signed, legal, binding guaranty that the suit is pure wool.

That guaranty could not be given if the makers and we ourselves did not absolutely know the goods to be pure wool.

This is the test: Pure wool boiled in caustic potash completely dissolves. If there is any cotton in the mixture, it remains.

Every piece of cloth coming from the mills must be able to stand this test before it is accepted for Clothcraft.

Wool lasts. Wool keeps its stylish shape and color. When you can have all-wool guaranteed at $10 to $25 it is foolish to take anything less. Then come in today and pick out your Clothcraft suit or overcoat.

BAD BLOOD OFTEN INHERITED

Bad blood does not always come as the result of careless living, or indiscretions; it is a condition frequently inherited. Normal, healthy blood contains millions of tiny red corpuscles, which are the vitalizing and nourishing element of the circulation, their office being to provide every portion of the system with its necessary strength and nutriment. In weak, impure blood these corpuscles are lacking in numbers, and therefore the blood is not able to supply the proper amount of nourishment to the body. Bad blood manifests itself in many ways. With some it takes the form of skin diseases and eruptions, others become bilious and malarious, with sallow complexions, torpid liver, etc. Bad blood produces Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula and like troubles. Nothing is equal to S. S. S. as a remedy for bad blood; it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, possessing not only the qualities to cleanse and purify the blood, but composed of roots, herbs and barks that tone up every part of the system, and assist in the creation of blood nutriment. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Blood Poison and all other blood disorders. S. S. S. makes good blood, and good blood makes good health. Book on the blood free to all.

It Is Positively Guaranteed to Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.
MISS E. A. ROSS,
Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

GIRL OF 15 WORKS FOR CENT AN HOUR

Pretty Roumanian Eluded Ellis Island Men by Clever Ruse.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 4.—In this city of reputed wealth and high wages Celia Gold, a pretty Roumanian girl, has been found working for one cent an hour, ten cents a day, or sixty cents a week, in a cigar manufactory.

The girl and her elder sister, Rose outwitted the immigration officials at Ellis Island and were brought to Pittsburg by friends in a penniless condition.

In the faraway land of the good Queen Carmen Sylva the sisters had heard of the promised land across the Atlantic where they might earn enough money to better their condition. By hard work they scraped together sufficient money to buy a ticket to New York, but on the steamer, Rose, who is about seventeen years old, fell ill and her little sister spent the few dollars that remained for delicacies with which to supplant the coarse food of the steerage.

Arriving at Ellis Island, they learned the law forbidding the entrance of paupers into this country. The quick wit of Celia came to the rescue and she succeeded in borrowing $25 for a few minutes from a fellow countryman.

That $25 meant open sesame to the sisters. First Rose showed the money to the inspector and was passed through the gate, and then, hurrying to the grating, passed the lucky money to Celia, who in her turn displayed the lucre, which opened the gate that barred the way to the land of freedom. Then the money was returned to the Roumanian and the girls stood trembling with fear and expectancy upon the threshold of a new land and a new life.

Friends took them as far as Pittsburg and here Rose got a position at $3 a week as a domestic. She separated in sorrow from her little sister. Celia, failing to find profitable employment on account of her youth, went to work in the factory for ten cents a day and ambitiously tried to get into the night high school in order that she might learn the language of the country of her adoption and increase her income.

She failed to gain admission because of her not being sixteen years old and having no credentials, and despair was staring her in the face and the fingers of those who profit from the tempting of the innocent were reaching out for her when she found a friend.

A prominent Roumanian, Mr. Becker, has learned to speak Yiddish, and, according to his friends, he has fallen into the habit of wandering incognito among the people who form the little kingdom in which he labors in trying to force the people to take advantage of the educational advantages which the city and state offer them.

This modern caliph of Bagdad on the Hill was strolling through the ghetto when he heard a girl weeping. He found Celia crying upon a doorstep. Her room rent was due, her cupboard was empty, she was hungry, weary and half sick and could expect no more aid from her sister.

Glad to find an American who could speak her language, she told her story to Mr. Becker. He introduced her to the worthy woman who has presided for so many years over the Moorhead school.

Miss Mackrell saw that the girl was cared for and sent to school, and Celia now believes that she has fallen into the hands of angels unawares.

FIGURES IN TRIAL OF NEW YORK MILLIONAIRE MOTORIST FOR MURDER

JAMES W. OSBORNE
EDWARD T. ROSENHEIMER
DAGOBERT TIMENDORFER AND GEORGE W. YEANDLE
VINCENT EDWARD & MRS. EDWARD ROSENHEIMER AND HER TWO BOYS

New York, Nov. 4.—The trial of Edward T. Rosenheimer, who is charged with murder in the first degree before Judge O'Gorman, in the criminal branch of the supreme court, came to a halt the other day.

As the result of a trap baited by District Attorney Whitman, Judge O'Gorman, James W. Osborne and the other lawyers for the defense, George W. Yeandle, who was number 7 in the jury box, was arrested charged with having demanded a bribe of $2,500, and taking $500 on account as the consideration for voting for the acquittal of Mr. Rosenheimer or at least holding out for that verdict so long that there would be a disagreement.

Without delay his case and that of Dagobert Timendorfer, who is charged with having acted as the intermediary between the accused juror and the lawyers for the defense, were placed before the grand jury, both men were indicted and a few hours later were taken before Judge O'Gorman. Yeandle answered "Not guilty." Timendorfer, to the surprise of judge, district attorney and others, said in a faint voice, "Guilty."

The Real Winners of Lawsuits.

Peter McKenzie, the last of the old Hudson bay factors, had always a great hatred and fear of lawsuits.

"I dined with Mr. McKenzie in Montreal not long ago," said a mining engineer of New York, "and he reiterated his dread of lawsuits, driving home his point with a story.

"He said that a certain Smith won a case in the lower courts, the higher courts and the supreme court. Smith was thus finally awarded, after seven years of litigation, $500,000.

"'Hurrah!' he said. 'Gimme my $500,000.'

"'Yes, $500,000 was the award,' said the lawyer, and at the same time he handed Smith a dollar bill.

"'But what's this for?' Smith gasped.

"'That's all that's left, Mr. Smith,' explained the lawyer, 'after the deduction of my fee, the cost of the various appeals and other expenses, which will be duly rendered you in an itemized account.'

A Yorkshire Plaster.

A friend on a visit to Yorkshire caught a chill and was confined to bed. His hostess thought to give her sick visitor a treat during his confinement, so she baked a Yorkshire pudding and took it upstairs.

"Just try that," she said. "It'll shift yer cowd." Then she left him.

Going up some time later, she inquired, "Well, 'ave ya etten it up?"

"Etten it! Etten it!" gasped her visitor. "No; I'm wearin' it on my chest!"—London Tit-Bits.

Stanley Jordan, the well known Episcopal minister, having cause to be anxious about his son's college examinations, told him to telegraph the result. NEW FARCE AT WHICH GOTHAM IS LAUGHING

MR. DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN "THE CUB" PHOTO BY WHITE

New York, Nov. 4. "The Cub," a farce and satire rolled into one, by Mr. Thompson Buchanan, had its first performance here in the Comedy theater. The author comes from the Blue Grass state, and he holds Kentucky feuds up to ridicule in a manner so amusing that the audience's sides ached from laughter. He showed during the course of three entertaining acts that twenty-one sons of Kentucky's mountainous soil were killed because of a row over a pig, whose value was finally fixed at a dollar and thirty cents, making the actual value of each man killed a bit over six cents.

While the feud is in its prime a "cub" reporter from the Louisville Courier-Journal is sent up to report the story. He was the only available man in the office at the time, and was sent because the managing editor said: "We don't want a man to go; we want a damn fool."

So Steve Oldham went—and the audience saw him going—astride a mule, with an automobile horn on the saddle. He was Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, and he got his laughs from the very first. He almost got shot several hundred times, and once escaped hanging by less than a quarter of an inch, but he was chipper to the end—when his paper discharged him for "faking."

OUR SHORT STORY PAGE

The 2000th Christmas

A Fantasy

by Harris Merton Lyon

That I spent, that I had;
That I gave, that I have;
That I left, that I lost.
—Robert Brykes.

IT was eleven o'clock of a cold Christmas Eve in the year 1999. In the little old tumble-down carpenter shop of meek old Meyer Abrams, back in a ramshackle courtyard of the Ghetto, sat the strange young Jew, alone. All up and down Baxter Street the wretched winter wind howled along, slamming the creaky tenement shutters; and the drizzling sleet pelted the roof tops and the gutters cruelly and incessantly. It was very cold in the old carpenter's shop, a lean-to shanty without a stove in it, but the young apprentice sat in silence, heedless of the icy chill, his eyes staring straight ahead of him. He was worn but sad, nervous, and hungry, there amidst the dead shavings and the planes and the saws, the gimlets, braces, and bits. Every now and then he would pass his hand tremulously across his forehead, or stroke his youthful, silky beard. Nobody in Baxter Street, in the whole East Side of the great city of New York—not even old Meyer Abrams himself—knew from what country the young Jew with the weird, staring eyes had come.

"Are you lately landed?" Abrams had asked him quizzically when he had wanted work.

"Yes." But he would not tell the name of his country.

"What do men call you?" the old carpenter had demanded.

"Some men in my country once insisted that my name was—Josephson. That name will do me now."

He was a good carpenter, all that the old master demanded of him, but his mind seemed to be fixed on other things. For five weeks he had scarcely tasted food, and at night, when the other Jews sat about the cafes arguing hotly over anarchy and government, or stayed in their houses with their children tumbling noisily about them, the young immigrant preferred to sit alone in Abram's dingy, cheerless shop, gnawing his nails and thinking, his long legs outspread, his head thrown back, his dreamy eyes fixed on the ceiling. Why he would eat no food, nobody knew. It is said that men with great intentions need little earthly help; that they live on something strong within them; that they even radiate some of this strength to carry everybody they meet along with them. Their eyes glow; a mysterious force comes out of them. Their nerves vibrate, and a marvelous power goes into everything they do. Josephson, the young Jew, was this sort of a man.

As he sat there on Christmas Eve, at eleven o'clock, his brain seemed bursting with great thoughts. He quivered and shook with the intensity of his feeling, and in the dimness of the old shop a glow seemed to stand around his hair, like the glow around a sick woman's head when the pain of her suffering is exceedingly great. And all the while, as he thought, his eyes stared—unseeing, abstracted—up at the hoops and boards which lay along beneath the ceiling of the shop. He was as a man hypnotized by an idea vaster, more profound than himself.

At midnight, the old church bell halfway across the frozen city boomed its hollow message of the great new day. By ruddy fires, over cups of cheer, the millions of people laughed, looked into each other's eyes, and were happy, shelte od within warm walls that shut out the grim, cutting winter. The whole city, where the city was rich, lolled in comfort indoors and sang songs to the coming Christmas.

But as the young Jew wrapped his long coat about him and strode out through the bitter Ghetto, he passed tenement after tenement where the starving poor shuddered in their chilly, bare rooms. There was no merriment there, only curses at the rich of the land. For in 1999 the rich were very rich and the poor were very poor; and the poor had no faith in anything, because they had been so often deceived. Long ago the rich had been rich because they had held the trust of the people; now they held only all the gold in the nation.

And the strange young Jew, as he passed along, nodded at the dismal tenements and said, over and over to himself: "That is why I am here; that is why I am here!"

At Sixth Avenue he took an elevated train to One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Street. There he got out and boarded a railroad train. It was the last one to leave New York City that night, and its destination was the Pocantico Hills country to the north.

Before it was two o'clock Josephson found himself alone in a deserted railway station and among the hills. He knew no directions, but he had vaguely a sense of where he wanted to go.

The sleet softened suddenly to a chill rain and soaked his greatcoat through. The frigid gale bit clear to his bones, and made his teeth shake; yet a strange fever came into his veins, and kept him miraculously warm. He fell and crawled and groped and strode along, over the shivering grass, the dead bleak leaves, the frost-bound stones, always in the direction he sought, always toward the great house with its wide-flung pavilions, back among its pine trees on the crest of one of those tumbling hills.

On this miraculous night the immense house, all lighted up, shone like another miracle. Its turrets and cupolas were dark, but the glass conservatories, the broad verandas, the lofty-ceilinged vestibules and rooms scattered their yellow radiance through the midnight darkness like some fairy palace blazing with jewels and lanterns.

The young Jew silently and humbly crossed the wide stretches of lawn and stood before one of the French windows of the flower room. He turned the knob and walked into the empty glare of light. From room to deserted room he passed until at length he came to the library. Here he pushed another door open and stood motionless on the threshold.

In a high-backed leathern chair before a crackling log sat an old man, alone, smoking a cigar. In all that house, save for the servants, the old man was alone. For twenty years, forty years, he had been alone; and on Christmas Eve he always sat thus, into the night, smoking and thinking before his fire. A certain birthnight, too, and a certain wedding night he celebrated in this fashion. The rest of the time he worked and gathered up money. For he was the richest man in the United States, and the most powerful.

The young Jew fixed his great, sorrowful eyes upon the old man; but the old man, lost in thought, stared into the fire. He was a hale old man made of strong fiber, with great shoulders and sturdy chest, long arms, a big, magnificent head all covered with gray hair, and a gray beard. His eyes shone clear. His cheeks were ruddy. Life tingled in him as in a mountain brook. Yet when he thought deeply, as now, a softness spread over his face and his fiery eyes slumbered.

"I am here," said the young Jew.

"Look at that man," murmured the millionaire. But it did not seem odd that he should be there.

"I must speak to you," said the Jew.

And the old man passed his firm hand over his eyes as if in a dream, and answered:

"Come to the fire—you. Take off your coat, for you must be cold."

"Cold? What is cold? I am not cold," answered the other, in a poignant voice. Then he said: "I see you are thinking. That is good; for you must think still more."

There was that in the wanderer's face which made the millionaire curious. So he said:

"Who are you, young man?"

And the other replied: "I am the man who must make you think still more."

The old man looked at him more closely, intently. "You have come to ask charity on Christmas Eve," he declared. "Well, you shall have it."

"Yes," said the young man, simply; "I shall have it." And he drew off his coat and stood upright, facing the millionaire. "Listen to me," he went on.

The Young Immigrant Preferred to Sit Alone in Abram's Dingy, Cheerless Shop.

"When trees and running streams and little seeds think, it is time for you also to think. But I will tell you, you must think as they do—charitably and generously toward all the people on earth. Behold, old man, you are the richest man in this land. You own running waters, transportations, harvests, the materials with which men build even their houses. You own everything inside and outside the law—everything which one man can own. When people no longer trusted your pieces of paper, the gilded front of your wealth, you took up the gold of the country. Do you know that men and women and little children are starving to death because of these things? Because of you? You enjoy your bread and meat with relish. Do you know that men are starving?"

And the young Jew smiled, but his smile was somehow different. "This is why I am here to-night. You are an old man now and are soon to die." The old man shrugged his shoulders, as if that did not matter. "But it is not yet too late for you to begin. There is a chance to save you yet, and make you what you ought to be in this world."

And the other asked: "Are you a madman?"

"No. You are the madman of us two. You have a chance to become sane again. But it must come from you. All from you, from the heart out. There is a spirit inside you which for forty years has been hard and cruel and bitter. Now it is Christmas time, and that spirit must be softened and made sweet. There is no other way to gain what I want. For though I could look into your eyes a long time and you would do what I tell you to, that is not enough. That would not be you who was doing it, but something outside of you. From a bubbling heart of pure good will, from the inside, must your charity come."

As he spoke the young Jew came over and laid his hand on the other's shoulder, looking with wide eyes straight into the other's eyes, whereat a fascination and a fervor came from the Jew. A queer, dazing, insistent power poured along his steady gaze. The old millionaire met it sternly, but the young man's eyes thrilled him in his old heart.

"You are a hypnotist," cried out the millionaire.

"I am a hypnotist. I am other things, too. I fast, and can coax the white soul from your body. I can make trees walk and the hills vocal. I can bring back the blue spirits of the dead. But these things do not matter. I came here to-night to change your soul and make it sweet, so that your charity will be real charity. Why did I select you? Because you are potential—you are that one man who holds the most power in his hands. Through you I must work. Or, it is better to say, through you must your new self work. And it is not loose charity I ask of you, the deadly giving away of wealth for nothing. No. Your charity shall be practical."

"Why should I say 'Yes' to you?"

And the other spoke to him softly, but his tone filled the whole room, and said:

"Why should you not? What do you live for? Think well before you answer."

"I live to work; I work hard," the old man replied.

But the Jew said: "What does your work give you?"

And the other answered proudly: "My work gives me power."

Then the young Jew raised his hand and pointed out the window. "You hear that gale out there, and you talk of power? Power? That wind could manifold itself and break your bones. You hear that rain? That rain could rise and drown you, and you could not flee. Do not talk to me of power, for the only power you have is as a man among men. There are other powers which make that power seem as a perfume and soft music. Now, tell me why do you work?"

"Because the work compels me. Because I have nothing else to do. Many men and women are like me. I have nothing else to care for." And he told how he was all alone, for his wife and daughter had died, and he added: "Why do I tell you this? But it is so. I am alone."

"Especially on Christmas Eve?" asked the strange man gently.

"Especially on Christmas Eve. And on the night the baby was born and died with her mother. And on the night my wife and I were married."

"How, after all, a great man is only a man!" exclaimed the Jew. "How, after all, he can be stripped and shown as little and sick, or old and broken-hearted!" And his hand on the old man's shoulder seemed to throb with a wondrous sympathy. "He creeps over the ground with his two legs, a creature of bowels, brain, and heart—and we call him great! Though he sickens and dies, behold, his very monuments acclaim him great!"

The old man recalled, without emotion, that he had not fifteen years to live. The fire cast his shadow on the wall. He knew the time would come when he would cast a shadow nowhere. Not even a shadow should survive him.

Suddenly, among all his thoughts, he reached over and took the young Jew's hand.

"I am glad you came to talk to me to-night. In some peculiar way you refresh me," he said. "Yet you bring me strange ideas."

"It is because you have given me the chance; yet long have we needed each other."

The millionaire was silent again for a minute; then he asked slowly, with a tremor in his voice: "What meant you, my friend, when you said you could bring back the spirits of the dead?"

And the other answered: "That is what I meant. For I know the land of ghosts and the ghosts call to me out over their twilight. To me, this earth is but a mere sign in the sky; and yet I can weep over one poor starving man. Alive he sends me messages, as dead he sends me messages. My ear is bent and ready for these things, and I hear him."

"But—about the spirits? About bringing them back? You said you could bring back the dead. Is it nonsense? I have heard it said it was nonsense?"

"Nothing in death is nonsense."

"Then give me my daughter, for I am old!" cried the millionaire suddenly.

"I will. And I ask no reward, for you shall do my bidding. I ask no reward, for you shall give of your own willingness. For it is commanded of us all that as I give, you shall give." And the Jew closed his eyes and sank into a chair for the first time.

At once a tremor shook his wasted body; for a moment he groaned and grew rigid; and then his body grew supple again. His jaw fell from his jaw, his white face swam with sweat. His turning eyes rolled like bits of glass. Then slowly, on the floor by his left hand, a faint light smoke appeared strangely, and clung there against the carpet, swaying like mist under the moon, building itself, blowing outward, upward. Above it hovered a dimly glowing ball, tenuous, attached to the filmy smoke beneath. Then gently, gradually, the whole gauziness molded itself like winding fog, and—lo, it took the billowing shape of a little girl with a haloed head of brilliance, her feet scarce touching the floor so light she was!

The old man looked with horror, then with pain, at what he saw. He stared in silence at the shy visitant, then at the mute young Jew. Over him rushed spasms of dread at the unknown, waves of love at the unforgotten. What worked there in his soul was exquisite. In seconds he changed as never he had changed in all the brutal years among men. He was no longer among men; he had left the earth and floated amidst unearthly raptures. And at last he wet his lips with his tongue and fell toward the shadow, crying: "Margaret! Margaret!"

But the marvelous girl drifted farther away and merely smiled. It was not like the smile of a living person; it had a deeper sweetness, like a smile from Paradise.

"Margaret! My baby!" whispered the old man in his throat. But she eddied to the young Jew's forehead, seemingly swept and kissed it, and was gone. And the young Jew trembled and awoke.

Then, for some minutes, both were silent, looking at each other with comprehending eyes, while only the wind and rain kept up their doleful noise. In the end, the Jew held up his hand and smiled gently. "Why should she speak to you—and break your heart? You must not ask too much, old man."

"It is better that way. For the children that are gone sow such sweet madness in men's minds as would wreck the earth and make the heavens topple down. Dim, potent, tiny mysteries who hold the hearts of all mankind in their pale, little ghostly hands . . . as they wander in innocent ways through God's eternal gardens! Look, I am but a poor Jew, and yet all children know me; and I know all children. It is the gift, the gift that does it."

"I would give anything for that gift," murmured the old man.

"It is not for such as you," said the Jew, "for you are to give, give everything, and get no worldly recompense. You are one of the great men of the earth, and therefore it is your province to give. That is your task, your duty—to give everything. More shall come to you in return; but you shall not get back that which you give. And this is real charity, that if you had but a dollar and knew you should never be able again to get another, you should give this dollar to the poor."

The old man was amazed and cried out: "I will give—but let me think of my baby!"

And the Jew answered him softly: "As long as you live, and after, you will never be able to forget her. For she will blow eternally like fragrant pain across your soul. And so I say to you, put her by, for my time is short. It is more than two hours past midnight and I have a great deal to say."

"Go on. I will listen to you."

"You must sweeten that soul of yours inside your body—that little, dark soul which has never passed out of you yet—so that it will be pleasant in you while yet you live out your years on earth. You must soften your heart for a greater happiness. And then you must give . . . give all your millions."

The old man threw up his head at the words and said: "No! No! I cannot. I am a fool to-night. There is something uncanny here. But in the morning all this will have passed. I cannot give up my money."

Then the Jew's voice changed to an iron sternness and he thundered:

"What will you do with it when your carcass rots and flies are in your brains? Will those you leave it to have brains like yours to keep this money close? I do not ask you to give it away in folly—as you will if you give it away to those you hold in your intention now. You have a great mind. You are a wise old man. There is a wise way to be charitable. It is to plan so that the poor can have an opportunity to help themselves. Build your benefactions on grand plans, magnificent and vast.

"Give to the poor many schools where they may learn their trades. You own the steel mills. See that studious apprentices are given a chance to rise. Give work to the poor and always give instruction in that work. Find them their places in shops. Take every youth who will come to you and prepare him for life. Make an opportunity for him. All cannot make their opportunity as you did, for times have changed, and this is no longer opportunity's day. Do you not think that a starving man will work if he can get work? Yet all the Ghetto to-night is starving!

"Conceive the suffering of the little children, born in the blackness of life, and remember forever the wailing of the children in filth and blindness, where the sun shines not and the slugs of poverty crawl. You must give heed to the children of the Kingdom of Man, for in them lies your hope, and never can your child come back to you should you damn the unborn and the born. Forever shall you hear their voices crying in the labyrinths of night; forever shall you feel the brushing of little, imploring hands. The children you forget shall break your pleasantest dreams and follow you in the daytime until you abominate yourself.

"Have pity on the children, for this way you shall live forever. Teach them, and make them your friends. Raise them up from where they lie cast amongst ignorance and drunkenness, licentiousness and despair. By your schools you shall come to know them, and hereafter they shall praise you because they are no longer wretched. Through all time men shall love you, for in your time you shall have loved the children."

The old man listened to his words in silence, and over his mind came thoughts of his money. For his gold oppressed him whenever he thought of it, and it wearied him like a sickness.

"I see no way. I do not care for the money. But I see no way," he said at last.

And the other replied: "See my way. It is the only way."

"But I cannot," answered the old man. And then he said: "You move me strangely with your power here to-night."

The other said: "You must be able to hear between my lines what is not spoken in them. There is the truth. If you are the man, in your ears the truth must thunder." Then the young Jew pleaded:

"Come, think of the roaring millions of men in the centuries to come! You have but to lift your finger now and shape a billion opportunities in those undreamed-of years!"

"I must think of my present business," said the old millionaire.

"A Star!" Cried the Old Man. "A Star on a Night Like This!"

And still the Jew was not dismayed. "Your present business is already past. Let the past bargain with the past and decay in its own place. But you begin and work at the future. For the future is yours."

"It will ruin me," protested the old man.

"And if you have no soul," answered the other, "you are already ruined. But I have come to save you." As he spoke, the rich man saw the wonderful kindness in his eyes, like a thousand stars on a summer's night shining. "You are already dead, and this is the death you have to fear. I tell you that by my plan you shall conquer death and live in men until the day of doom. For gold properly put is the happiest thing on earth. Do you die and want all men miserable? Or do you live and want all men happy?"

And when he had finished rebuking him, the old man spoke and said: "My strange new thoughts tell me that I want all men happy."

"Then," said the other sternly, "you know my plan. Work at it."

And again a silence fell between them.

The big, hale, gray old man took up a tablet and pencil, which always lay near him wherever he went. He bent above the paper, tapping it with the pencil. Then he drew a rough outline, which was the United States, and split it crosswise and lengthwise. And he wrote rapidly, "Eastern branch—Western—Northeast—Northwest—Southeast—Southwest—Central," and stopped. Now, the Northeast section included New York City, and under it he wrote the name of "Parsons, General Manager." Under each of the other sections also he quickly wrote a man's name. He forgot the young Jew, gazing steadily at him. He tapped on the paper and sucked at his shaggy gray mustache for many minutes. "Yes," he said at last. "It might do. We would take over the Government's Employment Agency first. They have been losing too much money on it."

A sound old clock chimed half past two, and the pencil scratched energetically on, pouring out rows of figures and groups of compact names. The bobbing pencil seemed merry at the new task. The young Jew smiled in the silence.

Once the visitor interrupted: "You do what you do because you wish to?"

The old man merely nodded. He did not look up. If he had done so he would have seen the lips of the young Jew part slowly, his cheeks go paler than ever, his head sink, and the flame die out of his tired eyes. But the Jew did not speak, and the old man figured on; and the night hung close over the rich man's house. "In the right hands the right task has been put," murmured the stranger. Then, in louder tones, he said: "I must go!"

The old man heard. "Go now! Impossible! You must stay here to-night!"

But the young Jew shook his head sadly. "My work is done here. I must go."

"But the night is terrible——" protested the other. And the Jew said simply:

"No night is terrible to me."

And still the other kept saying: "But you shall stay and help me with this plan! You are a great man."

And the young Jew smiled weakly and replied: "You are a greater man for your plan than I am." He lifted his head. "I must go."

"Where must you go to-night?" asked the old man. And the young man answered: "Not far."

"And you will send the letter?" asked the young man, steadily.

To which he said: "I shall send seven letters."

"It is a sign," said the Jew. And they were silent, till the Jew put on his greatcoat and walked toward the door. At this the old man was for begging him again to stay, but the other checked him with his hand:

"Would you like to see another sign?"

They stood in the glass door, by the lawn, and he pointed upward through the night to where, above the rain, a great star was shining.

But the young Jew did not answer. He looked at his host and said: "Is your soul sweetened inside your body? Do you believe in your daughter's spirit? And do you believe in mercy and charity? Do you really believe in these things? For you see that star only because you believe in it. Otherwise, there is no star. You must believe, believe. These are my last words. All the rest of your life you must believe in what has happened here to-night. Use your strength to work out your beliefs; but see to it that you believe in a strength above that strength."

The vast night leaned above him as his dream overwhelmed him; yet he felt strangely peaceful and calm. What had happened to him? Was it all a fantasy, full of an inscrutable meaning? A bewildering spell with some implacable intention in its exercise? Something unreal . . . something to guess at? Something from another world, from a mysterious land, compelling him at Christmas time to remold his scheme of life . . . and death?

"William," he said to his valet, as he sat on the edge of his bed, "you don't know that old age is really a second childhood. But it is. Somehow, we old men swing round and come back to our youth."

"Yes, sir," said William, patiently. For William was sixty years old.

"Youth!" went on his master, looking out his window. "Glamour! Not knowing that things are impossible to begin with, but going in and doing them anyhow! All my life I've been learning what was foolish and what wasn't foolish. And now—deliberately—I am going to be a fool. Isn't that youth again? Triumph of spirit over matter! I am snapping my fingers at every rule of 'business' on earth; every 'business man' in the world is going to declare that I'm crazy, and prophesy my ruin. Why? Simply because I'm letting the youth in me have its way—the youth and all it stands for—ideals, generosity, poetry, wild schemes, the vigor to back them up!"

"Very well, sir."

"Wait a minute. Do you know why I am a happy old man this Christmas? Don't say 'No, sir.' It is because I've got illusions—illusions, William—and also the practical strength to carry them out. What I needed in life was an illusion, a dream. I had all the rest of the equipment. I had to have something crazy and magnificent to do. And a man came along and gave it to me to-night."

"A man came here to-night, sir?"

"Yes."

"Good Lord, sir!"

In the morning, as he served the coffee, William coughed a few times, then remarked:

"Merry Christmas, sir."

The old millionaire glowed like a giant Santa Claus. "Well, well. It has a pleasant sound this time, hasn't it?" he said. "Your present is in that top dresser drawer, William."

The valet did not move for a moment. Then he coughed again: "A—er—man was found dead on the place this morning, sir."

The cup stopped at his master's lips. "What man?" he asked.

"A young Jew? Poor?" continued the millionaire quickly.

"Yes, sir."

"What time?"

"The doctors say about three o'clock, sir."

"Down at the stables, eh? Where was he found?"

The voice that answered did not seem like the old valet's voice, so strange, so old, so awful were the words:

LIGHT AND POWER DEPARTMENT

OWEN N. HEATON.

My opponent, the Honorable Cyrus Cline, has prepared the statement given below, which he is causing to be distributed among the shopmen of Fort Wayne. I recognize his sharpness as a politician for not placing these statements in the hands for farmers. But Mr. Cline surely misjudges the honor and intelligence of Fort Wayne workingmen. He is only with us in campaign time. If his statements are true as to the cost of the articles named, in the year 1896, as compared with the year 1910, he cannot make any intelligent voter believe that the tariff is responsible for the increase in the cost.

The tariff duty on pork and beef and lard and veal was reduced 25 per cent.—on bacon and ham the duty was reduced 20 per cent. On flour and eggs and beans and potatoes and all dairy products the duty was not changed, and on no item in the list given by Mr. Cline was the duty increased by the recent tariff bill. So any increase in price cannot be laid to the tariff.

It is well known that the increased cost of many things is world-wide. The same condition exists in England, France and Germany, and all over Europe. There are various reasons given by those who have studied and investigated the question, but the reasons do not concern us so much as the facts. Below is a copy of Mr. Cline's circular:

ASK THE REPUBLICANS TO EXPLAIN ABOUT THESE STORE BILLS

Suppose you have purchased of the provision dealer in the last two weeks exactly what you purchased in the corresponding two weeks of 1896.

HEATON STANDS FOR THE PRESENT TARIFF

Heaton wants a tariff commission to revise these prices, which he knows cannot report until after the next presidential election. Meanwhile you pay the above trust prices that Heaton and his party are responsible for.

LOOK AT THESE TWO STORE BILLS. ASK THE REPUBLICANS TO EXPLAIN.

I join with Mr. Cline in the request that the laboring man consider the prices of the articles in his list in 1896 as compared with the prices in 1910. But in all fairness, Mr. Cline, let us ask the laboring man and every other good citizen to consider the demand for labor; the wages and general condition that prevailed in 1896, as compared with 1910.

How many men were idle in 1896? How many now?

What were the wages of those who were employed in 1896? What are they now?

How many men were in Coxey's army? How many in Kelley's army? How many in other armies of the unemployed in New York, Chicago and Fort Wayne? How many starving armies are there now?

How many soup houses were there in 1896? How many now?

Which is preferable—free soup as a whole meal or soup as one course of a square meal?

A FEW OTHER INTERESTING COMPARISONS

Men idle, according to Mr. Gompers, in 1896..3,000,000
Men working part time in 1896.....5,000,000
Men idle in 1910—None, if worthy and willing to work.

Treasury deficit in 1896.....$25,000,000
Treasury surplus in 1910.....$15,000,000

Value of farm in 1896.....$14,727,000,000
Value of farms in 1910.....$30,138,000,000

Value of farm products in 1896.....$2,000,000,000
Value of farm products in 1910.....$9,000,000,000

WHICH FIGURES DO YOU PREFER? WHICH POLICY DO YOU PREFER?

That which brings low prices, low wages and cheap men, or a policy of construction and attainment and progress and prosperity?

Yes, by all means, Mr. Cline, let us invite comparison of the conditions in 1910 with conditions in 1896, and you are authorized to continue to distribute your statement that Heaton stands for the conditions in 1910 as preferable to that of 1896.

We know by experience that conditions might be worse than they are now. I also believe that present conditions can be improved and I desire to be classed with the progressives in the purpose to make good conditions better.

Both the leading political parties believe in a revenue tariff tax. I believe that the protective tariff policy is essential to the welfare of the American people. I believe in the protective tariff policy measured by the cost of production at home and abroad. I believe that there is evil in our present system of making tariff laws, and that the policy of protection, so essential to our business welfare, should not be left in its execution to the uncertainty of partisan politics.

I believe in a non-partisan tariff commission such as is adopted in Germany and other strong commercial nations, whereby we can learn the facts and without delay legislate on one important schedule at a time, free from every other interest, except the general welfare of all the people. I believe that such a system is essential to the progressive and permanent prosperity of all our people.

O. N. HEATON

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 4.—Short sellers evinced a disposition today to avoid pressing the wheat market too suddenly. The spirit of caution resulted partly from the fact that Liverpool cables were comparatively steady notwithstanding the long break in prices here. Local traders nevertheless seemed bearish to a man because of the recent weakness of the market in the face of heavy buying. Relative firmness in European centers was attributed to better consumptive requirements and lighter shipments. Prices here opened ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher. December started unchanged to ¼c up at 87½c to 87¾c, touched 87⅞c and declined to 87⅜c.

Scattered shorts were buyers of corn. May opened a shade to ¼@⅜c up at 49¼c to 49⅜c and steadied at 49⅛@49¼c.

Oats were held down by the action of wheat. May started a shade higher at 34⅜c, sold at 34½c and reacted to 34¼c.

Provisions took a waiting attitude with other staples. First sales were 2½c lower to 2½c advance, with January at $17.07½ to $17.10 for pork, $10.27½ for lard and $9.07½@9.10 for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Nov. 4.—First prices of stocks today were higher than last night but the gains were small and the dealings light. United States Steel, Reading, Missouri Pacific, Southern Railway preferred and American Woolen rose large fractions and International Harvester a point. Canadian Pacific and American Smelting preferred lost ¾.

Buying of United States Steel paused after it had touched 81 and the rise in the rest of the list also halted. International Harvester improved 2¾, Southern Railway preferred and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1¾.

The further rise in stocks was ascribed to the belief that the coming elections would not have any unsettling influence in financial markets. The three usual speculative favorites, United States Steel, Reading and Union Pacific, absorbed the bulk of the dealings. Wide advances were made by some of the less active specialties. Reading and Pullman advanced 1½, Union Pacific and International Paper preferred 1 and American Air Brake Shoe 5. Western Union declined 1. Bonds were steady.

Continued accumulation of United States Steel and Reading raised them to 81¾ and 156, respectively. Otherwise the fluctuations in the stocks were not insignificant. International Harvester got up 4 points. Great Northern Ore Certificates 1⅝, Federal Mining preferred 1⅜, Allis-Chalmers preferred 1¼ and Ontario & Western, National Lead and American Car preferred 1.

Room traders took profits in a moderate way and there was a reaction of ½ to ¾. Rock Island preferred moved up 1½ and Louisville & Nashville 1.

The market closed irregular and dull. There was an abrupt relapse in the final hour led by a sudden fall in New York Central of 1⅝. Earlier gains were wiped out. Canadian Pacific dropped 2 below yesterday, American Can preferred 2½, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie 1⅝, Amalgamated Copper 1½, Southern Pacific 1¼ and Union Pacific, St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Wabash preferred, American Smelting, Anaconda, American Locomotive and others a point. Supporting orders checked the decline and rallied prices.

Rumors in Paris of Death of Spanish Monarch Unfounded.

London, Nov. 4.—A rumor from Paris that King Alfonso of Spain had been assassinated was circulated through the stock exchange at the opening today, but it was considered to be on a par with the stories of a revolution in Spain that originated recently in the same quarter with the purpose of influencing the market. The result of all inquiries was to discredit the story.

GIRLS HURTS NOT SELF-INFLICTED

POLICE SCOUT HER STORY OF ASSAULT

While the police are engaged in an effort to prove that Florence Moore was not assaulted and dragged into an alley on East Lewis street Wednesday night, Dr. A. H. Macbeth, the surgeon in attendance upon the injured girl, insists that it is not within the range of possibility that her injuries are self-inflicted.

"That girl was handled very roughly by somebody," said Dr Macbeth today. "And when she was brought into the hospital we thought she was dead. Her condition is better today but the theory that she inflicted those injuries upon herself is not to be considered for a minute, in fact it s impossible.

"I don't think she ever had a revolver or fired a shot or two shots and in my opinion the information she has been giving the police is not of much value. Her skull is fractured and it may be necessary yet to operate and we would have done so before if we had been able to locate the fracture. Her mind is not clear, her thoughts are all jumbled and until this is cleared up she will not be able to give any reliable facts."

The Theory of the Police.

Information has reached the police that the girl has been under treatment for a form of epilepsy, complicated by a slight hysteria and Chief Elliott thinks that, laboring under an attack, she grasped her own throat and inflicted the injuries which he does not believe are serious, and then went and lay down in the alley.

The girl had been taking treatment for some sort of an ailment but physicians attending her now do not thing it hadthink it had progressed to a stage where it would have prompted her to have wrenched at her throat and thrown herself down in an alley to raise the presumption that an assault had been made upon her.

From Theodore Havert, who was the first to reach the girl, and from Mrs. Theodore Smenner, who gave the alarm, the police have obtained statements showing that Miss Moore's clothing is not disarranged. Her hat was on her head and her skirts were down to her ankles.

Examined in Light.

She was found lying against the fence at the east side of the alley and a piece of paper was lighted in addition to the lantern that Havert carried and both say there could not have been any mistake about the clothing or the hat.

The police believe that she could not have been choked and dragged a distance of seventy-five feet without having her clothing deranged and they feel sure that even with no other derangement of her attire her hat would at least have fallen off.

They also think that the statement about the revolver is either an hallucination or an attempt to bolster up a story that is not true. Further evidence in support of the theory is that two young men were at a rear window of the Havert home, that teh lower sash was up and they heard nothing of a struggle in the alley.

She Exclaimed, "Oh, Dear!"

Mrs. Smenners also said that the girl exclaimed, "Oh, dear!" and did not moan, as has been stated, and this is taken by the police as proof that she was conscious at the time she was found. The pocketbook which was thought to have been taken was found in her trunk.

A physician on behalf of the police department made an examination of the patient today and concurs in the opinion of the department that the injuries are not too severe to have been inflicted by the girl herself. He also reported that the wounds which she said were inflicted in the attack she says was made upon her Monday night are scratches running diagonally across her body and do not bear the appearance of having been made with a knife.

Cohen in Indianapolis.

A telegram from Martin H. Hyland, chief of the Indianapolis police department, eliminated Sam Cohen from the case. The message states that Cohen boards on Harrison street in Indianapolis and that he was in that city at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. This insures that he was not in Fort Wayne.

Last night the police were called to the hospital and Miss Cecelia Feist said that Miss Moore told her that as she passed the alley on her way to meet her sister two men attacked her. One seized her and dragged her into the alley while the other stood guard. She insisted again that she carried a revolver and that she fired twice at her assailant.

Miss Moore Makes New Statement.

In a statement made through Miss Feist to Detective Sergeant Ward Hall this afternoon, Miss Moore insisted that she carried a gun the night she was assaulted and that she fired twice. She said she bought the gun of a pawnbroker in Logansport when she was there the last week in August of this year and kept it in a trunk in her room.

She said she told her sister nothing of it because she was nervous and she did not want to worry her about it. She added that after she left the office of the Trade Mark Title company she went to her room at the Foster residence and put the revolver in an inside pocket of her coat.

She then walked across the street to the Feist home and from there went to meet her sister. She said she had passed the alley about ten feet when two men approached her from behind, seized her and dragged her into the alley.

These statements were made to Miss Feist, who has been with the injured girl most ofthe time and through her they were communicated to the police. The police have the address of the pawnbroker from whom she says she bought the weapon and will ascertain whether or not her story is true.

The condition of the young woman late this afternoon indicated some improvement and gave further hope of her ultimate recovery.

A "YELLOW HEADED" GIRL CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Mrs. Bridgman Sues for Support and Goes After Her Rival.

Charging that her husband spends his time and his money in the company of a "yellow-headed" girl Mary E. Bridgman has filed suit in the superior court against Harry Bridgman demanding $100 a month for her support and asking a receiver for the Automatic Music company, in which he is interested.

She says the girl with the yellow hair is Alma Kaado, who was wanted as a witness when Bridgman sued his wife for divorce some time ago and failed to get a verdict on the showing made by his wife. The Auto Music company is a concern that derives its principal income from musical devices in bagnios.

Mrs. Bridgman says that she has been accustomed to the best of everything and that $100 is not too much for her support and will only provide her with the things to which she has been accustomed. She also says that her husband makes $500 a month and is able to pay it. The divorce case was a sensational affair and the wife made no effort to get a decree, simply confining herself to resisting his application. Judge R. B. Dreibelbiss is her attorney.

No New Trial for Miller.

Prosecutor A. E. Thomas and Deputy Harry Hilgemann are back from Auburn where Judge Best yesterday denied a motion for a new trial in the case of Herman Miller. The usual time was given for filing a bill of exceptions and the prisoner will probably be taken to Michigan City tomorrow to begin his term for manslaughter. Judge R. K. Erwin, who made the motion, is confident of another victory in the upper court.

Threatened to Kill Them.

Ollie G. Finly has filed a suit for divorce against Ben C. Finly in which she charges that he threatened to kill her, their daughter and himself. She also says he slapped her, threatened to strike her with a poker and accused her of infidelity. They live at 205 Grand street, and H. I. Smith is her attorney.

Withdrew the Complaint.

A complaint filed in the circuit court by Howard Smith against Grace Smith asking a decree of divorce was withdrawn from the files by Breen and Morris, the attorneys in the case.

KEEP EYE ON THE GLASS.

Judge Advises Farmer to Be More Careful the Next Time.

Frank France, a farmer who insisted that somebody put something in his beer that made him run amuck on the streets with his big wagon and jam the pole into the side of a street car, was fined $1 and costs in the city court for public intoxication. The judge advised him not to take his eyes off the next glass of beer he drinks to insure that he will not be doped.

Mike Lafferty and John Driscoll were fined $5 and costs each for drunkenness.

SALE IS APPROVED.

Sol A. Wood, referee in bankruptcy, today approved the sale of the Star Match company property at Elkhart to John W. Fieldhouse for a consideration of $4,300. It is said that in all probability a new company will be organized and the plant, which was destroyed by fire, rebuilt. Elkhart men interested in the case who were in the city today were G. R. Sawyer, Edward E. Zigler and E. A. Skinner, attorneys, and P. T. Longworth, a business man.

The Elks are removing the carnival floats recently purchased from the Mystic Shrine from the east car barns and storing them in a building at Centlivre park and in the Gruber foundry building.

UNION DEMANDING RECOGNITION NOW

Rock Upon Which Prospect of Peace in Express Strike May Split.

DO NOT OBJECT TO OPEN SHOP PLAN

Talk of General Strike in the Country if Peace Move Fails.

New York, Nov. 4.—Union recognition, the rock on which it was apprehended the peace movement in the express strike might split, today appeared to be a stumbling block in the way of effective preliminary negotiations between companies and men. Two of the companies still held out against the treating with the strikers except as former employes.

The men declared that while they do not demand a "closed shop" they must insist upon recognition of their organization. This state of affairs has brought the situation to a renewed deadlock and the outlook for peace, which was so promising yesterday, seemed decidedly poor today.

Steps to hamper the companies in the use of strike-breakers have been taken by the strikers' leaders in invoking an old ordinance providing all express drivers must be licensed.

It is declared none of the men who have succeeded strikers as drivers of the companies' teams have secured licenses.

Talk of General Strike.

Talk of a general strike throughout the country was revived today when it was seen the negotiations for a settlement were at a standstill. Daniel Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said he had sent out word to general organizers all over the country to organize thoroughly and be prepared for a general strike if one were deemed necessary. He declared, however, he was here in the interest of peace and did not care to commit himself on the general strike proposition.

BOARD STOPPED THE WORK ON HOME AVENUE

Member Henry Hilgemann, of the board of public works stopped work at Home and South Wayne avenues this morning where the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company is trying to take out a sharp curve but he was forced to threaten the men with arrest before he accomplished his purpose.

There is a reserve curve at the point and a sharp one and the company sought to remedy this. Property owners contend that it brings the tracks too near the curb and made a complain. There will be no more work done until the matter is adjusted.

Gas Company in Way.

The gas company was in the way of the contractor this morning and there was no chance to continue laying sidewalk on the west side of the north approach to the Calhoun street tunnel.

The company has been delayed by the fact that braces used to support the concrete walls put in by the Pennsylvania company were in the way and were not removed until yesterday.

Board of Works.

Allen Martin's second application for a sewer tapper's license was refused by the board of public works last night. The board said he had violated the rules and forfeited any claim to recognition.

Assessment rolls for paving Calhoun street were approved.

Contractor Tripeor has notified the board that the Pontiac pavement has been completed and the assessment rolls were ordered.

A petition for widening Packard avenue from twenty-five to fifty feet was received.

O. F. Menefee has notified the board of the completion of the sidewalks on Suttenfield street and assessment rolls were ordered.

THE WEATHER.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Indiana.—Increasing cloudiness, probably rain late tonight or Saturday, warmer in east and south portions tonight; colder in northwest portion Saturday; moderate southeast shifting to northwest winds Saturday.

Ohio.—Fair tonight, Saturday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably followed by rain in west portion; brisk north winds diminishing and becoming variable.

COLONEL ADMITS MAY GET BACKSET

WILL BE UP AND AT 'EM AGAIN

Roosevelt Begins Campaign in Hawkeye State to Large Crowd.

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 4.—Several thousand persons listened to Theodore Roosevelt here today when he made his first speech in Iowa for Charles Grilk, republican candidate for congress. Colonel Roosevelt's welcome was cordial, but with no marked degree of enthusiasm.

Colonel Roosevelt reached Davenport at 2:30 a. m. and remained in his car until 8 o'clock when he went to the home of Miss Alice French for breakfast. A small crowd at the station cheered him as he appeared. After breakfast he drove to Central park to make his first speech.

Colonel Roosevelt spoke from the band stand. More than an hour before the time for his arrival people began to gather and when he reached the park he was greeted by a large crowd. Representative A. F. Dawson, of Preston, made the opening speech.

Party is Coming Together.

"After all the turmoil," said Colonel Roosevelt, "the republican party is coming together on a sane and progressive platform, while our opponents are utterly divided.

"The official leadership of the democratic party," Colonel Roosevelt continued "is either absolutely reactionary, as is the case in New York, Connecticut, Missouri and in many states, or else it is purposeless and vacillating."

He took up the tariff, repeating the argument he has made in several states on that issue. He said the republican principle of protection had been approved by the country, but the method of adjusting the tariff had been shown to be bad. He explained and endorsed the tariff commission plan.

Admits Prospect of Defeat.

"We're in this fight to fight to a finish," continued Colonel Roosevelt "We don't care whether there are temporary checks. I don't think we will be defeated this year, but if we are we will fight on until Appomattox succeeds Bull Run. If we are beaten this time we will win next time."

The colonel referred to the political situation in his own state, reading the circular sent out by the Tammany Hall campaign committee appealing for funds "to defeat the wild doctrines of Roosevelt."

He said Tammany Hall and Wall street had formed a corrupt alliance, but they could not defeat the republican policies by fair argument, or by any method other than by a large expenditure of money.

Explains New Nationalism.

The colonel explained his doctrine of "new nationalism," giving his usual definition of it as the application to new conditions of the old moralities. He again expressed his disagreement with the supreme court in the "bake shop" case, and his criticism of former Judge Simeon Baldwin, democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut, for his decision against the workingmen's compensation act.

Colonel Roosevelt explained all he sought was an equal opportunity for every man. "My opponents call that socialism," he said, "but it is the antidote of socialism."

FLEEING WOMAN IS KICKED TO HER DEATH

Plunges from Third Story Window During Fire in in New York.

New York, Nov. 4.—One woman was killed, several persons were injured and there were numerous narrow escapes in fires in various sections of the city today.

Mrs. Rebecca Acnock, the woman killed, is declared by witnesses to have been kicked from a third floor fire escape while she was fleeing with her husband and children from a fire set by an incendiary in the Clinton street tenement in which they lived. The woman's assailant is unidentified. Another woman fell from the rear fire escape and was severely hurt. The building was badly damaged.

In a fire in a West One Hundred and Thirty-first street apartment house policeman carried most of the panic-stricken occupants clad only in their nightclothes down the fire escapes. One woman was badly injured by a fall from the first story platform.

Several firemen were injured by flying glass and brick following an explosion of acid tanks during a fire in a loft building at 27-31 Bleecker street. Chief Croker estimated the damage at $100,000.

L. M. Johnson has been called to Marion by the death of his brother-in-law, Samuel Spencer. The deceased lived in Fort Wayne about twenty-five years ago.

ABSOLUTISM OF CENTURIES DYING

TEEMING MILLIONS TO BE LIFTED UP

Pekin, Oct. 4.—An official decree was issued today announcing that an imperial parliament, the first in the history of China, would be convoked in 1913.

This is a concession on the part of thethrone to the demands of the recently constituted senate and delegations of the provincial assemblies, which recently memoralized the government in behalf of the early constitution of a representative legislative body. The police went from house to house informing the occupants of the edict. Presently the dragon banner and paper lanterns appeared above every door. Beyond this there was no public manifestation over the news.

TALK TO AUDIENCE OF 1,000 AT GARRETT

[Special to The Sentinel.]

Kendallville, Ind., Nov. 4.—Starting the farewell campaign tour in the Twelfth district at Garrett this morning, Governor Marshall and Congressman Cline addressed an audience of fully 1,000 people at Garrett at 11 o'clock today, and each was given a very warm greeting.

The speaking was from a platform erected in front of the Hotel Broughton, and E. M. McKennan, democratic nominee for representative in DeKalb county, presided, while the Auburn band furnished music for the occasion. In his address Governor Marshall urged the election of a democratic legislature and the democratic state ticket, declaring that with democratic officials competely in charge of the state government he could pledge an administration along lines of genuine reform reducing at the same time the expenses of government.

Two automobiles from Kendallville were on hand to take the governor and his party to that city without delay. Fred Hess in his car carried Governor Marshall, with T. A. Redmond and John T. Stahl, the latter the democratic nominee for representative in Noble county. C. M. Chase, of Kendallville, drove the auto which carried Congressman Cline, District Chairman Hoffman, Fred France and Claude Bowers, of Huntington, to Kendallville.

At the southern edge of this city the party was met by an escort of Kendallville democrats and driven to the Reyher hotel. Here T. A. Redmond presided, and both Governor Marshall and Congressman Cline addressed a big crowd from the veranda of the Reyher hotel. At 2 o'clock Governor Marshall delivered his principal address at the Boyer opera house.

REACH FORT WAYNE TONIGHT.

Hupmobile Drivers Leave Hicksville at 3 O'Clock.

The delegation of Hupmobile drivers en route from Detroit to this city made stops at a number of points, resulting in a disarrangement of the running schedule. The cavalcade left Hicksville at 3 o'clock this afternoon and will arrive in Fort Wayne early this evening. A party of Fort Wayne automobilists went to Maysville to meet them and escort them to this city.

OLD FORT HOMING CLUB.

The Old Fort Homing club held its annual election last night, when it selected the following officers to serve for the year 1911: President, Henry Beach; vice president, William Keyser; secretary and treasurer, Roy Eggeman; race recorder, A. I. Rondot; race committee, A. I. Rondot, Fred Bosselmeier and Earl Menefee. The meeting was well attended and the interest displayed presaged a very successful season in 1911. Six new names were added to the membership rolls last night and an amusing and interesting feature of the gathering was the talk on "Which is the Most useful Bird, a Pigeon or a Duck?" Mr. Rondot was the chief speaker, favoring the duck, but the sentiment of the others favored the pigeon. The meeting closed with a banquet.

PRINCE HATZFELD DEAD.

London, Nov. 4.—Prince Francis Hatzfeld-Wildenburg died here today. The prince was born in Hesse-Nassau in 1853. On Oct. 28, 1889, in London, he married Clara Huntington, daughter of the late Collis P. Huntington.

Funeral services for Albert, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Alter, were held this morning from St. Mary's Catholic church and were very largely attended. Sympathizing friends completely filled the large auditorium of the church.

OLD BOREAS GETS AN EARLY START

PREMATURE BREATH OF WINTER IS FELT

New York, Nov. 4.—A storm of midwinter intensity which came booming up the Atlantic coast last night, bringing with it sharp gales and heavy falls of snow and rain, left today a broad trail of broken wire communication along the seaboard. Telegraph companies were beset with difficulties in all directions.

The storm was apparently severest between Baltimore and Washington, all wires being down between those cities. Early communication with Chicago was obtained by way of Boston, thence to the west. Communication with eastern points was affected by the storm which brought down the snow coated wires. New York state felt the storm and wires worked poorly. Broken wire communication affected some of the railroads and trains from distant points were in some cases far behind their schedules.

Five steamships due at quarantine this morning were still unreported at 9:30. The steamers are evidently detained by the high gales and mountainous seas.

A steamer believed to be a storm victim was reported anchored off Sandy Hook in a disabled condition. She is the French steamer Honduras, from New Orleans, Oct. 23, for Dunkirk and Havre, and presumably made this port for refuge in her crippled state and to effect repairs.

FIERCE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—The northeast gale which came in from the ocean yesterday developed during the night into one of the worst November storms in years. In the mountain districts of Pennsylvania snow fell to the depth of twelve inches and in some places drifted badly. Railroad and trolley service in these sections is impeded.

The storm was accompanied by a high wind, which played havoc with telegraph and telephone wires.

Part of the anthracite coal region is snow bound. At Delano, one of the highest points in the region and at Frackville, more than a foot of snow fell and drifted in places to three feet.

Trolley service was maintained with difficulty and the Pennsylvania railroad was obliged to use the tracks of the Philadelphia and Reading railway company, because of the heavy drifts.

Business of all kinds in Schuylkill county was practically at a standstill, the storm having caught the region entirely unawares. Harrisburg, Lancaster, York, Williamsport and other points west of Philadelphia are cut off from all wire communication.

SNOW THROUGHOUT MARYLAND

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—Last night's storm, which played such havoc at the aviation field, caused serious interruption to telegraph and telephone service. The long distance telephone companies reported no communication in any direction.

This forenoon the storm showed signs of abatement, although a mixture of snow and rain was still falling and a strong northeast wind was blowing. The snow fall, which was the first of the winter, was general throughout Maryland.

EIGHTEEN INCHES OF SNOW.

NO FLYING TODAY.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—Col. J. H. Joyce, chairman of the committee that is promoting the Baltimore aviation meeting, announced today that the meet would continue. He declared that the reports of the damage to the aeroplanes by last night's storm were greatly exaggerated. There will be no flights today.

Miss Violet Coil entertained a number of friends at a masquerade party at her home at 2220 Smith street, on Monday evening. The games played were of the kind appropriate to the night and a luncheon was another enjoyed feature of the party. Prizes in games were won by Misses Hazel Spore and Anna Chandler. Other guests were Misses Cecile Ake, Marie Winebrenner, Mary Cartwright, Maud Nipper, Florence Kennedy, Leta Morton, Mildred Coil, Mrs. W. H. Coil and Messrs. Preston Ake, Henry Hoffman, Fred Wesloe, Joe Winebrenner, Mahlon Morton and Herschel Coil.

DEATH COMES AS RESULT OF BURNS

Mrs. Nicholas Petgen Dies After Ten Days of Suffering.

While Demented, Woman Had Set Fire to Her Own Clothing.

Mrs. Addie Petgen, wife of Nicholas Petgen, a city patrolman, died at 8 o'clock Friday morning at the family home, 3530 Hanna street, as the result of burns sustained ten days ago. Mrs. Petgen was 52 years of age.

Unusually sad circumstances surround the case. Since February last Mrs. Petgen had been suffering from dementia, and with mind beclouded ten days ago she escaped the watchfulness of attendance, made her way to the barn on the Petgen premises and set fire to the clothing she was wearing. Before friends could reach her and extinguish the flames Mrs. Petgen was seriously burned, her hands and almost the entire left side of the body being involved.

With her clothing aflame the unfortunate woman had run from the building out into the yard, and here the flames were smothered and the injured woman assisted into the house and physicians summoned. Despite the extensive nature of the burns, it was at first believed that Mrs. Petgen would survive, though now it seems a miracle that death was so long deferred. During the long months of her mental infirmity Mrs. Petgen had been given every possible care and attention, and in addition to providing a nurse the devoted husband had taken leave of absence from his duties as patrolman much of the time in order to assist in caring for his wife.

Mrs. Petgen was born in Allen county and her entire life had been spent here. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church and is survived by the husband, three brothers and three sisters. The brothers are Frederick, Frank and Joseph Aubrey, and the sisters Mrs. J. H. Hartman, Mrs. Budd Slater and Mrs. G. W. Surfass, all of this city.

MICHIGAN CANCELS THE GAME WITH NOTRE DAME

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—The Michigan-Notre Dame football game, scheduled for tomorrow, was cancelled today.

The sale of seats for the game was stopped this morning and it was expected that later in the day definite announcement would be made that the game had been called off.

The board of control of athletics at the University of Michigan this afternoon cancelled the game. Notre Dame insisted upon using Philbrook and Dimmick and Michigan refused to go on with the arrangements for the game if these two players, whose eligibility has been challenged, were to be in the line up.

It is understood here that the cancelling of tomorrow's game also means the ending of all athletic relations between the University of Michigan and Notre Dame.

The official statement given out by the board of control says:

"Messrs. Philbrook and Dimmick, after competing five years in intercollegiate athletics in Nnorthwestern college, and being barred from further competition there, have come to Notre Dame and have already competed two additional years at that institution. The intercollegiate conference has officially decided that these players were ineligible to compete in the conference meet of 1910 and disallowed the points won by them."

THINK MOVE UNCALLED FOR.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 4.—A letter from the University of Michigan football authorities protesting the eligibility of Dimmick, Philbrook and Mathews, three star Notre Dame football players, was received this morning by the Notre Dame board of athletic control. The protest is considered uncalled for by the Notre Dame officials.

It is claimed that two players on the list sent by the University of Michigan have completed four years in college athletics at a recognized school, but no action has been taken in the matter. No word has been received at Notre Dame that the game has been called off further than that given by the Associated Press.

Ladies of the Maccabees Exemplify Latest Ceremonial.

Approximately one hundred candidates from Fort Wayne and surrounding cities received the degrees of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World under the new ritualistic ceremony of that order in the district rally held in Fort Wayne today. It was the first time the new work was ever conferred in this city.

There is an attendance of several hundred ladies at the district convention held in the Lau building, the largest delegations being from Huntington, which is represented by 53 members; Bluffton, by 38, and Auburn, by 32. Other cities in the list are Peru, Wabash, Laketon, Columbia City, Angola, Wanatah, Warren, Logansport Kendallville, North Manchester Garrett and Butler.

School of Instruction.

The morning session today was given over to a school of instruction and the question box, conducted by Miss Bina M. West, of Port Huron, Mich., supreme record keeper of the order. This afternoon Mad Anthony hive No. 27, Fort Wayne, had the opening ceremonies, the Garrett hive conducted the draping of the altar and the Bluffton hive was in charge of the draping of the charter.

Huntington hive conferred the first and second degrees, with Kendallville giving the third degree and Bluffton the special degree. The work is followed by a reception at the Grand dancing academy this evening.

The reception at the Anthony hotel Thursday evening was an extremely enjoyable event. The supreme officers, the commander and record keepers were in the receiving line, and Hive No. 6 presented floral offerings to the state commander, Mrs. Grace Meredith, Miss West, the supreme record keeper, the deputy commander, Mrs. Sarah M. Elliott, Mrs. Celia S. Krall, commander of Fort Wayne hive, and Dr. Harriett Stemen Macbeth. The presentation was prettily done by Little Miss Violet Reinewald. Miss West spoke briefly during the evening. Miss Barnhill gave a number of readings, and the musical program was contributed by Mrs. Macbeth, Mrs. Wolf, Miss Leah Underwood and Miss Helen Fox and Arthur Richards. The committee in charge included Mrs. Celia S. Krall, Mrs. Katherine Reinewald, Mrs. Charles Fox, Mrs. Harriett Macbeth and Mrs. Mary Fisher.

Active in the Order.

Mrs. Grace Meredith, of Wabash, state commander of the Ladies of the Maccabees, is also third supreme trustee of the order, and has long been active in its councils. Her energy, her good judgment and her clear perception have been of incalculable value to the organization.

Mrs. Elliott is the deputy supreme commander of the fraternity, and has been at work for some time in Fort Wayne and surroundings in the interest of the Ladies of the Maccabees. It is largely through Mrs. Elliott's efforts that the big class of candidates was secured for admission at the Fort Wayne meeting.

NOT REPRESENTING THE B. OF R. T.

PRESIDENT FERGUSON RESENTS IMPUDENT ASSUMPTION.

To the Public:

Owing to the fact that members of our organization have been taking an active part in the present political campaign, and have been spreading the impression that they are representing our organization in so doing, I feel called upon to make this statement on behalf of Fort Wayne lodge No. 136, B. R. T. We are not a political organization and believe that our work in the interest of the workingmen of this community can best be carried on by not taking any part in this campaign. We want it distinctly understood that our organization is not interested in furthering the interests of either political party, and that any man who is engaged in soliciting votes in favor of either party or of any candidate in this campaign does so as an individual and not as a representative of our organization.

W. E. FERGUSON,

RUMFORD
THE WHOLESOME BAKING POWDER

In order to demonstrate the utility of electric stoves for household use, a dinner was recently given in Chicago which was cooked on an electric stove adapted for a family of eight. However, eighteen persons were served, showing that the family range would be of ample capacity to meet all requirements of special dinners. The dinner consisted of consomme, roast beef, lima beans, potatoes, short cake and coffee, and the cooking occupied two hours, with an electrical expenditure of 2,310 watt hours. The cost of the cooking, at the prevailing rate for current, was about 23 cents. In the cooking the fireless cooker principle was employed to a certain extent, the food in each case being subjected to a maximum heat for a short time, after which the current was cut off, or at least greatly reduced, so that the heat absorbed would permeate the food and cook it.—Scientific American.

One of the most harrassing of troubles, though fortunately not fatal, is constipation, and millions of people suffer with it from infancy to old age. Its cause may be traced to any one of a dozen different circumstances of diet, environment and even birth.

Millions are practically born with constipation. Had they used intelligent methods at the beginning perhaps they would have found relief, but they had the usual misfortune of bad advice. They tried dieting, stewed fruits, then laxative waters, then pills and various other cathartics, and so in the end made matters worse. But there is still hope, even for the seemingly hopeless.

Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It has been on the market for many years and is as staple in the households of those who know its value as salt and sugar. It is a liquid laxative-tonic that you can buy of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size. But if you prefer to learn its value personally before buying, then send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly send you a free sample.

It is without doubt the best laxative for constipation that you can find, and in every way the best remedy for that and headaches due to constipation, indigestion or dyspepsia, heartburn, drowsiness after eating, gas on the stomach, biliousness and similar troubles. It is a mild, gentle remedy free from griping and bad taste. Children take to it readily. It is a standby in the homes of Mr. George W. Zimmerman, of 1617 N. 6th St., Harrisburg, Pa., Robert Atkinson, Sr., of Cuba, Ill., and thousands of others.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

TRIMMED HER CORN AND LOST HER LEG

Amputation of Toe First Made Necessary and Then the Leg at the Knee.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 4.—Amputation of the left leg of Mrs. George Beeching, of Union township, has been found necessary as a result of infection following the trimming of a corn and she was removed to the local hospital for the surgical work. Mrs. Beeching lives near the Whipporwill school house in Union township. For some time a corn on the small toe of her left foot had caused her trouble. She suffered from a disease in which the arteries harden and naturally her feet were affected first. Gangrene set in and it was necessary to remove the toe. Heroic measures were adopted to check the infection, but they were unsuccessful and after a consultation it was decided to remove the legt at the knee. Mrs. Beeching is forty-nine years of age and her condition has been a serious one for some time.

Vichert, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Wayne, will be invited to be present and deliver an address. At this meeting, among other things, will be discussed the organization of a brotherhood, and it seems very likely that such an organization will be perfected.

GARRETT DENTIST IS SUED FOR $500

Case Grows Out of the Making of Set of False Teeth and Garnishee Suit.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 4.—All on account of a set of false teeth and the treatment of decayed natural teeth, Charles J. Bryant, of Garrett, has filed a damage suit in the DeKalb circuit court, demanding judgment in the sum of $500 from Dr. Dale Beechler, a dentists of that city.

In his complaint Mr. Bryant says he employed the doctor to make a set of teeth for Mrs. Bryant at a cost of $24 and that the treament given her cost an extra $24, totalling $48. The bill, the plaintiff declares, was exorbitant. $14 being reasonable inasmuch as the teeth were worthless to his wife, but that he paid $19.50.

Mr. Bryant is an employe of the B. & O. in the shops at Garrett and he has less than $600 of property of all kinds and says his wages are exempt by the laws of Indiana from attachment and garnishment upon contract debts.

In view of these facts the plaintiff says the doctor represented to one H. B. Sybold, of Wheeling, West Virginia, that he had a valid claim of $48 against Bryant for the purpose of having Sybold garnishee his wages, all of which was done, and rather than adding the expense of going to West Virginia to defend himself he released $48 of his wages.

Because of this "false and fraudulent representation" to the West Virginia claim agent and the "malicious prosecution" Mr. Bryant demands damages.

Those who enjoyed the treat were Henry Hite, John Bowers, John Niblick, French Quinn, W. J.Vesey and son, Dick, of Fort Wayne, and all of the employes of the Old Adams County bank.

The Root Juice Sensation Growing

Wonderful things are happening here these days. Many people that suffered with chronic troubles for years, and had lost all hope of ever seeing another well day, have been entirely cured by the use of a few bottles of the new remedy that was introduced by the scientist to the people of this community, and as the remedy has cured so many of this locality, the extraordinary sales of it do not diminish, but continue on the increase. We hear that druggists all over the state, that have the agency for the wonderful medicine, say they never saw anything like it, as it gives almost universal satisfaction, and makes so many cures that are positively wonderful. Among the many recent cures the great remedy has made were some that even our best doctors thought were beyond help. The remedy seems to soothe, heal and tone every organ of the body. Its soothing, healing and tonic effect on the stomach, bowels, bladder, liver and kidneys has been experienced by so many of this locality that it is useless to publish names, as cures have been made in almost every neighborhood. The people at Bradley Bros. drug store, 627 Calhoun street, are glad to tell all callers of the wonderful merits of Root Juice.

DIABETES

In people of sixty and over results are quite uniform, probably nine-tenths recovering. While at fifty and over a large majority of all cases yield to the treatment, below fifty and approaching forty the disease gets more stubborn, and between thirty and forty the percentage is not high—probably not much over half yielding.

Under thirty the percentage is less and in children have been very low and most of those were obtained with the aid of skilled physicians forcing nutrition, with alkaline treatment to prevent formation of acetones.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Always state age. Literature mailed free. Jno. J. Fulton Co., 645 Battery St., San Francisco, Cal. We invite correspondence with physicians who have obstinate cases.

AS TO POSTMASTER HANNA.

The postmastership in this city has become suddenly an interjected issue of the local political campaign. In what degree it may have estimation as a real issue, to what extent it is a cause likely to be weighted with consequence, we do not know; but we believe and certainly we hope that in the interest of the newer and better school of politics, no less than in the interest of the public service, it is no issue at all.

The people of Fort Wayne are thoroughly satisfied with the administration of the postoffice in this city and will be found upon any occasion for expression of their sentiments almost unanimous against any change. For almost five years Mr. Robert B. Hanna has served this city as postmaster. His administration has been marked by a continuous progress in efficiency and enlargement of the postal service here. The local postoffice force has never been directed with better intelligence, the public has never been so well served, the employes from lowest to highest have never exerted themselves with greater punctuality or more mindful courtesy to render satisfaction to patrons of the postoffice than has been and is true under Postmaster Hanna. The local postoffice ranks among the first half score in the entire United States for efficiency of service and care of administration in all departments.

The general expectation all along has been, and never was it more so than now, that Postmaster Hanna will be recommended without question for reappointment. No reason that can rest in sound judgment, concern for the public interest, progress of the civil service or even in political advantage may be found for making or considering any change. We do not believe that Senator Beveridge, who is vested with the party authority for recommending an appointment to the Fort Wayne postoffice, can have in his serious consideration any thought of doing what would be resented by all the business interests and practically the entire people of Fort Wayne. We do not believe he has or has had it in mind to do a thing that would so instantly and completely belie all he claims to uphold and all he is allowed the merit of upholding in the cause of better politics and progressiveness in government. We do not believe he has any thought of slipping backward to the old and pernicious order of partisan things and making of the Fort Wayne postoffice a dirty bit of spoil to be huckstered about for what he may be able to get for it. We do not believe in the probability of any of these things because we cannot believe of Senator Beveridge any such species of political degeneracy as the truth of these things would imply.

We believe that he would have spared himself and his sincere supporters no little embarrassment had he disposed of this postoffice matter here some months ago as the people of Fort Wayne, without regard to partisan connections, would have him dispose of it and as we believe in his own time he will at length discharge this duty to the public welfare. But whatever his reasons for delay we cannot on any ground constrain ourselves to belief that he means to repudiate a man whose desert is a matter of common admission, whose reappointment is the object of unanimous expectation and whose rejection, under all the circumstances as they are, would simply mean to prostitute the postoffice here to base uses as spoil.

Colonel Brady is the name of a warrior who contributes another explanation to the several purposed to account for the blowing up of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor twelve years ago last February. He says a Cuban did the job and that it was a fanatical adventure designed to force the hand of the United States against Spain. It is of minor consequence that the war department discounts Colonel Brady as a colonel and that Admiral Wainwright brands his story as a myth. If the man with the job of raising the Maine ever gets through with it perhaps it may be definitely told just how the ill-fated warship came to her doom. It has been the shame of the United States for a dozen years that the old hulk was allowed to rot in the ooze of Havana harbor with no effort made to do what is dictated by national honor, self-respect and dignity, not to speak of any considerations of humanity for the scores of bodies still in the wreck. Colonel Brady's story answers as well as any other until tangible proofs of the facts are had by the raising of the wreck.

Society is taking a hand in the garment workers' strike and the attendant riots in Chicago. That is all right and all well enough for society and not bad for the strikers, but it will get those girls and women a lot more if the concerns that sweat and starve them are made to feel that indignation and sympathy can be made to go farther and hit harder. It was once tried with the sweat shops and it worked a deal of good.

Democratic candidate for congress in New York city has distributed five hundred cats in his district to circulate his plea for votes. Each voter who gets a cat will quietly drop puss inside the hall of some fellow voter and so on ad infinitum. The republican opponent ought to have it made just about unanimous for him.

If autumn can keep on shouldering off the advance of winter the street paving, the tunnel work and other public projects long under way and still unfinished will stand a good chance of completion by New Year's sunrise without putting that event back any.

Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Massachusetts—all saved by the colonel, if they are to be saved. If he contrives to pull the home state through, he will be content, believe us.

A CARD FROM MR. FERGUSON.

Nov. 3, 1910.

To the Public:

Owing to the fact that a member of our organization has been taking an active part in the present political campaign, and has been spreading the impression that he is representing our organization in so doing, I feel called upon to make this statement on behalf of the Fort Wayne lodge, No. 136, B. of R. T.: We are not a political organization and believe that our work in the interest of the workingmen of this community can best be carried on by not taking any part in this campaign. We want it distinctly understood that our organization is not interested in furthering the interests of either political party, and that any man who is engaged in soliciting votes in favor of either party or of any candidate in this campaign does so as an individual, and not as a representative of our organization.

Manila, Nov. 4.—The assembly today unanimously re-elected Manuel Quezon delegate to congress. The assembly refused to elect Benito Legarde, whom the commission has named as the second congressional delegate. It is expected the assembly and the Philippine commission will be deadlocked on the matter of the representation at Washington, as it has been customary for each house to name one delegate.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF LABOR.

Argentina Settles Industrial Disputes Through That Medium.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Labor problems affording a parallel to conditions existing in the United States are being amicably adjusted in Argentina through the efforts of the national bureau of labor, according to a report from United States Consul General R. M. Bartleman, stationed at Buenos Ayres. Of the 214 strikes which occurred during the first quarter of 1910, involving 17,095 workmen, several of the disputes were settled by the immediate influence of the bureau.

Immigration statistics compiled by the bureau show Argentine's net gain for the first five months of this year to have been 34,394, which has been exceeded only twice within the last six years.

RIOTS IN BARCELONA.

Union Strikers Fire on Non-Union Workmen in Spanish City.

Barcelona, Nov. 4.—Union strikers fired upon non-union workers as the latter were leaving the factory last evening and wounded three.

The general strike at Sabadell is assuming a dangerous character. At a meeting of strikers at which inflammatory speeches were made, it was voted to march on Barcelona tomorrow.

Anarchistic literature urging a revolution is being distributed throughout Barcelona province. Many arrests have been made.

"Arcade Real Estate"

A property is worth what it will pay interest on, the standard of value the world over; there is no other standard, and the "Arcade rentals" will soon be $12,000 per annum, 6 per cent. on $200,000, from which a certain deduction must be made for ground rent.

The buildings are in excellent condition, good to stand twenty years longer, but of course will not stand that long because the rapid growth of Fort Wayne will compel, absolutely compel, the occupancy of such valuable ground ($3,000 per front foot some day) with a building of far greater capacity, an eight story dry goods department store, "The Arcade Grand." But for the present it pays best the way it is, a two story building with every room rented (and calls for more) the best income producer in this city, or any other city that I know of.

The east line of my west 60 feet of ground covers 15 feet of the 20 feet corridor north and south, which 15 feet will be amply wide as a frontage street for the present seven (7) stores to do business on, for twenty years to come, whereas the remaining 5 feet of the corridor belonging to the east 50 feet lot would not be wide enough for such a purpose by itself alone, a decided advantage adhering to my west 60 feet over the east 50, and which will probably insure a further renewal of the ground lease on the east 50, if desired, four years hence.

A reception that was beautiful in all its appointments was given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hunt at their home in West Wayne street. There were over one hundred guests, including the members of Mr. Hunt's bible class, who were the honor guests. Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Travis received the callers with Mr. and Mrs. Hunt and at the door was Miss Ruth Lane, who acted as an usher. In the dining-room were Mrs. A. S. Coverdale and Mrs. W. A. Jones and they were assisted in serving refreshments by a bevy of young girls, Miss Ethel Doud, Miss Olive Doud, Miss Marguerite Langford, Miss Katherine Freese, Miss Jean Lockwood. A refreshing punch was served in the library by Mrs. W. E. Doud and Miss Keegan. The house was decorated with a profusion of pink roses and chrysanthemums. The dining-room was especially attractive with a bowl of the flowers on the table and pink shades to the candles, and there were many flowers and ferns in other rooms. Music was rendered during the reception hours, 8 to 10 o'clock, by Ashbaugh's orchestra.

EFFECTIVE WINTER BLOUSE.

By MRS. JANE FORD.

7 SIZES 32 TO 42 BUST

It is impossible to own too many separate waists, and this season "Dame Fashion" is kind to the home sewer, for blouses must be plain, no matter for what occasion.

Developed on these lines is the charming model shown here. And those who wish the pattern for it can get the design in six sizes, that run from thirty-two to forty-two inches bust measure.

The materials used in these waists are of all kinds of weaves, and may be secured for almost any price wished.

To construct this model from goods twenty-four inches wide, three and one-quarter yards will be needed, but of thirty-six inch fabric only two and one-eighth yards is required.

The yoke and collar should be of a contrasting weave, and for these three-eighths of a yard eighteen inches wide must be provided.

The waist portion of this garment is plain, with the exception of a tuck at each shoulder. These tucks are stitched full length in the back, but only yoke depth at the front. Shaped pieces of trimming extend from beneath the tuck at the shoulders, and at the sides of the yoke. A band of the same goods finishes the collar at the top, the edges of the cuffs and the girdle.

A waist in this model intended for afternoon use could be silver gray marquisette, draped over an ashes of rose silk lining. Green velvet embroidered in silver might be used as a trimming, and the yoke and collar of silver net laid over chiffon.

THE SIZE OF WOMEN'S HATS

A tendency to reduce the amount of trimming put on some of the shapes is making itself felt. This tells chiefly on the broad-brimmers for ordinary day wear, matinee and other smart hats continuing to exhibit an abundant supply. A large Breton, or clerical shape, in beaver or melusine is in high favor, only trimmed with a rosette ranging in size from a bun to a dinner plate. These are shown in the deep shades of most fashionable colors, particularly pheasant brown, dark blues, maulik greens and Comete violets.

Many of the bun rosettes are in clustered steel beads, their own color or else gilt or burnished. The latest idea is to work them with a design in relief for which some heraldic blazon is generally selected—a knight's helmet, for instance. Rather large ones that look like double dahlias are made of taffeta. A sunflower rosette has frequently a center made of dull gold lace frilled round with a ruffle of wired white lace, while some of the largest sizes are composed of shirred ruffles and pleatings of ribbon placed alternately. Where a small rosette is used it fastens back the brim on one side, whereas a large one is generally set against the crown. This shape of hat is also much worn in black velvet, when the rosette is generally white, very pretty ones being made entirely of white silk cord. A large single poppy is made of white velvet or white rabbit skin with a jet center, or a magnified edelweiss in white velvet will sometimes take the place of the rosette. Five or six of these poppies set around the crown make a very smart trimming for a black beaver.—The Millinery Trade Review.

Creamed Sweetbreads.

Drop the sweetbreads as soon as received in cold water. Change the water as needed until they are white; then place in a sauce pan with half teaspoonful of salt, a thin slice of onion and a tiny bit of mace; cover with boiling water and simmer very gently for half an hour. Drop them into cold water until chilled, when they are ready to prepare in any way.

To cream put in the chafing dish one tablespoonful each of butter and flour and work until mixed and bubbling. Slowly add a cupful of rich milk or thin cream, stirring until smoothly thickened. Drop in the sweetbreads—either whole or diced, cover, slip the hot water pan underneath and let simmer until the sweetbreads are thoroughly heated.

Measured Angel Cake.

Take one glassful of the whites of eggs, which will be nine or eleven according to size of eggs, add one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a pinch of salt. Beat until stiff enough so the dish can be turned upside down and the eggs will stay firm, then season. Stir together one cupful of flour and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, into this fold the eggs lightly, so lightly that particles of beaten eggs can be seen as the mixture is turned into the baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven until a nice light brown.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"WAY DOWN EAST" TONIGHT.

The success which has attended "Way Down East," as produced by William A. Brady, elaborated and staged by Jos. R. Grismer, would have been of a phenomenal nature under any circumstances, but considering the number of years the piece has been before the public, it is positively astonishing. Of course, it is true the plays modeled closely after nature, have a lease on life that is not characteristic of less faithfully drawn works, for while one may admire the complex situations and sharp wit of modern society comedy, it is the simple episode of heart penetrating power that is carried home and remembered.

The environment in which the characters of "Way Down East" live and move and have their being also, is of a nature to cause many a country-bred man and woman to mount the steed of memory, and go galloping through the years to the well-liked scenes of their childhood. The dooryard of the Squire's home on a summer's day, with a view of the rolling meadow lands, and of the road along which pass the various people of the drama, is tempting in its atmosphere of heartiness and hospitality; so too, the the "settin' room" and the kitchen in which Mrs. Bartlett's friends take refuge from a driving storm, and sit down to supper before a roaring fire.

"Polly of the Circus" Twice Saturday.

The mystic world of red wagons, clows, peanuts and sawdust and the big tent of a circus will be seen in Frederic Thompson's production of "Polly of the Circus," which will be seen at the Majestic on Saturday afternoon and evening. While the play carries with it the atmosphere of the sawdust ring and its accessories, which is usually more or less prosaic and far from being romantic or sentimental, there has been woven into it by its author, Margaret Mayo, a touching romance of love which is forcibly and capably brought out.

There is an ideal heroine for a love affair, "Polly," the pet of the circus, and afterward the bride of a minister in a graceful and artistic manner. Polly is not a noisy, uncouth "circus lady," but is the portrayal of a refined and gentle young woman who, "shy" on education but rich in principle, is injured through a fall from her horse and becomes at the termination of a pretty little love affair, instead of a bareback rider, a helpmate for the parson, whose sympathy leads her into a personage and thence to a life which is spiritually sweet and happy. Mr. Thompson has provided an exceptionally strong cast of capable artists.

Vaughan Glaser will be seen at the Majestic for three days, starting Monday with matinee Tuesday and Wednesday, in "The Man Between," by the well known author, Rupert Hughes. Last season, under the title of "The Bridge," Harrison Grey Fiske presented Guy Bates Post in this play, in the high prices houses. Owing to Mr. Post's contract with the New Theater company, he was obliged to give up the play, and Mr. Glaser was enabled to get the rights to it, also the entire production, which is one of the biggest that has recently been seen. One act shows the building of a giant cantilever bridge across a deep ravine. This scene is out of the ordinary run of stage mechanics.

Mr. Glaser will be seen in the role of John Stoddard, the builder of bridges and leveler of class distinction. The chief interest centers in the romance; the love story of John Stoddard and Janet Van Nest, the engineer of the bridge, and the daughter of the president of the corporation which is building the giant structure. They stand wide apart in birth, breeding and social environment, but they have a common love for humanity. The staging is realistic in the extreme, but most effective of all is the bridge building scene, showing a big cantilever type of bridge in course of construction, with the workmen busy about and upon it. Mr. Glaser has, in John Stoddard, a part thoroughly suited to his temperament and style.

SEEKS TO DIVORCE PRIEST HUSBAND IN RENO

Reno, Nev., Nov. 3.—The startling story of a Catholic priest's secret marriage and the thrilling events said to have followed when the heads of the Catholic church in America learned of the ceremony will be told in the local divorce courts some time next week, when an action, which will be entitled Ellen P. Hare against Louis T. Hare, will be heard.

It was under the name of Hare that the parties to the secret marriage were made man and wife. This was done in order to conceal the identity of the man, who a few years ago was a well known Catholic priest of Brooklyn.

The woman was Miss Ellen Haste, whose father was a prosperous butcher of Brooklyn, Hendrick Haste by name, who died twelve years ago. The love story of these people is strange almost beyond belief. Miss Haste was a member of the priest's church, inside the doors of which they first met.

Miss Haste refused to wed him at first, and they separated. One day she received a letter asking whether she would come to him or if she desired him to come to her. She consented to the first plan, and they were secretly married on the night of November 13, 1902, by the Rev. Frederick Mortimer, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church. The priest took the maiden name of his mother, and the Episcopal divine was unaware of his identity.

The two lived secretly together, but their wedding was discovered by the woman's brother, who came upon her unexpectedly in her apartments shortly after the birth of a child. Her brother never disclosed the secret.

Shortly after Mrs. Hare left New York. In May, 1904, their actual relations were disclosed by accident, and the Catholic church began a rigid investigation, under Bishop Charles B. McDonald's direction. The couple were separated by the church on May 14, "Hare" being compelled to go to Europe, where he was placed in the Trappist monastery in Ireland. After he was allowed to return to America and was stationed in a southern parish.

"Mrs. Hare" is a woman of forty years. She has been living quietly here with a private family since last April. She will sue for divorce on the grounds of desertion and failure to provide. She says she still loves her husband and believes he is at present in Brooklyn under the protection of fellow churchmen.

Asthma Cured

TWO MEN FROM OHIO TOWN PRAISE FORT WAYNE DOCTOR.

Two well known business men of Antwerp, O., Mr. Zeigler and Mr. Busby, are being treated for asthma by Dr. Wells, of this city. Both have been almost invalids for years, having bad coughs and so stopped up at night that they were unable to lie down much of the time. In two weeks they sleep like a log, feel well and breathe naturally, feel like prize fighters, as one of them expressed it. These are fair examples of all the other asthmatic patients taking treatment at Dr. Well's office. Those who are in doubt about the efficacy of this treatment are invited to call and see the patients taking treatment and learn for themselves the positive results to be derived from this treatment. It is curing up old cases of asthma after everything else has failed.

Chronic bronchial, catarrhal and throat affections are all benefited in a very short time. Electricity is the medium through which these cures are mainly effected, and those who are tired of drug medication should not fail to avail themselves of this treatment. Dr. Well's office is located at 229 East Berry street.

At Waukegan, Ill., a workingman having been informed that a sixth baby had arrived at his home, exclaimed, "Sufficient," and his neighbors, referring to his having given that name—sufficient—to the new arrival, credited him with originality. The incident resembles a case nearer home. A New York family was blessed with nine daughters, when the stork brought a tenth one. It was in the days when the slang term for an oft-told story was "a chestnut," and as the baby certainly came under that head she received the name, but for euphony's sake the French for the word was employed, and she was called Marron.—New York Tribune.

MAKING GOOD BOYS OF BAD

(New York World.)

Group into one class fifty boys, the worst the city can produce, and ask the average person what the result will be. Chances are their reply will closely coincide with General Sherman's terse definition of war.

Gather together fifty of Jersey City's most flagrant juvenile offenders and assemble them in Mrs. Bessie Clements' incorrigible class and ask her what will follow. She will unhesitatingly reply:

"In one month, unless all precedents are upset, I will return them to their original classes, each and every one a model pupil, and, better still, each my friend for life."

Many people might say this is an idle boast, but Mrs. Clements has demonstrated its literal truth time and time again to the board of education of Jersey City, the judge of the juvenile court and the probation officer. And, more to the point, she expects to keep on correcting incorrigibles, winning their friendship and dog-like devotion just as long as her strength holds out and she is able to cope with the little idlers who have been expelled from other schools and sent to her for reclamation.

But how does she do it? To this question she invariably replies, "By using common sense."

"Of course, every newcomer scouts my ability to tame him, and boastfully informs the older members of the class of his intentions to 'do' me.

"But had I to start out with a class of fifty recruits without a single old pupil among them, my work today would be but a repetition of that I had the first year here. Words fail when I attempt to tell you what that first year was. I won my way to the ascendency by sheer force. More than one boy openly attacked me, and it was necessary to lick him, and do it before the eyes of the entire class. Such drastic measures are rarely necessary now, but tire class' respect for its teacher."

Fine Gymnasium in Yard.

When the visitor drops in on Mrs. Clements' "incorrigibles" he is taken to the school yard first. There the boys are taken when they become restive in class and evince signs of losing interest in the inside work. All the paraphernalia of a well equipped gymnasium is at hand, and all was "begged" by Mrs. Clements. When a boy falls behind in his class work he is not kept in. He is allowed to go to the yard with his classmates, but he is not permitted to participate in any of the games or sports. This is the most severe punishment that can be inflicted.

Seeing the other boys leaping, pitching and boxing, the sluggard sits by heartbroken, and with few exceptions he approaches the teacher and tells her he sees the error of his ways, and if forgiven this once he will not offend again.

The boxing is conducted along scientific lines, and the best boxer in the class is Miss Clements. She will "don the mitts" with the biggest and huskiest boy in her class, and she always "cleans up." There have been instances where a boy with the tendencies of a bully has been called into the yard in the middle of class hour and made to put on the gloves with his teacher. When he returned to class he was a sadder but wiser lad, for he invariably received the licking of his life. Mrs. Clements is always in perfect physical condition, for, as she puts it, "I have to be, for I never know what is going to happen.

"I am in reality teaching five grades and at the same time continuing the work which I conduct here along my own lines. This includes manual training, gymnastics and elocution. Some of my boys are born actors, and I shall be greatly surprised if their names are not emblazoned in glittering electric letters along the Great White Way some day."

Kind, Warm Hearted Woman.

History is practically demonstrated, and this is where the histrionic abilities of the little pupils are given full scope. When the class comes, for instance, to that chapter dealing with Columbus' discovery of America, all the parts are taken by the boys and the discovery is acted from start to finish. This is a popular play, for when the hostile Indians ambush and then charge the explorer and his little band, the Indians charge with all the zest and savagery of the "real thing."

That clause in history which treats of Paul Revere and his ride is another stirring drama which the "incorrigibles" never tire of acting. They make the rafters ring with their declamatory climaxes and at the conclusion of the play beg that it be repeated.

Beneath the stern exterior of this novel little teacher a warm, kind heart beats, and to this more than to anything else can be attributed her success with her boys. Some of these are sons of wealthy and influential parents; others, and the majority of them, come from the slums. Yet no partiality is shown.

"They are mischievous," said Mrs. Clements, "but I wouldn't give a snap of my finger for a boy who isn't. I don't care how bad he is when he comes to me. I will cure him and earn his undying gratitude at the same time."

Then she opened a drawer in her desk to show the motley array of trinkets, pressed flowers, pictures and what not she has carefully preserved.

"All these are presents from my boys. God love them! And I wouldn't part with a single thing in this desk for all the money in the world.

"If I could just run across some philanthropist who would give me moving picture machine and a farm to take my charges to in the summer months my cup of happiness would be full. For then I could have my boys with me all the year round and there would be no strayers from the fold."

McAleer Made Milan by Proper Kind of Treatment

Clyde Milan, the Washington American's great little outfielder, joined the club in Norfolk last March wondering whether Manager Jimmy McAleer was going to keep him on the club or let him out to the minors.

Two years ago Manager Cantillon spoiled one of the best outfielders in the business by his bulldog tactics, or, in other words, Cantillon got Milan's "goat" and really made the young man believe that he was not fit for the big leagues.

It all happened early in the 1909 season, when Milan, in one of the western games, was sliding to base and wrenched his ankle. Word was passed to Cantillon that Clyde had broken his leg, and the former remarked: "I wish he had broken both of 'em; he isn't any good."

This last statement got right back to Milan, and as the boy is keenly sensitive, he carried a small-sized grouch along with him during the remainder of the season. Consequently, the Washington club was not favored with Milan's best efforts.

Last March Milan was in none too amiable a frame of mind, and knowing little of Jimmy McAleer or his methods was wondering what would happen, figuring that McAleer would possibly use Cantillon's tactics and that he (Milan) was slated for an early berth with the minors.

Not so with McAleer, as Manager Jim during the last week of practice paid considerable attention to Milan, and frequently walked out to the ball park with Clyde. In cheering words he often said: "I know you've got it in you, my boy, and I am counting on you to do a lot for me this season."

All Milan needed was a little encouragement, and McAleer came across with the right stuff; incidentally he made one of the best outfielders in the league out of him.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Washington club last week, the gentlemen who control baseball in the capital decided that Milan's work during the season just closed deserved something more than their stamp of approval, and voted to send him a good-sized check in token of their appreciation.

The foregoing is only one sample of Manager McAleer's methods. He seemed to know just how to handle Milan, and that Milan delivered the goods is easily shown by the young man's record.

Great things are expected of Clyde next season.

YOUNG "JAKE" SCHAEFER

New York, Nov. 4.—The name of "Jake" Schaefer, who held so prominent a position in the world of billiards for years, may be destined to make more history in the sport. The fifteen year old son of the late "wizard" has come to this city to embark on his career as a balk line player, and at Maurice Daly's academy, in exhibitions with Ora Morningstar, will show just what he has inherited in the way of mastering the difficult game. Young "Jake" first started to play over in Paris when he was only seven years old, but never took up the game seriously until two and a half years ago, when his family moved to Denver. That he has learned a lot in the time that has intervened since then was shown yesterday in his practice. He has the same free, quick stroke that was characteristic of his father's style and is not a bit afraid to try almost anything. He said that he liked massed masse shots about the best of all and he gave some very pretty examples of this sort of execution.

MATTER OUT OF THE HANDS OF THE BOARD

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—While the Michigan board in control was in session taking action on the eligibility of Notre Dame players here was received of the action of the conference at Chicago in declaring Dimmick and Philbrook, so far the matter was practically taken out of the hands of the Wolverine authorities. As a result, the expected ultimatum to Notre Dame was not issued. If it is the board refused to divulge its contents.

"That action ought to settle the whole matter," said Professor Goldbrook in making a brief statement expressing the hope of the board. "That Notre Dame will not play any men who are not eligible under their contract, which contains the rules of eligibility adopted by Michigan, including the three-year rule.

"Now that Notre Dame knows the ruling of the men questioned it seems improbable that they will insist on using them against us," he continued.

"What will happen if these men appear in uniform and attempt to play?" he was asked.

"I can't say. I don't think it will come to that, though. I think Notre Dame will withdraw the men and the game will go off all right."

Inasmuch as the charges against Mathews are less certain, it is possible that Michigan will agree to compromise and let him take part.

Philbrook and Dimmick Are Declared to be Ineligible.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The University of Notre Dame has lost the honor that went with the winning of the western conference meet, held at Urbana on June 4 last. A finding by the conference committee that two of Notre Dame's point winners were ineligible has been made public. As a result Leland Stanford will be awarded first place and Notre Dame set back, probably to second. The inquiry was instituted at the request of the University of California.

The men whose points were thrown out are Dimmick and Philbrook, against whom Michigan had filed charges that they are ineligible to play in tomorrow's football game at Ann Arbor. The conference found them ineligible on the ground that they had competed three years before entering the Urbana meet. The two athletes had given the conference a true account of their previous athletic careers and their eligibility hinged on the standing of Whitman college at Walla Walla, Wash. At this school, the men had performed one year as freshmen and two years as preparatory students.

Fogel Would Like to Have Him

EVERS, CHICAGO SECOND BASE

New Orleans, Nov. 4.—Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia club, who is here in connection with a damage suit against the Western Union Telegraph company because a messenger boy ran over him with a bicycle, said that Johnny Evers, of the Cubs, would make a fine manager, and said that if he could get him he was going to make a try. He would not say that he was going to let Manager Dooin out as the result of Dooin's trade with Cincinnati, but left the impression that if he could get Evers or a man as good he would clinch the deal.

He said he had not been doing any talking about the trade with Cincinnati.

"I have never said whether I liked the deal or not," said Fogel, "but I do say that no employe can make any trades without my sanction. Baseball law covers that pretty clearly, and if baseball law does not then the common law does. If Mr. Herrmann has any trades to offer I am the one in authority to be consulted, and any trades with anybody else affecting my men do not go."

NAVIN SAYS HE HAS NO DEAL ON FOR JOHNSON

Sets at Rest Report That He Wants to Trade Cobb for Pitcher.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 4.—President Navin, of the Detroit baseball club has put a finish to all of the talk that has been made here about a possible trade of Ty Cobb and Walter Johnson.

"Every newspaper in Detroit insists on discussing this trade as though the two clubs were corresponding with each other about it," he said. "I want to say now that neither club has approached the other on this matter.

"Johnson, in my opinion," continued President Navin, "is the best pitcher in the country, and doubly valuable because he is so young a man. That is one reason why Washington would hardly think of trading him.

"From my angle I would not give up the great outfielder for a great pitcher, because any trifling injury may hurt a twirler's arm so he is gone for a season, while an outfielder, unless very badly hurt, seldom is out of any number of games during the year.

"I don't know how long I will be in baseball, but I never expect to be lucky enough to pick up another Cobb. So for that reason I am going to cling to him as long as he stays in the game. If I am still with the Detroit team.

"Regardless of all the talk of dissension and stories that Ty himself thinks a change would do him good, he is a Tiger fixture, and that no other club has anything that I will take in exchange for him."

The Detroit president says that he doubts that Washington would consider any offer for Johnson from any club. For that reason he would not broach a deal involving any of the players he would be willing to exchange. Washington, he says, could wire almost any cash price for Johnson and get a check in the return mail from this city.

Milan is another player for whom Detroit would give a big price either in cash or in exchange. Many Detroit fans place him next to Cobb in value, though Speaker is a big favorite here.

They like Milan's hustling, and figure that he would be a wonderful run maker, just as Johnson won to be a great winner, on a club that hits hard and scores as often as the Tigers do.

DAYTON MAY LOSE CATCHER.

Chicago Said to Have Transferred Rohrer to Des Moines.

Dayton, O., Nov. 4.—Secretary Elmer Redelle has filed a protest against the transfer by the White Sox of Catcher W. U. Rohrer, to the Des Moines club, of the Western league. The Dayton club bought Rohrer some time ago and paid a fancy price for him and is determined to have him if there is any base ball law that will permit it. The absence from Chicago of President Charles Comiskey has made it impossible for the local secretary to communicate with him.

GEORGE E. S. BAYLESS.

George E. S. Bayless is a young man regional player on the Villa Nora eleven and Coach Fred Crolius, the old Dartmouth star, predicts a bright future for the clever youngster. Bayless is nineteen years of age, weighs 205 pounds and is a freshman. His home is at Baltimore. Last year he made position of fullback on the All-Baltimore Interscholastic team.

Sporting News in Tablets

Friends of Ad Wolgast say that he has practically agreed to meet Battling Nelson on the coast in February.

The fact that the meeting of the National association and the Central league will be held at the same time has given rise to talk of redistricting the territory.

Besides using more players than any club in the American association last season, Louisville worked twenty-one pitchers in regularly scheduled games.

Tired of being called the Stags, Raiders and Cravenetts, an effort is being made to get the fans to select a new name for the Grand Rapids team.

Jim Delehanty, Tiger's second sacker, is slowly recovering from a badly damaged leg, injured last September. He will be unable to use the limb for some time to come.

Jack Rowan isn't losing much sleep over his transfer to Philadelphia. "I'll go to Philadelphia and trim the Reds every time I face them," Rowan is credited with having said.

American league played seventy-two "extra inning" games in 1910, and the Nationals had fifty-four contests where more than nine rounds were required to decide the result.

Jack Lapp caught Jack Coombs in about twenty-seven victories during the regular American league season. That's why Coombs steadied down in the last game of the world's series. He had his kid battery partner behind the pan.

The longest major league game of the 1910 season was the 16-inning 1-1 game between Cleveland and Philadelphia on July 22. There were other 16-round contests, but all were decided in sixteen innings but the Nap-Athletic game.

The Giants handed Mathewson a $400 watch after he had won four games in the post-season series from the Highlanders. The Giants are an appreciative bunch, after all. It is seldom the players give anything away to anyone.

There is every likelihood that Joe Jackson, the outfielder the Naps secured from New Orleans, will be one of the sensations of the league next season. The former Athletic fielder played remarkable ball at the close of the season and in the series with Cincinnati.

Johnny McGraw hopes that the Reds-Phillies deal does not go through and that Dooin will not be the manager of the Phillies next year. Muggsy wants a good catcher for the Giants and likes the actions of Dooin well enough to take him if he can get him. So do a lot of other managers in the league.

Jack Barry and Ed Walsh live in Meriden, Conn., and instead of having only one celebrity now the town has two, and the fans of the city are kept busy doing honor to both of the famous players. Walsh has been the only notable citizen of the place up to this year, and Barry was a very jealous young man until he reached home this fall.

HENDRICKS LANDS KENWORTHY

Zanesville Pitcher Will Go to the Denver Club.

Jack Hendricks has landed another Central leaguer for his Denver team. President Ban Johnson's bulletin announces the release of Pitcher W. J. Kenworthy to Denver by the Boston Americans, and in Kenny Jack is getting a good man.

Kenny is not only a high class pitcher, but is one of the best all-around men that ever played in the Central league. He can hit, as a batting average of .310 in 87 games last year will attest, and with a seventh place club he won 22 and lost 17. He handled more fielding chances from the box than any other hurler in the league last year and also played the infield and outfield a good deal of the time.

He is a valuable man for Hendricks, and if he reports in time to get in shape next spring there is little likelihood of him coming back to the Central or any other league under class A. His failure to report in time lost him a chance at Columbus last spring. The Red Sox secured him by draft.

MAY GET COLLEGE TEAM.

Application has been made to the Friars' football team by Ohio Northern University, of Ada, O., for a game here on Thanksgiving, and the date may be given to the students. Just now the club is putting all its energy into the preparation to meet Huntington on Sunday.

There was a time in England when government officially viewed the press as a hostile power, to be destroyed if possible—to be curbed at any cost. In 1633 Roger L'Estrange, "overseer of the press," brought out his "Considerations and Proposals in Order to the Regulation of the Press." He advocated the severest restrictions for authors and printers, as well as for "the letter-founders and the smiths and joiners that work upon the premises," and "the stitchers, binders, stationers, hawkers, mercury women, peddlers, ballad singers, posts, carriers, hackney coachmen, boatmen and mariners."

This year's vintage in Italy is expected to be very bad. In fact it has been estimated that the eleven million acres of vineyards throughout the country will not yield more than 103,293,214 tons of grapes, 45 per cent less than last year, and that consequently only 739,000,000 gallons of wine will be produced, as against 1,585,000,000 gallons produced in 1909. The wine production last year was exceptional and retail prices were so low that until May wine growers hardly derived any profit from them.

ON weekday mornings Mrs. Bowser doesn't have to wake Mr. Bowser from his morning nap over three times to get him out of bed, but on Sunday mornings it's different. She has to begin at 5 o'clock to get him roused out three hours later. He gets into such of his clothes as he can handily find to come down to breakfast, and he is about to find fault with the coffee, the rolls and all else when he suddenly thinks of a better thing and observes:

"Mrs. Bowser, I shall go to church this morning."

Mrs. Bowser turns pale. The bolt strikes home. She knows what his getting ready for church entails. She has been through the program. She makes no reply, however, and at the end of ten minutes Mr. Bowser guesses he won't go, after all.

Mrs. Bowser fetches a sigh of relief and says she has a headache and will remain at home with him. The words have hardly been spoken when he says:

"We will go to services, of course. I don't propose to allow our neighbors to class us among the heathen. It's an example we should show to the world, even if we are not professing Christians. I'll start about getting ready right away. I know I shall feel better all the week for going to church this morning."

Mrs. Bowser shakes her head in a doubtful way and wishes it were Monday morning. She loves to hear a good sermon, but does not love the home preliminaries. They are about to begin. Mr. Bowser has gone upstairs to dress. At the end of five minutes he is heard calling:

"Oh, Mrs. Bowser!"

"Yes."

"Have I got a change of shirts in this house or have they been sold to the rag buyer?"

"They are in the second drawer of your dresser and have never been kept anywhere else. Are you looking in the storeroom?"

Finds His Shirts.

Mr. Bowser doubts her statement. He looked into the drawer before he hollered and not a blamed shirt was there. He looks again and finds five. Some trick on Mrs. Bowser's part. He is occupied for five or six minutes and then it is time to shout again, and he shouts:

"Mrs. Bowser, have you dropped dead in your tracks down there? If so, please inform me!"

"Well, what is it now?"

"Is my Sunday suit in the ash barrel or did you give it to a tramp? I've looked the whole house over, and it is not to be found. By thunder, but I don't wonder that so many husbands commit cold blooded murder!"

He opens the closet door and is thunderstruck to behold the long lost suit on the hooks. How did it get there? How long has it been there? There's something uncanny about the thing. He yanks the garments down and flings them on the bed and is then ready to call downstairs:

"Mrs. Bowser, will you ask the girl to please look in the coal bin and hunt me out a collar? If you are going to keep 'em down there after this say so and save me the trouble. I'm not a particular man, but"—

"Your collars are in the first drawer of your dresser. It's curious how blind some men are!"

"Mrs. Bowser, we will not go to church!"

"Very well."

The collars are there, of course. They have been kept in the same drawer for the last seven years, but Mr. Bowser has always looked for them first under the bed or in the closet. He uses up ten long minutes with collar and tie and then thinks it time to stir it up Mrs. Bowser with:

"Hello, down there! If you are there, Mrs. Bowser, will you kindly condescend to step this way? If so, you will put me under everlasting obligations."

"Well, what is it?" she asks after toiling upstairs.

Socks Also in Place.

"Socks, Mrs. Bowser—socks," he whispers with a wave of his hand. "I've been buying socks all my life. I've bought over a billion pairs. I bought three carloads only last week, and it seems as if I ought to have at least one pair around here. But I haven't. I've even been up on the roof to hunt. Perhaps you will kindly"—

"See here," she interrupts as she walks over to the dresser and pulls out the bottom drawer. "What do you call these? Your socks have been kept in this same place ever since we lived in this house. Why didn't you look in here?"

"Mrs. Bowser, we will not go to church! We will not stir a foot to go!"

"I am glad of it."

"That is, we will go in spite of all your tricks. I see your fine Italian hand in all these little tricks, but we shall go to church just the same."

"Where did you get that necktie?"

"What's the matter with it?"

"It's one of your old ones I flung into the storeroom. Here are the good ones. And now I suppose you have looked into the furnace and out into the alley for your cuffs?"

"Exactly, Mrs. Bowser. I've hunted for two long hours, but I haven't been able to find what you gave the cook to kindle the fire with."

"I think I see the drift of this thing," said Mr. Bowser as he shook all the cuffs out of the box. "You and I will have a long talk after returning from church. You may go down if you wish."

Mrs. Bowser disappeared, and he suddenly thought of his cuff buttons. To his great surprise they were before his eyes instead of being under the bed. To his further amazement he donned his coat and vest without the bedstead falling down or the lavatory exploding, but he soon recovered from the shock and walked out into the hall and shouted:

"If there is a living soul downstairs let them answer me!"

Mrs. Bowser came upstairs to ask what was the trouble.

More Trouble Untangled.

"Might I presume to ask what your object was in sewing up my coat and vest? See how they bunch!"

She advanced, gave the garments a few pulls and jerks, and the bunches disappeared.

"And these trousers," he said—"they are forty rods too long."

"That's because your suspenders are dangling around your knees instead of being over your shoulders."

"But this infernal collar is sawing my ears off. When I hear of a husband chopping up his wife with the ax"—

"Pull your shirt down and your collar will be all right. You are all bunches."

"Mrs. Bowser, I am going to look for a handkerchief, but of course it will be labor lost. The cook is doubtless using them for dishcloths."

She pulled out one of the small drawers of the dressed, and the handkerchiefs were there. Then she turned and walked downstairs. Half an hour later Mr. Bowser followed. He had put on the old suit he used when he worked around the house. It was greasy, paint spotted and ragged. As Mrs. Bowser looked at him for an explanation he said:

"No, ma'am, I am no hypocrite. If a hypocrite belonging to this household wants to go to church and pretend to be interested in religious matters she can go, but as for me I will not dissemble. This is the worst run house in America, and I have to put up with more than any other husband in America, but I will not play the hypocrite. You can go to church, but I will stay at home and rip and tear and cuss around, and if I get drunk and murder somebody I know that a jury of my peers will say:

"'Poor man, he was driven to it and must be held blameless!'"

There are a number of men at the Fort Wayne Electric works who have been in the employ of the company over twenty years and they have concluded to organize a veteran association similar to those of the Pennsylvania and the Nickel Plate. The requirements for membership will be a continuous service of twenty or more years and the organization will start out with thirty-four charter members and will soon add as many more, for there are a lot of employes who have been with the company eighteen or nineteen years, who will join the "vets" as soon as they are eligible.

Twenty-one years ago J. J. Wood, the present general manager of the company, came here with sixty electrical workers from Brooklyn, N. Y., to take part in the reorganization of the old Jenney Electric works, which was a struggling little concern giving employment to only ninety men, and to engage in the manufacture of the patents brought out by Mr. Wood. Of the party from Brooklyn, eight are still connected with the works. They are J. J. Wood, J. J. Bauer, T. W. Bauer, Paul E. Wood, George E. Wood, Tony Miller, Harry Evans and Isaac Aller. These gentlemen have witnessed the transformation of that little factory into one of the best equipped factories in the state, where over 1,400 people are now steadily employed and where double that number will be employed in two or three years if the expectations of the management are realized. In addition to the eight men named in the preceding lines the following employes of the Fort Wayne Electric company have been on the pay rolls over twenty years and have signified a desire to join in the movement to organize a veterans' association: Clark Orr, August Mayland, William Raidy, M. S Willson, John F. Keiss, W. Peter Kindt, William Schultz, Samuel Brownsberger, William Donnell, Herman Rehm, Cal. Rehrer, Stewart Rehrer, Harry Beers, William Murphy, William Rehling, William Haag, William Driftmeyer, William Brennan, John Wegmiller, Frederick Miller, Frederick Keifharber, William G. Wurtle, Eugene McLaughlin, Albert Schlatter, Samuel Richards and Edward Kohlmeyer. A meeting to complete the organization will be called in a few days.

A 25-Cent Box of English Marhue Speeddily Puts the Stomach in Shape.

Meyer Bros. Co., with characteristic enterprise, have succeeded in landing the agency for English Marhue, the new successful remedy for all stomach ills.

If the dyspeptics of Fort Wayne take as kindly to English Marhue as dyspeptics in other cities have, there will be a larger number of comfortable stomachs in town than ever before.

Think of getting for only 25 cents a remedy that will banish all stomach misery in a few days. But English Marhue does more. It tones up the system, purifies the blood and clears the complexion.

PUTTING UP THE WALLS.

Brick Work on Electric Office Building Commences.

Contractors Beers & Offutt put their masons at work yesterday building the brick walls for the six-story office building of the Fort Wayne Electric works on Broadway, the steel and the concrete part of the structure having been practically finished. The walls will have eighteen inches of solid brick and mortar and three inches of tiling, being twenty-one inches in thickness, presenting an appearance very much like that of the Shoaff office building at Berry and Calhoun streets. The work of erection was delayed six or seven weeks by delay in the receipt of the steel structural part and cold weather is likely to put a stop to the work at times.

SERIES OF OPEN MEETINGS.

Federation of Labor Plans Busy Winter.

J. W. Loney, L. D. Redding, E. S. Baker, A. C. Baehr, J. F. Werkman and F. J. Schantz met in the Labor Times-Herald office last night as a committee of arrangements for a series of open meetings to be held the coming winter months by the Fort Wayne Federation of Labor. The committee was not able to formulate a complete program for the season, but the character of the addresses desired was discussed and plans laid accordingly for securing the speakers. It was decided to hold the first meeting on Monday, November 14, when Hon. Thomas E. Ellison will lecture on the subject of "Commission Form of Government." Another subject decided upon will be "The Aims and Objects of Organized Labor," which will be the topic of a lecture to be delivered by L. D. Redding. There will also be several musical numbers at each of the meetings and other features of entertainment. As stated, the meetings will be "open," which means that all, whether members of union labor organizations or not, will be welcomed.

SURPRISED FRIENDS.

Grover F. Blair and Miss Tillie Theisen were married in Detroit, Mich., October 26, and the associates of the bride and groom are just beginning to learn of it. Mr. Blair is the clerk for his father, Road Supervisor R. A. Blair, of the Nickel Plate, and his associates at the yards did not know of the wedding until yesterday. Mrs. Blair, before the wedding, was employed as an operator at the lamp works of the General Electric company and her associates there will first learn of her marriage through this item. Mrs. Blair is the daughter of Charles M. Thiesen, of 1401 Cass street, and both are highly respected and well liked by their acquaintances.

ENGINEER DICKENS RETURNS.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Dickens returned yesterday from England, where they spent a few months with Mr. Dickens' parents. They also made a tour of some of the European countries and brought back some very interesting relics to remind them of their journey. Among the pieces are some very ancient ones, included being a Roman vase which is 1,700 years old, an Athens coin of the date of 450 B. C., a block of cedar from a tree grown at the Gad's Hill home of Charles Dickens, with a carving representing the head of the famous author upon it. Mrs Dickens is a well known Pennsylvania engineer.

ON A HUNTING EXPEDITION.

C. E. Romary, of the Pennsylvania planing mills, left today for Wisconsin, where he will spend three weeks with some friends in hunting deer and bear. These excursions are annual affairs with Mr. Romary and he never fails to get some big game.

HEARS OF AUNT'S DEATH.

L. J. Setter, a carpenter in the Pennsylvania tank shop, received a telegram from Bloomfield, N. J., last night, informing him that his aunt, Mrs. John Gottschalk, died at her home in that city Wednesday night. The deceased was eighty-one years old and was for many years a resident of Bloomfield. She made a number of visits to Indiana and had a number of relatives in Allen and Adams county. On account of the absence of Mrs. Setter and daughter from the city, none of the family will be able to attend the funeral at Bloomfield.

INSPECTING G. R. & I. BRIDGES.

The fall inspection of the bridges on the Southern division of the G. R. & I. is in progress. Chief Engineer E. H. Barnes, Division Engineer C. L. Barnaby and some of the other maintenance of way officials are going over the division on a special train. They left Grand Rapids at 7:15 o'clock this morning and will reach Fort Wayne this afternoon. They will cover the Richmond end of the line tomorrow.

TO DISCUSS ENGINES.

The Fort Wayne division of the American Institute of Electric Workers will have another lecture on Tuesday evening, November 15. The speaker will be a manufacturer from Hamilton, Ohio, and his subject will be "Steam Engines."

O. R. C. ELECTION SUNDAY.

Division No. 119, Order of Railway Conductors, will hold the annual election next Sunday afternoon. There are several candidates for some of the offices and the election promises to be one of the most hotly contested in the history of the division.

ELECTRO-TECHNIC BAND DANCE.

The second affair in the series of dances to be given the season of 1910-1911 by the Electro-Technic band will take place on the evening of November 16 and will be at Trier's hall. It will be similar in all features to the dance given two or three weeks ago.

WORE HIS SMILE BUT DID NOT MAKE A SPEECH

There were no cheering throngs at the Pennsylvania station to greet ex-President Roosevelt as he passed through Fort Wayne Thursday afternoon and the distinguished traveler did not make a speech here. He was visible on the platform for but a moment as he stepped out to take a glimpse at the surroundings, and the famous smile was on exhibition as he shook hands with two or three persons who climbed upon the car to speak to him.

The city was not generally aware of the coming of the former president and there was only the usual complement of passengers gathered at the station when the train arrived from the east at 4:10 o'clock. Mr. Roosevelt was traveling in the Pullman car Lamberton, and half a score of newspaper men were accompanying him.

"Will you not speak here?" was asked.

"Oh, no;" replied the ex-president as he glanced at the little knot of people gathered outside the car. "I'm not speaking any more than is necessary on this trip, for I'm trying to save my throat."

Mr. Roosevelt's voice was husky, but in response to a further inquiry he replied that his throat was showing improvement from its condition earlier in the week. Asked if he intended returning to Indiana for further speeches during this campaign the ex-president replied:

"No; I do not expect to do so. I'm going to Iowa for a little work and shall then hurry back to New York in time to vote."

Plainly the ex-president did not care to be detained with further conversation and he hurried back into his car. When the train reached Warsaw a considerable crowd had gathered, and in response to a request Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly.

Don't fail to visit our children's department tomorrow. We are giving great values.

Texas Land!

On Tuesday, November 15th

I will have another excursion to ROCK ISLAND in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas. $35.95 for the Round Trip

WOULDN'T YOU LIKE AN ORCHARD WHOSE INCOME IS FROM $500 TO $1000 PER ACRE?

Then buy your land now, while it can be obtained cheap; plant it to Satsuma Oranges, and watch your trees grow, and make money.

California fruit land, not near so good and by no means as favorably located as the Rock Island country, is selling for five to ten times the price at which I am selling land at Rock Island.

Oranges, Figs, Strawberry, Cucumber and Winter and Summer Vegetable Growers in the Texas Gulf Coast Country are making from 100 to 500 per cent. annually on their investment.

"What they are doing you can do":

If you want to do General Farming, it offers you the best opportunity—all I ask you, come along and investigate.

Investigate the shipping facilities of the Houston district. It is here that 17 railroads meet the sea, and this section, as no other, will be benefited by the digging of the Panama and inter-coastal canals. Rock Island is only 77 miles west of Houston, with an elevation of 254 feet. It has the best climate in Texas. Records taken on my land from the 10th day of March to July 31st, show that the temperature never went above 90 degrees and below 42 degrees. The records also show that there was a rainfall every month, the average rainfall for the year is 42 inches. The Rock Island country is now being improved by farmers and men from the north; this will increase the value of the land; so you better call and investigate as the time to buy is now.

Call at my office and make arrangements to take a trip with me Tuesday, November 15th.

A Whole Lap Ahead and Still Going

When a customer came in to look at clothes we gave no preference to "Brandegee, Kincaid & Co." clothes. They simply forced their way to the front. They passed every competing line and now they are a whole lap ahead and hard to catch.

Only the most clever style and the highest values could make such a gain. Only cleverness makes smart dressers purchase. If you are considering purchasing a suit or overcoat, then by all means come to us and inspect those designed and made by Brandegee, Kincaid & Co. Tailor shops at Utica, N. Y.

Leaving Fort Wayne early today, Governor Marshall started his tour of the old home district as the final work of the present campaign, which will end with his address in Fort Wayne Saturday evening.

Mr. Marshall arrived in the city at 11:30 o'clock Thursday evening from Muncie, where he had delivered an address and at the Anthony hotel he joined Mrs. Marshall, who had come directly to Fort Wayne from Indianapolis. The governor declares that in every section of the state he has found the prospects for democracy exceedingly bright, and he confidently predicts a democratic victory in Indiana next Tuesday.

District Chairman E. G. Hoffman and Congressman Cyrus Cline joined Governor Marshall at Garrett, where his first address of the day was delivered at 11 o'clock. From Garrett the party hurried away to Kendallville, where Governor Marshall was heard in two addresses, first from the veranda of Hotel Reyher and later at the opera house. As Governor Marshall left the Twelfth district to go into the Thirteenth for addresses at Goshen, Elkhart and South Bend, Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Cline took up an auto tour of Noble and Lagrange counties.

Tomorrow they will accompany the governor when he comes back into the Twelfth district to speak at Angola at 2 o'clock and in this city in the evening.

* * *

Judge R. K. Erwin and Herbert L. Sommers will address a democratic meeting at Huntertown this evening, while Congressman Cline and H. H. Hilgemann will speak at the Poor farm school; Carl Yaple and E. G. Hoffman at Milan Center, and Congressman Cline Fred L. Feick and S. A. Callahan at Adams Center school.

The Beveridge-Heaton league will hold a smoker at the republican headquarters this evening. Tonight C. S. Bash and Samuel Hyndman will speak at Poe, and J. B. Harper and E. V. Harris at Maples.

* * *

Hon. W. C. Ryan and Hon. William S. Wells addressed a big democratic gathering at Arcola last evening. Dennis J. Gorman presided as chairman of the meeting.

* * *

James W. Sale, of Bluffton, has resigned his place as a member of the board of trustees of the Indiana school for feble-minded youth in this city. Mr. Sale's action was upon the advice of republican attorneys. He is a candidate for state senator in Wells county on the republican ticket, and party leaders advised the step in order that his eligibility to the senatorial seat might not be questioned in the event of his election.

AMERICA II HOLDS RECORD.

London Attempts to Question Performance of Hawley Balloon.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—That the balloon America II made 1,355 miles in the international race was maintained here by the officials of the Aero club when they read a cablegram from London that the distance was questioned.

Albert B. Lambert, of the race committee, computed the distance the night Hawley and Post reported, and it is subject to correction only by the war department of the United States.

The America II landed eight miles north of Lake Tshistigama, in the province of Quebec, and not at Chicoutimi, as the London cable states.

---What You Want

Standing far above the other styles that may be justly called "popular" this season are those two—brown cheviots and blue serges.

QUALITY has always been our first aim. We would rather sell one suit that is right than ten that are wrong—even though the profit on the latter is the greater.

THE MARKETS

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 4.—Short sellers evinced a disposition today to avoid pressing the wheat market too suddenly. The spirit of caution resulted partly from the fact that Liverpool cables were comparatively steady notwithstanding the long break in prices here. Local traders nevertheless seemed bearish to a man because of the recent weakness of the market in the face of heavy buying. Relative firmness in European centers was attributed to better consumptive requirements and lighter shipments. Prices here opened ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher. December started unchanged to ¼c up at 87½c to 87¾c, touched 87⅞c and declined to 87⅝c.

Scattered shorts were buyers of corn. May opened a shade to ¼@⅜c up at 49¼c to 49⅜c and steadied at 49⅛@49¼c.

Oats were held down by the action of wheat. May started a shade higher at 34⅜c, sold at 34½c and reacted to 34¼c.

Provisions took a waiting attitude with other staples. First sales were 2½c lower to 2½c advance, with January at $17.07½ to $17.10 for pork, $10.27½ for lard, and $9.07½@9.10 for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Nov. 4.—First prices of stocks today were higher than last night but the gains were small and the dealings light. United States Steel, Reading, Missouri Pacific, Southern Railway preferred and American Woolen rose large fractions and International Harvester & point. Canadian Pacific and American Smelting preferred lost ¾.

Buying of United States Steel paused after it had touched 81 and the rise in the rest of the list also halted. International Harvester improved 2⅜, Southern Railway preferred and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1¾.

The further rise in stocks was ascribed to the belief that the coming elections would not have any unsettling influence in financial markets. The three usual speculative favorites, United States Steel, Reading and Union Pacific, absorbed the bulk of the dealings. Wide advances were made by some of the less active specialties. Reading and Pullman advanced 1⅛, Union Pacific and International Paper preferred 1 and American Air Brake Shoe 5. Western Union declined 1. Bonds were steady.

Continued accumulation of United States Steel and Reading raised them to 81¾ and 166, respectively. Otherwise the fluctuations in the stocks were not insignificant. International Harvester got up 4 points. Great Northern Ore Certificates 1⅝. Federal Mining preferred 1¾. Allis-Chalmers preferred 1¼ and Ontario & Western, National Lead and American Car preferred 1.

Room traders took profits in a moderate way and there was a reaction of ½ to ¾. Rock Island preferred moved up 1½ and Louisville & Nashville 1.

ALFONSO NOT ASSASSINATED.

Rumors in Paris of Death of Spanish Monarch Unfounded.

London, Nov. 4.—A rumor from Paris that King Alfonso of Spain had been assassinated was circulated through the stock exchange at the opening today, but it was considered to be on a par with the stories of a revolution in Spain that originated recently in the same quarter with the purpose of influencing the market. The result of all inquiries was to discredit the story.

THE MYERS DRY GOODS COMPANY

904 CALHOUN STREET — THE NEW STORE

$11.47

W. H. Shambaugh and Superintendent J. N. Study have gone to Indianapolis to attend a meeting of the city and town school toustees of Indiana.

Joseph A. Bursley has returned to Ann Arbor after spending a few days with his father, G. E. Bursley.

Since John Quit Drinking

By John's Wife

I'm the happiest little woman,
In all this little town;
And my merry laugh and singing
Takes the place of sigh and frown.
For JOHN HAS QUIT HIS DRINKING
And is like himself once more,
And the world is just a paradise
With such happiness in store!

One day I read some verses—
"Mary's Miracle," the name,
And I said, that's John exactly,
And I'll send and get the same.
So I sent for GOLDEN REMEDY,
(As sly as sly could be)
And I put it in John's supper
And I put it in his tea.

And it didn't taste a little bit;
Had no odor, so, you see—
It was smoothest kind of sailing
For little Doctor Me.
And I watched and prayed and waited,
(And cried some, too, I guess),
And I didn't have the greatest faith,
I'm ashamed now to confess.

And John never thought a minute,
He was being cured of drink,
And soon he's as well as any one,
It makes me cry to think!
Just makes me cry for gladness,
I'm so proud to be his wife—
Since he is cured of drinking,
And leads a nice, new life.

"Since John he quit a-drinking!"
I can't say it times enough!
And hates and loathes a liquor
As he would a poison stuff.
And when I say my prayers at night
As thankful as can be—
I pray for John the rest of all—
Then GOLDEN REMEDY.

HOW TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE FROM INCOMPETENT LAWYERS

If You Want This Protection You Must All Vote Upon the Constitutional Amendment Next Tuesday.

Not everyone is aware that at the next election there will be an opportunity to rectify this mistake of sixty years ago.

The 21st section of article 7 of our state constitution says: "Every person of good moral character being a voter, shall be entitled to admission to practice law in all courts of justice."

The democratic legislature of 1903 and the republican legislature of 1905 by almost unanimous votes passed proper resolutions to amend the constitution so that the legislature might pass laws defining the legal qualifications necessary to be possessed by lawyers. This amendment received more than a three-fourths majority of the votes cast, but not enough to give it a constitutional majority. The legislatures of 1907 and 1909 also passed the following joint resolution:

And whereas, The joint resolution hereafter set out was adopted by the general assembly of 1907; therefore, be it

Resolved by the general assembly of the state of Indiana, That the following proposed amendment to article 7 of the constitution of said state be and the same is now agreed to and referred to the electors of the state of Indiana at the next general election;

Section 21. The general assembly shall, by law, prescribe what qualifications shall be necessary for admission to practice law in all courts of justice.

It is necessary that a majority of all the people who vote at this election shall vote in favor of this amendment to pass it, and this appeal is put forth so that in the hurry of voting it will not be lost sight of. We cannot imagine that any person interested in the welfare of our state or its people will oppose it.

Inefficient lawyers are a detriment to the people. The legislature should have authority to regulate the admission to the bar of all who desire to practice law and to control the conduct of those already admitted. The people of this state are damaged every term of court by incompetent lawyers, who do not know how to draw pleadings and legal papers. Incompetent lawyers involve the people of the state into litigations, instead of protecting them and keeping them out of lawsuits.

Similar legal safeguards protect the people against incompetent physicians, surgeons and nurses, and in no profession is this need greater than in the law and this truth is recognized everywhere except in Indiana.

Inaccurate and improper conveyances are made, improper advice is given and much needless trouble is incurred in straightening out these errors, and valuable rights are lost because not guarded as they would be if the attorneys were competent.

There being no political question involved in this, the undersigned, representing the various political parties, gladly join in an effort to bring this matter to the attention of the intelligent voters, and ask that they should vote in favor of this proposition, which can be done by the voter's pulling down the lever under the word "Yes" on the top line of the voting machine where this resolution is set out. It should not be lost because of inattention. This question has been voted upon two or three times before, and nearly all who voted were for it, but it must have a majority of the highest vote cast for a state officer; it is therefore important that every one should vote on this question.

HOW TO GET FAT

The almost universal interest in physical culture is the best evidence that can be offered as to the need of a simple and scientific method of making thin people fat, increasing strength and restoring health.

Athletics, when carried to an extreme, often result in straining the vital organs. How much better it would be for the average person to regain health, strength and flesh by using Samose. This flesh forming food is assimilated as soon as it enters the stomach; it helps the organs to assimilate the food and extract the flesh forming elements; it builds up the muscles and rounds out the limbs into shapely plumpness.

Samose has been so successful in making thin people fat and restoring the weak and run down to strength and health that Meyer Bros. Co., the popular druggists, sell it under their personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not benefit.

An offer like this certainly shows remarkable faith in the powers of Samose to do all that is claimed for it. No one should suffer any longer from a thin, run-down condition, now that Samose's remarkable powers are known.

For Over Three Decades

Foley's Honey and Tar has been a reliable household medicine and the "children's children" find it today the same safe and sure remedy for all coughs and colds that their grandparents did. It is a true medicine, possesses great healing and soothing qualities, and contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. For croup and whooping cough, it is a quick relief and permanent help. For all coughs and colds it is healing and soothing, does not constipate, but expels the cold from the system. It is prompt in relief and averts the danger of bronchitis and pneumonia. Mahala Stockwell, Hannibal, Missouri, writing under date of August 28, 1910, has this to say about this great medicine: "I have recently used for the first time Foley's Honey and Tar Cough medicine. To say that I am pleased with it does not half express my feelings. It is by far the best I ever used. I had contracted a bad cold and was nearly sick in bed, having a terrible headache as well as a cough and was threatened with pneumonia. I used but one bottle of your Foley's Honey and Tar and was completely cured. It beats all the remedies I ever used and I have used many different kinds." For sale by Dreier Bros.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — MRS. EMMA IMSE, 893 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

A Canadian government dredge while at work recently at St. Johns, Quebec, clearing away the remains of the Royal Sauvage, sunk during the revolution, brought up several interesting relics. Among them were a cannon, two odd looking axes and some coins and buttons.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

GROWING GINSENG A BUSINESS THAT PAYS WELL

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 31.—Making a profit at the rate of $16,000 a year off one acre of ground, with the minimum amount of cultivation, ought to be enough to tempt many persons into the cultivation of ginseng.

"Why isn't ginseng more extensively cultivated?" a visitor asked A. Clark, who has a ginseng farm at Mount Washington.

"Well, you see, these days, people want to draw their pay for their work at the end of the week, and they can't do it when they raise ginseng," replied the only grower of the plant in Jackson county. "No, and they can't draw their pay the next year. It's usually a decade before a ginseng grower harvests his crop. Then again the cultivation of ginseng is a thing little known about in America. If people realized the big profits and the little work connected with the cultivation there would be more of it raised than there is."

Passengers on the electric cars from Kansas City to Independence pass a patch of ground covered with a low shed of great extent, having a roof of leaves. To the casual observer it appears not unlike a grape arbor or perhaps a hog shelter. Under the shade are thousands of slender plants in rows. The tract covers only one-fifth of an acre, and that is the total acreage of ginseng in Northwestern Missouri.

There is little ginseng used in America. The market rests on superstitious veneration of the Chinese for the herb as the medicine of medicines, as the balsam of balsams—almost as the elixir of life, and it is used to more or less extent by the 400,000,000 inhabitants of the empire.

Ginseng is a shrinking plant that flourishes in the shade of forests or under arbors of boughs. Its delicate leaves will wither in a few minutes in the glare of the sun's rays.

Mr. Clark will make a profit of about $3,000 off the fifth of an acre he has at Mount Washington this year, and he has not yet begun to realize the full returns from cultivation of the crop. The ginseng is just getting large enough to begin digging the roots, but Mr. Clark has already contracted for the sale of 20,000 plants at $4.50 per hundred, which will bring him $900. He has sold a few roots at $8 a pound, which will help along the profits.

From 192 Square Feet.

One little patch, sixteen feet long and twelve feet wide, which Mr. Clark raised last year under his front porch, netted him nearly $300, and he did not dispose of all the roots, as many plants were young and it is Mr. Clark's practice not to pull the plants until they are six years old.

It was on this small tract of ground—underneath the porch of his home—that Mr. Clark began cultivating the plant. But he had known it before then. When, as a boy, he used to run among the woods of Indiana he saw the plant growing wild and gathered some of its roots and sold them to the storekeeper in the nearest town, who shipped them to New York, and from there to China. But the plant was not so valuable then as now. In those days it was raised extensively in Manchuria and China and grew wild in the eastern part of the United States. The cost of transporting it to the orient was so great that it sold for only a few cents a pound. Now it brings not less than $7 a pound and the best grade sells for $12. Chinese merchants in the larger cities have agents who travel over the country looking for the roots.

Mr. Clark has been a small farmer at Mount Washington for many years. He knew the habits of the plant from rambling through the hills of Indiana. He knew it was a plant of great value and that it was much sought after in the southeastern parts of the United States by a shiftless class known as "sang" diggers. Six years ago Mr. Clark reasoned that if it was so profitable to hunt the plants in the wood it ought to be a profitable crop to cultivate. He obtained a few plants at a good price and planted a small tract under his front porch. The little bed of ginseng prospered and the seeds from these few plants were transplanted under a larger tract of ground covered with oak boughs. These plants are all doing well now. They vary in age from one to seven years and have just begun to yield a profit.

Culture Is Simple.

"Ginseng is easy to raise," said Mr. Clark. "The plants need fairly good soil and must be kept in the shade. The best way to start a patch is to get some roots, which sell for about $4.50 a hundred. If these cannot be obtained the seed may be had from any large seed house for a cent each. In three years the plants will be large enough to begin bearing seed and in six years the roots are large enough to dig."

On Mr. Clark's patch, 70x120 feet, there are more than 2,000 plants, ranging in age from one to seven years. Here are some estimates of the probable returns Mr. Clark will get from his tract this year:

For 70,000 seeds, $700; for 20,000 plants, $900, and for 200 pounds of roots, $1,600, or a total of $3,200. After the harbor is built and the seed or roots are planted the only care ginseng requires is a mulching of the ground every two or three years.

With Mr. Clark raising ginseng is a hobby, as it is with nearly all American growers of the plant. He says the plants seem almost imbued with human feelings, but he admits that feeling is produced by human beings, with faces, legs and arms, and these bring fabulous prices in China.

"Eight years ago I bought three acres here and moved to the country," Mr. Clark says. "I did not care to work a great deal, as I was hardly able, so I decided to experiment with ginseng. I studied the subject, talked to many men interested in the culture and purchased seed. I got hold of some poor seed and the first year my plants did not prosper. As fast as a crop of seed matured I replanted them. At the end of the fifth year I had a crop of green roots weighing forty pounds, but when they were dried they weighed only fifteen pounds. These sold for $9 a pound.

"It takes about five or six weeks for the roots to dry with either sun or artificial heat. The plants are set about a foot deep. I try to build the arbor so as to give one-fourth sun and three-fourths shade."

The ginseng plant is related to the parsley family, which includes the parsnip, celery and carrot. The Chinese take it internally for all diseases, while for aches and pains in the legs or arms the plant is chewed, the afflicted person always biting off a portion from the part of the root that corresponds to the arms or legs of the human body.

The demand for ginseng has always exceeded the supply, and that accounts for the high price the Chinese are willing to pay for it. Mr. Clark receives dozens of letters from persons who want to buy the plant or seek information about its growth.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by all dealers.

During the last year a scientist attached to one of the bureaus at Washington has been engaged in measuring the height of clouds by photography. Simultaneous pictures of a cloud are made by two cameras placed six hundred feet apart and connected by telegraph wires. From the amount of displacement of the cloud caused by viewing it alternately from each end of the 600-foot base line, its height can be calculated. Some of the "mackerel sky" clouds photographed were seven and a quarter miles high. The loftiest clouds whose elevation was thus measured belonged to the type known as cirrus or "cirri cloud," the height of which was a little more than seventeen miles.—London Globe

BAD BLOOD OFTEN INHERITED

Bad blood does not always come as the result of careless living, or indiscretions; it is a condition frequently inherited. Normal, healthy blood contains millions of tiny red corpuscles, which are the vitalizing and nourishing element of the circulation, their office being to provide every portion of the system with its necessary strength and nutriment. In weak, impure blood these corpuscles are lacking in numbers, and therefore the blood is not able to supply the proper amount of nourishment to the body. Bad blood manifests itself in many ways. With some it takes the form of skin diseases and eruptions, others become bilious and malarious, with sallow complexions, torpid liver, etc. Bad blood produces Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula and like troubles. Nothing is equal to S. S. S. as a remedy for bad blood; it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, possessing not only the qualities to cleanse and purify the blood, but composed of roots, herbs and barks that tone up every part of the system, and assist in the creation of blood nutriment. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Blood Poison and all other blood disorders. S. S. S. makes good blood, and good blood makes good health. Book on the blood free to all.

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

GIRL OF 15 WORKS FOR CENT AN HOUR

Pretty Roumanian Eluded Ellis Island Men by Clever Ruse.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 4.—In this city of reputed wealth and high wages Celia Gold, a pretty Roumanian girl, has been found working for one cent an hour, ten cents a day, or sixty cents a week, in a cigar manufactory.

The girl and her elder sister, Rose, outwitted the immigration officials at Ellis Island and were brought to Pittsburg by friends in a penniless condition.

In the faraway land of the good Queen Carmen Sylva the sisters had heard of the promised land across the Atlantic where they might earn enough money to better their condition. By hard work they scraped together sufficient money to buy a ticket to New York, but on the steamer, Rose, who is about seventeen years old, fell ill and her little sister spent the few dollars that remained for delicacies with which to supplant the coarse food of the steerage.

Arriving at Ellis Island, they learned the law forbidding the entrance of paupers into this country. The quick wit of Celia came to the rescue and she succeeded in borrowing $25 for a few minutes from a fellow countryman.

That $25 meant open sesame to the sisters. First Rose showed the money to the inspector and was passed through the gate, and then, hurrying to the grating, passed the lucky money to Celia, who in her turn displayed the lucre, which opened the gate that barred the way to the land of freedom. Then the money was returned to the Roumanian and the girls stood trembling with fear and expectancy upon the threshold of a new land and a new life.

Friends took them as far as Pittsburg and here Rose got a position at $3 a week as a domestic. She separated in sorrow from her little sister, Celia, failing to find profitable employment on account of her youth, went to work in the factory for ten cents a day and ambitiously tried to get into the night high school in order that she might learn the language of the country of her adoption, and increase her income.

She failed to gain admission because of her not being sixteen years old and having no credentials, and despair was staring her in the face and the fingers of those who profit from the tempting of the innocent were reaching out for her when she found a friend.

A prominent Roumanian, Mr. Becker, has learned to speak Yiddish, and, according to his friends, he has fallen into the habit of wandering incognito among the people who form the little kingdom in which he labors in trying to force the people to take advantage of the educational advantages which the city and state offer them.

This modern caliph of Bagdad on the Hill was strolling through the ghetto when he heard a girl weeping. He found Celia crying upon a doorstep. Her room rent was due, her cupboard was empty, she was hungry, weary and half sick and could expect no more aid from her sister.

Glad to find an American who could speak her language, she told her story to Mr. Becker. He introduced her to the worthy woman who has presided for so many years over the Moorhead school.

Miss Mackrell saw that the girl was cared for and sent to school, and Celia now believes that she has fallen into the hands of angels unawares.

The Real Winners of Lawsuits.

Peter McKenzie, the last of the old Hudson bay factors, had always a great hatred and fear of lawsuits.

"I dined with Mr. McKenzie in Montreal not long ago," said a mining engineer of New York, "and he reiterated his dread of lawsuits, driving home his point with a story.

"He said that a certain Smith won a case in the lower courts, the higher courts and the supreme court. Smith was thus finally awarded, after seven years of litigation, $500,000.

"'Hurrah!' he said. 'Gimme my $500,000.'

"'Yes, $500,000 was the award,' said the lawyer, and at the same time he handed Smith a dollar bill.

"'But what's this for?' Smith gasped.

"'That's all that's left, Mr. Smith,' explained the lawyer, 'after the deduction of my fee, the cost of the various appeals and other expenses, which will be duly rendered you in an itemized account.'

A Yorkshire Plaster.

A friend on a visit to Yorkshire caught a chill and was confined to bed. His hostess thought to give her sick visitor a treat during his confinement, so she baked a Yorkshire pudding and took it upstairs.

Going up some time later, she inquired, "Well, 'ave ya etten it up?"

"Etten it! Etten it!" gasped her visitor. "No; I'm wearin' it on my chest!"—London Tit-Bits.

With the strength of a tireless lung
And has no thought of the wretch who may
Be waiting, with nerves unstrung,
To get a chance at a dream so slight
Or a moment of slumber deep—

When he ought to be fast asleep!

Himknowledgy.

Stanley Jordan, the well known Episcopal minister, having cause to be anxious about his son's college examinations, told him to telegraph the result. The boy sent the following message: "Hymn 342, fifth verse, last two lines." Looking it up, the father found the words, "Sorrow vanquished, labor ended, Jordan passed."—Circle.

Easily Spared.

"See, darling," said a mother to her little lad as she pointed to some London waifs, "those poor little boys have no kind father and mother and no good Aunt Jane!"

Outward Signs and Tokens.

"Our new laundress seems afflicted with melancholia. She certainly is the most doleful person I ever came across."

NEW FARCE AT WHICH GOTHAM IS LAUGHING

MR. DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN "THE CUB" PHOTO BY WHITE

New York, Nov. 4.—"The Cub," a farce and satire rolled into one, by Mr Thompson Buchanan, had its first performance here in the Comedy theater. The author comes from the Blue Grass state, and he holds Kentucky feuds up to ridicule in a manner so amusing that the audience's sides ached from laughter. He showed during the course of three entertaining acts that twenty-one sons of Kentucky's mountainous soil were killed because of a row over a pig, whose value was finally fixed at a dollar and thirty cents, making the actual value of each man killed a bit over six cents.

While the feud is in its prime a "cub" reporter from the Louisville Courier-Journal is sent up to report the story. He was the only available man in the office at the time, and was sent because the managing editor said: "We don't want a man to go; we want a damn fool."

So Steve Oldham went—and the audience saw him going—astride a mule, with an automobile horn on the saddle. He was Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, and he got his laughs from the very first. He almost got shot several hundred times, and once escaped hanging by less than a quarter of an inch, but he was chipper to the end—when his paper discharged him for "faking."

OUR SHORT STORY PAGE

The 2000th Christmas

A Fantasy

by Harris Merton Lyon

That I spent, that I had:
That I gave, that I have;
That I left, that I lost.

IT was eleven o'clock of a cold Christmas Eve in the year 1900. In the little old tumble-down carpenter shop of meek old Meyer Abrams, back in a ramshackle courtyard of the Ghetto, sat the strange young Jew, alone. All up and down Baxter Street the wretched winter wind howled along, slamming the creaky tenement shutters; and the drizzling sleet pelted the roof tops and the gutters cruelly and incessantly. It was very cold in the old carpenter's shop, a lean-to shanty without a stove in it, but the young apprentice sat in silence, heedless of the icy chill, his eyes staring straight ahead of him. He was worn out, sad, nervous, and hungry, there amidst the dead shavings and the planes and the saws, the gimlets, braces, and bits. Every now and then he would pass his hand tremulously across his forehead, or stroke his youthful, silky beard. Nobody in Baxter Street, in the whole East Side of the great city of New York—not even old Meyer Abrams himself—knew from what country the young Jew with the weird, staring eyes had come.

"Are you lately lauded?" Abrams had asked him quizzically when he had wanted work.

"Yes." But he would not tell the name of his country.

"What do men call you?" the old carpenter had demanded.

"Some men in my country once insisted that my name was—Josephson. That name will do me now."

He was a good carpenter, all that the old master demanded of him, but his mind seemed to be fixed on other things. For five weeks he had scarcely tasted food, and at night, when the other Jews sat about the cafes arguing hotly over anarchy and government, or stayed in their houses with their children tumbling noisily about them, the young immigrant preferred to sit alone in Abram's dingy, cheerless shop, gnawing his nails and thinking, his long legs outspread, his head thrown back, his dreamy eyes fixed on the ceiling. Why he would eat no food, nobody knew. It is said that men with great intentions need little earthly help; that they live on something strong within them; that they even radiate some of this strength to carry everybody they meet along with them. Their eyes glow; a mysterious force comes out of them. Their nerves vibrate, and a marvelous power goes into everything they do. Josephson, the young Jew, was this sort of a man.

As he sat there on Christmas Eve, at eleven o'clock, his brain seemed bursting with great thoughts. He quivered and shook with the intensity of his feeling, and in the dimness of the old shop a glow seemed to stand around his hair, like the glow around a sick woman's head when the pain of her suffering is exceedingly great. And all the while, as he thought, his eyes stared—unseeing, abstracted—up at the hoops and boards which lay along beneath the ceiling of the shop. He was as a man hypnotized by an idea vaster, more profound than himself.

At midnight, the old church bell halfway across the frozen city boomed its hollow message of the great new day. By ruddy fires, over cups of cheer, the millions of people laughed, looked into each other's eyes, and were happy, sheltered within warm walls that shut out the grim, cutting winter. The whole city, where the city was rich, lolled in comfort indoors and sang songs to the coming Christmas.

But as the young Jew wrapped his long coat about him and strode out through the bitter Ghetto, he passed tenement after tenement where the starving poor shuddered in their chilly, bare rooms. There was no merriment there, only curses at the rich of the land. For in 1900 the rich were very rich and the poor were very poor; and the poor had no faith in anything, because they had been so often deceived. Long ago the rich had been rich because they had held the trust of the people; now they held only all the gold in the nation.

And the strange young Jew, as he passed along, nodded at the dismal tenements and said, over and over to himself: "That is why I am here; that is why I am here!"

At Sixth Avenue he took an elevated train to One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Street. There he got out and boarded a railroad train. It was the last one to leave New York City that night, and its destination was the Pocantico Hills country to the north.

Before it was two o'clock Josephson found himself alone in a deserted railway station and among the hills. He knew no directions, but he had vaguely a sense of where he wanted to go.

The sleet softened suddenly to a chill rain and soaked his greatcoat through. The frigid gale bit clear to his bones, and made his teeth shake; yet a strange fever came into his veins, and kept him miraculously warm. He fell and crawled and groped and strode along, over the shivering grass, the dead bleak leaves, the frost-bound stones, always in the direction he sought, always toward the great house with its wide-flung pavilions, back among its pine trees on the crest of one of those tumbling hills.

On this miraculous night the immense house, all lighted up, shone like another miracle. Its turrets and cupolas were dark, but the glass conservatories, the broad verandas, the lofty-ceilinged vestibules and rooms scattered their yellow radiance through the midnight darkness like some fairy palace blazing with jewels and lanterns.

The young Jew silently and humbly crossed the wide stretches of lawn and stood before one of the French windows of the flower room. He turned the knob and walked into the empty glare of light. From room to deserted room he passed until at length he came to the library. Here he pushed another door open and stood motionless on the threshold.

In a high-backed leathern chair before a crackling log sat an old man, alone, smoking a cigar. In all that house, save for the servants, the old man was one. For twenty years, forty years, he had been ere; and on Christmas Eve he always sat thus, late into the night, smoking and thinking before his fire. A certain birthnight, too, and a certain wedding night he celebrated in this fashion. The rest of the time he worked and gathered up money. For he was the richest man in the United States, and the most powerful.

The young Jew fixed his great, sorrowful eyes upon the old man; but the old man, lost in thought, stared into the fire. He was a hale old man made of strong fiber, with great shoulders and sturdy chest, long arms, a big, magnificent head all covered with gray hair, and a gray beard. His eyes shone clear. His cheeks were ruddy. Life tingled in him as in a mountain brook. Yet when he thought deeply, as now, a softness spread over his face and his fiery eyes slumbered.

"I am here," said the young Jew.

"Look at that man," murmured the millionaire. But it did not seem odd that he should be there.

"I must speak to you," said the Jew.

And the old man passed his firm hand over his eyes as if in a dream, and answered:

"Come to the fire—you. Take off your coat, for you must be cold."

"Cold? What is cold? I am not cold," answered the other, in a poignant voice. Then he said: "I see you are thinking. That is good; for you must think still more."

There was that in the wanderer's face which made the millionaire curious. So he said:

"Who are you, young man?"

And the other replied: "I am the man who must make you think still more."

The old man looked at him more closely, intently. "You have come to ask charity on Christmas Eve," he declared. "Well, you shall have it."

"Yes," said the young man, simply; "I shall have it." And he drew off his coat and stood upright, facing the millionaire. "Listen to me," he went on.

The Young Immigrant Preferred to Sit Alone in Abram's Dingy, Cheerless Shop.

"When trees and running streams and little seeds think, it is time for you also to think. But I will tell you, you must think as they do—charitably and generously toward all the people on earth. Behold, old man, you are the richest man in this land. You own running waters, transportations, harvests, the materials with which men build even their houses. You own everything inside and outside the law—everything which one man can own. When people no longer trusted your pieces of paper, the gilded front of your wealth, you took up the gold of the country. Do you know that men and women and little children are starving to death because of these things? Because of you? You enjoy your bread and meat with relish. Do you know that men are starving?"

And the young Jew smiled, but his smile was somehow different. "This is why I am here to-night. You are an old man now and are soon to die." The old man shrugged his shoulders, as if that did not matter. "But it is not yet too late for you to begin. There is a chance to save you yet, and make you what you ought to be in this world."

And the other asked: "Are you a madman?"

"No. You are the madman of us two. You have a chance to become sane again. But it must come from you. All from you, from the heart out. There is a spirit inside you which for forty years has been hard and cruel and bitter. Now it is Christmas time, and that spirit must be softened and made sweet. There is no other way to gain what I want. For though I could look into your eyes a long time and you would do what I tell you to, that is not enough. That would not be you who was doing it, but something outside of you. From a bubbling heart of pure good will, from the inside, must your charity come."

As he spoke the young Jew came over and laid his hand on the other's shoulder, looking with wide eyes straight into the other's eyes, whereat a fascination and a fervor came from the Jew. A queer, dazing, insistent power poured along his steady gaze. The old millionaire met it sternly, but the young man's eyes thrilled him in his old heart.

"I am a hypnotist. I am other things, too. I fast, and can coax the white soul from your body. I can make trees walk and the hills vocal. I can bring back the blue spirits of the dead. But these things do not matter. I came here to-night to change your soul and make it sweet, so that your charity will be real charity. Why did I select you? Because you are potential—you are that one man who holds the most power in his hands. Through you I must work. Or, it is better to say, through you must your new self work. And it is not loose charity I ask of you, the deadly giving away of wealth for nothing. No. Your charity shall be practical."

"Why should I say 'Yes' to you?"

And the other spoke to him softly, but his tone filled the whole room, and said:

"Why should you not? What do you live for? Think well before you answer."

"I live to work; I work hard," the old man replied.

But the Jew said: "What does your work give you?"

And the other answered proudly: "My work gives me power."

Then the young Jew raised his hand and pointed out the window. "You hear that gale out there, and you talk of power? Power? That wind could manifold itself and break your bones. You hear that rain? That rain could rise and drown you, and you could not flee. Do not talk to me of power, for the only power you have is as a man among men. There are other powers which make that power seem as a perfume and soft music. Now, tell me why do you work?"

"Because the work compels me. Because I have nothing else to do. Many men and women are like me. I have nothing else to care for." And he told how he was all alone, for his wife and daughter had died, and he added: "Why do I tell you this? But it is so. I am alone."

"Especially on Christmas Eve?" asked the strange man gently.

"Especially on Christmas Eve. And on the night the baby was born and died with her mother. And on the night my wife and I were married."

"How, after all, a great man is only a man!" exclaimed the Jew. "How, after all, he can be stripped and shown as little and sick, or old and broken-hearted." And his hand on the old man's shoulder seemed to throb with a wondrous sympathy. "He creeps over the ground with his two legs, a creature of bowels, brain, odd heart—and we call him great! Though he sickens and dies, behold, his very monuments acclaim him great!"

The old man recalled, without emotion, that he had not fifteen years to live. The fire cast his shadow on the wall. He knew the time would come when he would cast a shadow nowhere. Not even a shadow should survive him.

Suddenly, among all his thoughts, he reached over and took the young Jew's hand.

"I am glad you came to talk to me to-night. In some peculiar way you refresh me," he said. "Yet you bring me strange ideas."

"It is because you have given me the chance; yet long have we needed each other."

The millionaire was silent again for a minute; then he asked slowly, with a tremor in his voice: "What meant you, my friend, when you said you could bring back the spirits of the dead?"

And the other answered: "That is what I meant. For I know the land of ghosts and the ghosts call to me out over their twilight. To me, this earth is but a mere sign in the sky; and yet I can weep over one poor starving man. Alive he sends me messages, as dead he sends me messages. My ear is bent and ready for these things, and I hear him."

"But—about the spirits? About bringing them back? You said you could bring back the dead. Is it nonsense? I have heard it said it was nonsense?"

"Then give me my daughter, for I am old!" cried the millionaire suddenly.

"I will. And I ask no reward, for you shall do my bidding. I ask no reward, for your shall give of your own willingness. For it is commanded of us all that as I give, you shall give." And the Jew closed his eyes and sank into a chair for the first time.

At once a tremor shook his wasted body; for a moment he groaned and grew rigid; and then his body grew supple again. His jaw fell from his jaw, his white face swam with sweat. His turning eyes rolled like bits of glass. Then slowly, on the floor by his left hand, a faint light smoke appeared strangely, and clung there against the carpet, swaying like mist under the moon, building itself, blowing outward, upward. Above it hovered a dimly glowing ball, tenuous, attached to the filmy smoke beneath. Then gently, gradually, the whole gauziness molded itself like winding fog, and—lo, it took the billowing shape of a little girl with a haloed head of brilliance, her feet scarce touching the floor so light she was!

The old man looked with horror, then with pain, at what he saw. He stared in silence at the shy visitant, then at the mute young Jew. Over him rushed spasms of dread at the unknown, waves of love at the unforgotten. What worked there in his soul was exquisite. In seconds he changed as never he had changed in all the brutal years among men. He was no longer among men; he had left the earth and floated amidst unearthly raptures. And at last he wet his lips with his tongue and fell toward the shadow, crying: "Margaret! Margaret!"

But the marvelous girl drifted farther away and merely smiled. It was not like the smile of a living person; it had a deeper sweetness, like a smile from Paradise.

"Margaret! My baby!" whispered the old man in his throat. But she edged to the young Jew's forehead, seemingly swept and kissed it, and was gone. And the young Jew trembled and awoke.

Then, for some minutes, both were silent, looking at each other with comprehending eyes, while only the wind and rain kept up their doleful noise. In the end, the Jew held up his hand and smiled gently. "Why should she speak to you—and break your heart? You must not ask too much, old man."

"It is better that way. For the children that are gone sow such sweet madness in men's minds as would wreck the earth and make the heavens topple down. Dim, potent, tiny mysteries who hold the hearts of all mankind in their pale, little ghostly hands . . . as they wander in innocent ways through God's eternal gardens! Look, I am but a poor Jew, and yet all children know me; and I know all children. It is the gift, the gift that does it."

"I would give anything for that gift," murmured the old man.

"It is not for such as you," said the Jew, "for you are to give, give everything, and get no worldly recompense. You are one of the great men of the earth, and therefore it is your province to give. That is your task, your duty—to give everything. More shall come to you in return; but you shall not get back that which you give. And this is real charity, that if you had but a dollar and knew you should never be able again to get another, you should give this dollar to the poor."

The old man was amazed and cried out: "I will give—but let me think of my baby!"

And the Jew answered him softly: "As long as you live, and after, you will never be able to forget her. For she will blow eternally like fragrant pain across your soul. And so I say to you, put her by, for my time is short. It is more than two hours past midnight and I have a great deal to say."

"Go on. I will listen to you."

"You must sweeten that soul of yours inside your body—that little, dark soul which has never passed out of you yet—so that it will be pleasant in you while yet you live out your years on earth. You must soften your heart for a greater happiness. And then you must give . . . give all your millions."

The old man threw up his head at the words and said: "No! No! I cannot. I am a fool to-night. There is something uncanny here. But in the morning all this will have passed. I cannot give up my money."

Then the Jew's voice changed to an iron sternness and he thundered:

"What will you do with it when your carcass rots and flies are in your brains? Will those you leave it to have brains like yours to keep this money close? I do not ask you to give it away in folly—as you will if you give it away to those you hold in your intention now. You have a great mind. You are a wise old man. There is a wise way to be charitable. It is to plan so that the poor can have an opportunity to help themselves. Build your benefactions on grand plans, magnificent and vast.

"Give to the poor many schools where they may learn their trades. You own the steel mills. See that studious apprentices are given a chance to rise. Give work to the poor and always give instruction in that work. Find them their places in shops. Take every youth who will come to you and prepare him for life. Make an opportunity for him. All cannot make their opportunity as you did, for times have changed, and this is no longer opportunity's day. Do you not think that a starving man will work if he can get work? Yet all the Ghetto to-night is starving!

"Conceive the suffering of the little children, born in the blackness of life, and remember forever the wailing of the children in filth and blindness, where the sun shines not and the slugs of poverty crawl. You must give heed to the children of the Kingdom of Man, for in them lies your hope, and never can your child come back to you should you damn the unborn and the born. Forever shall you hear their voices crying in the labyrinths of night; forever shall you feel the brushing of little, imploring hands. The children you forget shall break your pleasantest dreams and follow you in the daytime until you abominate yourself.

"Have pity on the children, for this way you shall live forever. Teach them, and make them your friends. Raise them up from where they lie cast amongst ignorance and drunkenness, licentiousness and despair. By your schools you shall come to know them, and hereafter they shall praise you because they are no longer wretched. Through all time men shall love you, for in your time you shall have loved the children."

The old man listened to his words in silence, and over his mind came thoughts of his money. For his gold oppressed him whenever he thought of it, and it wearied him like a sickness.

"I see no way. I do not care for the money. But I see no way," he said at last.

And the other replied: "See my way. It is the only way."

"But I cannot," answered the old man. And then he said: "You move me strangely with your power here to-night."

The other said: "You must be able to hear between my lines what is not spoken in them. There is the truth. If you are the man, in your ears the truth must thunder." Then the young Jew pleaded:

"Come, think of the roaring millions of men in the centuries to come! You have but to lift your finger now and shape a billion opportunities in those undreamed-of years."

"I must think of my present business," said the old millionaire.

"A Star!" Cried the Old Man. "A Star on a Night Like This!"

And still the Jew was not dismayed. "Your present business is already past. Let the past bargain with the past and decay in its own place. But you begin and work at the future. For the future is yours."

"It will ruin me," protested the old man.

"And if you have no soul," answered the other, "you are already ruined. But I have come to save you." As he spoke, the rich man saw the wonderful kindness in his eyes, like a thousand stars on a summer's night shining. "You are already dead, and this is the death you have to fear. I tell you that by my plan you shall conquer death and live in man until the day of doom. For gold properly put is the happiest thing on earth. Do you die and want all men miserable? Or do you live and want all men happy?"

And when he had finished rebuking him, the old man spoke and said: "My strange new thoughts tell me that I want all men happy."

"Then," said the other sternly, "you know my plan. Work at it."

And again a silence fell between them.

The big, hale, gray old man took up a tablet and pencil, which always lay near him wherever he went. He bent above the paper, tapping it with the pencil. Then he drew a rough outline, which was the United States, and split it crosswise and lengthwise. And he wrote rapidly, "Eastern branch—Western branch—Northeast—Northwest—Southeast—Southwest—Central," and stopped. Now, the Northeast section included New York City, and under it he wrote the name of "Parsons, General Manager." Under each of the other sections also he quickly wrote a man's name. He forgot the young Jew, gazing steadily at him. He tapped on the paper and sucked at his shaggy gray mustache for many minutes. "Yes," he said at last. "It might do. We would take over the Government's Employment Agency first. They have been losing too much money on it."

A sound old clock chimed half past two, and the pencil scratched energetically on, pouring out rows of figures and groups of compact names. The bobbing pencil seemed merry at the new task. The young Jew smiled in the silence.

Once the visitor interrupted: "You do what you do because you wish to?"

The old man merely nodded. He did not look up. If he had done so he would have seen the lips of the young Jew part slowly, his cheeks go paler than ever, his head sink, and the flame die out of his tired eyes. But the Jew did not speak, and the old man figured on; and the night hung close over the rich man's house. "In the right hands the right task has been put," murmured the stranger. Then, in louder tones, he said: "I must go!"

But the young Jew shook his head sadly. "My work is done here. I must go."

"But the night is terrible——" protested the other. And the Jew said simply:

"No night is terrible to me."

And still the other kept saying: "But you shall stay and help me with this plan! You are a great man."

And the young Jew smiled weakly and replied: "You are a greater man for your plan than I am." He lifted his head. "I must go."

"Where must you go to-night?" asked the old man. And the young man answered: "Not far."

"And you will send the letter?" asked the young man, steadily.

To which he said: "I shall send seven letters."

"It is a sign," said the Jew. And they were silent, till the Jew put on his greatcoat and walked toward the door. At this the old man was for begging him again to stay, but the other checked him with his hand:

"Would you like to see another sign?"

They stood in the glass door, by the lawn, and he pointed upward through the night to where, above the rain, a great star was shining.

But the young Jew did not answer. He looked at his host and said: "Is your soul sweetened inside your body? Do you believe in your daughter's spirit? And do you believe in mercy and charity? Do you really believe in these things? For you see that star only because you believe in it. Otherwise, there is no star. You must believe, believe. These are my last words. All the rest of your life you must believe in what has happened here to-night. Use your strength to work out your beliefs; but see to it that you believe in a strength above that strength!"

The vast night leaned above him as his dream overwhelmed him; yet he felt strangely peaceful and calm. What had happened to him? Was it all a fantasy, full of an inscrutable meaning? A bewildering spell with some implacable intention in its exercise? Something unreal . . . something to guess at? Something from another world, from a mysterious land, compelling him at Christmas time to remold his scheme of life . . . and death?

"William," he said to his valet, as he sat on the edge of his bed, "you don't know that old age is really a second childhood. But it is. Somehow, we old men swing round and come back to our youth."

"Yes, sir," said William, patiently. For William was sixty years old.

"Youth!" went on his master, looking out his window. "Glamour! Not knowing that things are impossible to begin with, but going in and doing them anyhow. All my life I've been learning what was foolish and what wasn't foolish. And now—deliberately—I am going to be a fool. Isn't that youth again? Triumph of spirit over matter! I am snapping my fingers at every rule of 'business' on earth; every 'business man' in the world is going to declare that I'm crazy, and prophesy my ruin. Why? Simply because I'm letting the youth in me have its way—the youth and all it stands for—ideals, generosity, poetry, wild schemes, the vigor to back them up!"

"Very well, sir."

"Wait a minute. Do you know why I am a happy old man this Christmas? Don't say 'No, sir.' It is because I've got illusions—illusions, William—and also the practical strength to carry them out. What I needed in life was an illusion, a dream. I had all the rest of the equipment. I had to have something crazy and magnificent to do. And a man came along and gave it to me to-night."

"A man came here to-night, sir?"

"Yes."

"Good Lord, sir!"

In the morning, as he served the coffee, William coughed a few times, then remarked:

"Merry Christmas, sir."

The old millionaire glowed like a giant Santa Claus. "Well, well. It has a pleasant sound this time, hasn't it?" he said. "Your present is in that top dresser drawer, William."

The valet did not move for a moment. Then he coughed again: "A—er—man was found dead on the place this morning, sir."

The cup stopped at his master's lips. "What man?" he asked.

"A young Jew? Poor?" continued the millionaire calmly.

"Yes, sir."

"What time?"

"The doctors say about three o'clock, sir."

"Down at the stables, eh? Where was he found?"

The voice that answered did not seem like the old valet's voice, so strange, so old, so awful were the words:

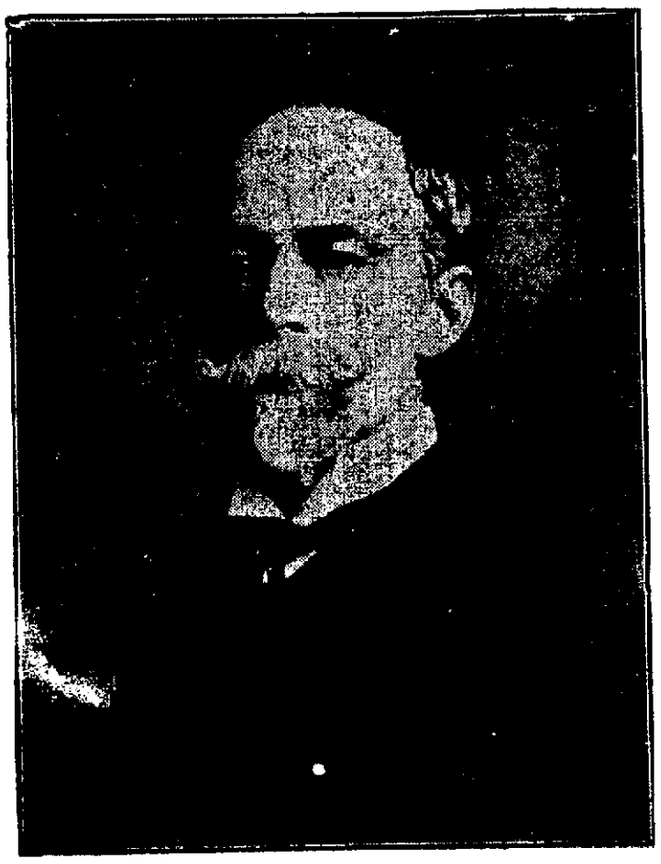
LIGHT AND POWER DEPARTMENT

Comparison Invited by Judge Heaton

My opponent, the Honorable Cyrus Cline, has prepared the statement given below, which he is causing to be distributed among the shopmen of Fort Wayne. I recognize his sharpness as a politician for not placing these statements in the hands for farmers. But Mr. Cline surely misjudges the honor and intelligence of Fort Wayne workingmen. He is only with us in campaign time. If his statements are true as to the cost of the articles named, in the year 1896, as compared with the year 1910, he cannot make any intelligent voter believe that the tariff is responsible for the increase in the cost.

The tariff duty on pork and beef and lard and veal was reduced 25 per cent.—on bacon and ham the duty was reduced 20 per cent.—on flour and eggs and beans and potatoes and all dairy products the duty was not changed, and on no item in the list given by Mr. Cline was the duty increased by the recent tariff bill. So any increase in price cannot be laid to the tariff.

It is well known that the increased cost of many things is world-wide. The same condition exists in England, France and Germany, and all over Europe. There are various reasons given by those who have studied and investigated the question, but the reasons do not concern us so much as the facts. Below is a copy of Mr. Cline's circular:



OWEN N. HEATON.

ASK THE REPUBLICANS TO EXPLAIN ABOUT THESE STORE BILLS

Suppose you have purchased of the provision dealer in the last two weeks exactly what you purchased in the corresponding two weeks of 1896.

HEATON STANDS FOR THE PRESENT TARIFF

Heaton wants a tariff commission to revise these prices, which he knows cannot report until after the next presidential election. Meanwhile you pay the above trust prices that Heaton and his party are responsible for.

LOOK AT THESE TWO STORE BILLS. ASK THE REPUBLICANS TO EXPLAIN.

I join with Mr. Cline in the request that the laboring man consider the prices of the articles in his list in 1896 as compared with the prices in 1910. But in all fairness, Mr. Cline, let us ask the laboring man and every other good citizen to consider the demand for labor; the wages and general condition that prevailed in 1896, as compared with 1910.

How many men were idle in 1896? How many now?

What were the wages of those who were employed in 1896? What are they now?

How many men were in Coxey's army? How many in Kelley's army? How many in other armies of the unemployed in New York, Chicago and Fort Wayne? How many starving armies are there now?

How many soup houses were there in 1896? How many now?

Which is preferable—free soup as a whole meal or soup as one course of a square meal?

A FEW OTHER INTERESTING COMPARISONS

Men idle, according to Mr. Gompers, in 1896..3,000,000
Men working part time in 1896.....5,000,000
Men idle in 1910—None, if worthy and willing to work.

Treasury deficit in 1896.....$25,000,000
Treasury surplus in 1910.....$15,000,000

Value of farm in 1896.....$14,727,000,000
Value of farms in 1910.....$30,138,000,000

Value of farm products in 1896.....$2,000,000,000
Value of farm products in 1910.....$9,000,000,000

WHICH FIGURES DO YOU PREFER? WHICH POLICY DO YOU PREFER?

That which brings low prices, low wages and cheap men, or a policy of construction and attainment and progress and prosperity?

Yes, by all means, Mr. Cline, let us invite comparison of the conditions in 1910 with conditions in 1896, and you are authorized to continue to distribute your statement that Heaton stands for the conditions in 1910 as preferable to that of 1896.

We know by experience that conditions might be worse than they are now. I also believe that present conditions can be improved and I desire to be classed with the progressives in the purpose to make good conditions better.

Both the leading political parties believe in a revenue tariff tax. I believe that the protective tariff policy is essential to the welfare of the American people. I believe in the protective tariff policy measured by the cost of production at home and abroad. I believe that there is evil in our present system of making tariff laws, and that the policy of protection, so essential to our business welfare, should not be left in its execution to the uncertainty of partisan politics.

I believe in a non-partisan tariff commission such as is adopted in Germany and other strong commercial nations, whereby we can learn the facts and without delay legislate on one important schedule at a time, free from every other interest, except the general welfare of all the people. I believe that such a system is essential to the progressive and permanent prosperity of all our people.

O. N. HEATON
